Indiana Father Is Sure He Will Receive Tidings from the Child.

Stepmother's Views of Case at Variance With Those of Dr. Winters.

False Promise to Restore the Pretty Girl Is Made by Blackmailers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEWCASTLE (Ind.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. William A. Winters, whose daughter Catherine, aged 9 years, was abducted about nine months ago, has about abandoned hope of ever seeing his child. Yesterday he was confident he was on a trail that would restore his child within [illegible] hours, but just as he and Mrs. Winters were about to board a train for an eastern point he received a telegram announcing that the "confession" by Mrs. J. Vance, under arrest at Adrian, Mich., had been proven false and that she had admitted it was part of a plan to blackmail the heartbroken parents. According to the confession, the child was being held for ransom at Avondale, O.

BAFFLING CASE.

The case is one of the most baffling in history. Little Catherine, a child of beauty and unusual intelligence, dropped out of sight completely after the local police had failed to get any clew to her whereabouts, her father employed the Burns Detective Agency and the best detectives of Cincinnati and Indianapolis to take up the search. Two weeks ago the Burns people abandoned the case, saying they could not get the slightest clew upon which to work. Other detective agencies reported the same experience.

The entire town and adjacent towns became interested in the kidnaping and a general hunt was taken up over all of Indiana. Photographs of the girl were sent broadcast and boy scouts searched everywhere for the child, without avail. Gypsy camps have been invaded all over the country and searched, rivers and wells have been dragged, woods and stone quarries inspected, but there is not the slightest trace of the little girl. The general belief is that she was kidnaped through an error, the abductor getting hold of the wrong child and that when the chase became dangerous her captors killed her and disposed of the body.

Two other girls have been kidnaped from Newcastle and never again heard from. One was whisked from an interurban train and the other was picked up in the street by unknown persons who hurried her away in a high-powered car.

DR. WINTERS'S STATEMENT.

When asked for a statement Dr. W. A. Winters, the father, said: "I can not say why it is but I feel my little girl is still alive, that she was abducted by gypsies and that she will eventually be restored to me. The city of Newcastle and the newspapers throughout the country have been very kind to me in my affliction and I fully appreciate everything that has been done. The theory that relatives may have abducted the little girl has been fully investigated. Relatives residing at Long Beach, Cal., have been investigated both by Dr. A. T. White, a fellow-dentist at Pasadena, and by Miss Grace Prigg, also of Pasadena. Both are former Newcastle residents and both know Catherine well, especially Miss Prigg, who, for one year,

Martial Law in South Africa to Handle the Strike Situation.

Troops Rake the Streets With Rifle Fire, Leaving at Least Sixty Dead and Scores of Persons Injured—Negotiations After the Battle Result in Promise of Men to Return to Mines on Employers' Terms.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

JOHANNESBURG, July 5.—The strike which involved practically all the gold mines in the Rand ended tonight. During its brief existence anarchy reigned in the city; there was much blood shed and the casualties are estimated at more than 100. The authorities were finally compelled to declare martial law, and during several hours today the troops raked the streets with rifle fire.

The negotiations which brought about the settlement were opened this afternoon and brought to a successful conclusion after several hours' discussion, the strike leaders agreeing to the terms proposed. Gen. Louis Botha, ex-premier of the Union of South Africa; Sir George A. Farrar, chairman of the East Rand proprietory mines, and Gen. Smith took part in the negotiations.

Before a settlement was reached, there occurred the fiercest and most sanguinary conflicts between the police and the troops and the mobs that had yet taken place. Early in the afternoon crowds gathered in front of the Rand club and began to stone it. They disregarded orders to disperse, and the troops fired with deadly effect. Near the Union club another mob was scattered by the Dragoons, who charged fiercely.

Some of the principal streets were the scene of sharp engagements. Ambulances were kept busy for the soldiers aimed to kill. Within a comparatively short time and in a comparatively small area, about sixty rioters were killed or wounded. The fighting in other quarters swelled the casualties list, it is believed, to considerably over a hundred.

The terms of the settlement are:

1—The strike is to be immediately declared off, the strikers to return to their homes; all further disturbances shall cease, and no more property is to be destroyed.

2—The new Kleinfontein strikers are to be reinstated and the government is to grant suitable compensation to the men.

3—The strikers in other mines are to return to their work and are to be taken back as mining operations are resumed; no victimization to take place.

4—Representatives of the workers are at liberty to lay any other grievances before the government, and will inquire into them.

AUTO 'BUS TO REPLACE STREET-CAR FACILITIES.

Chicago Unionites in Predicament that Probably Means Permanent Loss of Job, as Country Traction Company Makes Money by Closing Down—Mayor After Settlement.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President William Scanlan of the Street Railway Employees' Union, who on Thursday night ordered a strike of motormen and conductors of the Country Traction Company, yesterday wondered just how successful the promised 'bus line service in the suburbs would be. It was admitted the operating of the 'bus service would seriously affect any chances of a settlement. So far no 'bus line has been established.

The union will fight any move to install efficient 'bus or automobile service in the affected districts, it is said. Meanwhile officials of the railway company are not worrying, and assert the cars will not be operated unless the men return to work. It was rumored that should the employees remain out for more than a week, it is possible the service will never again be resumed.

"The company is financially embarrassed," said a resident of Oak Park, "and while it was coining money for a few weeks in the summer it must be remembered there is practically nothing doing in the late fall and winter. These strikers have 'cut off their noses to spite their faces.' Of course if some of the loafers don't want to work, why, that is up to them."

Unless the strike is settled without loss of time, five auto trucks will be put in service early Monday morning to haul employees of the American Can Company in Maywood to and from their work. The truck service will be maintained indefinitely, it is said. There are more than 1000 persons employed at the works and many of them live in Melrose Park, Forest Park, and near-by suburbs.

Mayor James Russell Smart of Evanston asserted he had hopes of bringing about a settlement before many hours.

STORMS FAIL TO BRING ANY RELIEF TO CHICAGO.

Ambulances Kept Busy by Men and Animals Dropping from the Heat—Drowning and Other Mid-summer Calamities—Crazy Farmer Runs Amuck.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Relief from the sweltering heat of the last week began to appear this afternoon, when cool breezes, due to storms in the Great Lakes region, filtered through the dense humidity and pall of deadly heat which has enveloped and smothered all of the Middle West.

Thirteen deaths have been reported in this city in the last twenty-four hours and the number probably will be increased by six or eight before morning. In addition there have been more than fifty prostrations requiring police assistance and many of these will be found in the list of dead within a few days.

Fifteen persons were bitten by rabid dogs today, and horse ambulances were much in evidence, carting away the animals which had dropped dead or been rendered helpless by the heat.

Storms broke all around Chicago today, but avoided the city, with the exception of a freakish sprinkle in the early-morning hours which aggravated, rather than helped, the situation. The slight rain that did fall hit three sides of the city, but not a drop fell in the business center. Noticeably cooler weather prevails in the Northwest and an occasional shift of wind from that direction brings much relief to the city.

An unidentified man was drowned while bathing in the lake on the north side today. His body was recovered by the police.

Forecasters say Sunday should be cool and that normal temperature probably will prevail for several days.

SWAMPED BY SQUALL.

Three yachtsmen, swamped by a sudden squall, were rescued from the lake this evening. In South Bend, Ind., there was one drowning. One person was killed and five prostrated in Terre Haute, Ind., and between Pekin, Ill., and Indianapolis a man expired on the train of heat exhaustion.

At Cascade, Ill., a farmer, driven insane by heat, ran amuck, shooting two men and fighting with desperation a posse which finally overpowered him.

Says Father-in-Law Who Is Reported to Have Booted Him Out of a Cafe Is the Best Man in the World. Trouble Arose from Order to Play "My Wife's Gone to the Country."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] According to several Chamber of Commerce men Charles G. Gates, who hurried to New York in a special train after a fracas in a Minneapolis cafe, in which his father-in-law, Frank D. Hopwood, knocked him down recently made a big clean-up in oats and his Texas oil lands. He is reported to have cleared large sums in the grain market and to have realized many thousands by oil land sales. This successful dealing, it was said, caused him to celebrate the Fourth in advance of the day, by donating money and drinks to many with whom he came in contact. When Gates tipped the cafe orchestra to play patriotic airs, he also slipped in a request for the veteran "My Wife's Gone to the Country." It was said that when this was played repeatedly at Gates's request his father-in-law was telephoned. Mrs. Gates had not gone to the country, and neither did she go as per appointment with her husband.

Gates, it was said, had a motoring engagement with his wife for Thursday afternoon, but failed to keep it. Mrs. Gates asserts the trouble is not serious, and that her husband will be home in a week.

"Neither Frank Hopwood nor any one else licked me," said Gates this evening as he stepped from a special

SUN IS A VARIABLE STAR, YERKES DIRECTOR FINDS.

Discoveries that May Enable America to Revolutionize Agriculture by Forecasting the Weather a Season in Advance Are Announced by Prof. E. B. Frost—"Solar Constant" Is as Changeable as a Woman's Moods.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Discoveries of world-wide interest as to the relation of the sun's heat to the earth—discoveries which may revolutionize the agriculture of the world, as well as its peoples—were described today in an article prepared by Prof. Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis. His article is based on observations made during his recent tour abroad and sums up a close study of the work of scientists since the late Prof. Langley of Smithsonian Institution.

Experts declare that the theory of Prof. Frost, when perfected, will make it possible to forecast weather conditions a season in advance. It will be possible, they say, to announce, for instance, in winter whether or not the summer season is to be "wet" or "dry." The effect of this information can be grasped readily by the farmers.

It is known that the government has been making investigation along the manner outlined by Prof. Frost. Prof. P. P. Kimball, for the government, has been making observations at Mt. Weather. In the opinion of Prof. Henry J. Cox, local forecaster,

Secretary of Labor Wilson Admits He Was Charged With Conspiracy.

Says He Left the Jurisdiction of the Court Because He Wasn't Wanted.

Gives His Story of a Case He Declares Was Never Brought to Trial.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor said he had learned today that he is to be the subject of an attack in a newspaper tomorrow. He issued a statement in which he explained that the attack grew out of his work in organizing the coal miners of the Georges Creek field in Maryland in 1895. He was then a member of the Executive Committee of the United Mine Workers of America and induced the miners of that region to join in the big strike. He was tried for contempt of court and was acquitted.

WILSON'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Wilson's statement then continues:

"Immediately a charge was made that I was conspiring with the coal miners of the Georges Creek coal region to stop the mines.

"I was standing at the station in Lonaconing, Md., waiting for a train coming from Frostburg, on which I expected a messenger. When the train pulled in Sheriff King stepped off and invited me into the train for a private talk. As the train always stopped a few minutes at Lonaconing I complied. When we got on the train he said he had a warrant for my arrest charging conspiracy. I asked him to read it, which he did. By that time the train was in motion and I was taken to Piedmont, W. Va., and from there to Cumberland, Md., where I was placed in jail. I was bailed out the next day.

"Because of my activities in the strike I was unable to obtain employment either in the Clearfield region or in any other portion of Pennsylvania, except in the winter in small mines operated for local supply coal by some of my former mining associates.

"The conspiracy charge remained on the docket for nearly two years and never came to trial. I was under bond all of that time, ready to proceed to trial, and was not within the jurisdiction of the court, simply because the court did not require my presence.

"The coal company used the usual 'big business' methods to break the strike; thugs were employed to follow at my heels wherever I went. They went so far as to employ one man, paying him $300 to kidnap me and hold me prisoner in an abandoned farm house in order that they might be able to announce to the miners that I had sold out and left the region, hoping thereby to discourage the strikers and break the strike.

"The plan did not succeed solely because one of the men who was asked to help carry it into effect sent me a warning."

Previous to his arrest for conspiracy Mr. Wilson had been made defendant to three injunctions and had been served with an order to show cause why he should not be adjudged guilty of contempt.

A signed opinion, delivered jointly by Judges A. Hunter Boyd, now Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of Maryland, and by Judge H. W. Hoffman, deceased, while not holding Wilson guilty, places upon his shoulder responsibility for lawlessness. It was entitled "In the matter of the alleged contempt of William B. Wilson."

Here is the language of the opinion:

"It is clearly shown that the respondent, William B. Wilson, is largely responsible for the present condition of affairs and it is equally true that whatever may be his accomplishments, many of our own miners are his equal in intelligence and know far better than he does what is for their interest. He is responsible, in part at least, for the loss of wages already sustained and for such lawlessness as has already occurred in this country.

"The evidence shows acts done or incited by him that would have unquestionably made him amenable to the law and liable to punishment if they had occurred subsequent to the service of the injunction on him. . . . He is entitled in a court of justice to have his case disposed of according to the established principles of law and equity and cannot be punished in this proceeding unless he has violated the injunction by this court since it was served on him."

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—Suffocating passengers of a southern railway stumbled blindly through a mile-long tunnel to reach the outer air when the engine, baggage and mail cars were derailed midway in the bore, near Albany, Ind., today.

Strikers at Phoenix Ready to Accept Open Shop.

But Insist on a Unionite for Arbitration Board.

Mayor Christy Turns Down Request of Laborites.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] About the only untoward incident of the day in the street car strike was the crashing of a car into a terminal pole at the end of the Indian School line. The track had been greased.

The city has an ordinance directed against consumptive colonies, forbidding the erection of tent houses. This law has been invoked by the unionists who have called upon the city Marshal to remove the tents at the car barns erected to house the operatives secured in Los Angeles. Upon receipt of a removal order from the Marshal appeal was had to Mayor Christy, now in Los Angeles, and now it is announced that the tents will remain at least till his return.

A newspaper man, acting as intermediary, has carried from the strikers to the car company's manager a message that may pave the way to peace. The strikers explain that they are not asking a close shop condition and that they would accept open shop, providing the company agrees not to discriminate against either union or non-union men. But it was insisted that cases of disagreement between the company and its men should be taken before the board of arbitration of which one member shall be chosen by the union. Manager Mitchell replied that the company could consider nothing except the questions of wages and seniority of runs and that it would adhere to its right to employ and discharge men as it saw fit.

The Chief of Police has issued a statement of his position in the local troubles, reciting, "While I am in direct sympathy with the striking carmen and sincerely hope that all parties concerned will soon come to some mutual understanding and that the carmen will win their cause, there is no reason or cause of anything interfering with me in doing my duty in protecting life and property."

Third Accident of Its Kind in Three Weeks at Honolulu Arouses Indignation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HONOLULU, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] For the third time within as many weeks, the joy riders have claimed a victim in Honolulu. In each instance the injured man has been left to die by the roadside, the fiendish revelers continuing their way.

Feeling runs high as a result of the last accident of this kind. A young Japanese was found about 3 a.m. lying in the middle of the road in an unconscious condition. He was immediately removed to the hospital, but died without gaining consciousness. A careful examination of the spot at which he was found failed to show any signs of his having been struck there, and it is the opinion of the police that his murderers struck him at a point on the outskirts of the city and carried the body into town, leaving it to appear that he had met with an accident where found.

Several chauffeurs are under suspicion and it is the expectation of the police that an arrest will be made soon. This will give the authorities an opportunity to bring a charge of second degree murder against the auto driver.

CELEBRATE THE HOLIDAY BY DRIVING OUT I.W.W.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANDY (Or.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Citizens of Sandy celebrated the Fourth of July by driving out of the community four I.W.W. agitators who have been responsible for considerable disorder during the past week or so. The men, who were working for the telephone company, first got into the limelight last Tuesday when they hoisted the red banner on a flagpole in the park. Citizens shot the flag down, dragged it in the mud and burned it while the Sandy band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." Wednesday the I.W.W. men threatened to put up another flag and were told that if they did so they would be harshly handled.

Nothing further happened until the evening of the Fourth, when residents of Sandy decided that they had had about enough of the malcontents and determined to drive them out of the city. The workmen were told to leave town. This they refused to do. Citizens then gathered in a body and following a color-bearer who carried the Stars and Stripes, they corralled the four I.W.W. men, marched them to the city limits and ordered them to keep going straight ahead. The temper of the Sandy folk did not seem any too good and as a number of them carried revolvers that were but partly concealed, the agitators decided to follow their advice and marched away. As they passed out of sight the citizens gave three cheers and a tiger and marched back to the center of the town again.

Absence of the I.W.W.'s left no discordant note for the Fourth of July celebration and the programme was carried out with great enthusiasm and without a hitch.

TWO PICKETS WOUNDED IN UNION STRIKE RIOT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN RAFAEL (Cal.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A wrangle between union men engaged in doing picket duty outside of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's substation and a crowd of workers culminated in a shooting affray shortly after noon today, and two union men were wounded.

Edward Mistelski was shot in the forearm, and C. L. O'Brien, received a scalp wound, presumably from a blow over the head with the butt end of a revolver. The bullet was removed from Mistelski's forearm.

Al Springer and a man named Phelps, who is known as "Red," have been placed under arrest and a charge of attempt to commit murder placed against them.

The workers and the union pickets had some words at the substation and it is alleged that Springer drew a revolver, and fired six shots at some of the pickets, whom he charges with having taunted him. The shots failed to take effect and when Springer turned to retreat the crowd rushed for him.

The worker jumped upon a wagon and reloading his weapon, fired again, it is charged. Mistelski dropped and a moment later, after Springer had been surrounded, it was found that O'Brien was lying on the pavement.

Springer was forced to surrender his gun and was then placed under arrest, together with Phelps.

was the little girl's teacher. Relatives residing at Madison and Plattsville, Wis., have been thoroughly investigated by detectives employed by the city and they have given satisfactory answers to questions propounded and explanations of their movements both before and since the disappearance.

"Miss Rose Livington, the social worker of New York City, has conducted an investigation of the gypsy rumors originating at Cleveland and Cincinnati, O. She is at present running down a clew in New York."

BANKRUPTS HIMSELF.

When Catherine disappeared Dr. Winters financed all investigations until his funds were completely exhausted. Then friends in the city took up the work and have raised a total of $2500, which has also been expended in the employment of the most expert detectives that money could secure. At the present time operatives from Seattle, Wash., are conducting an investigation in Montana and a report is anxiously awaited. The detectives have been on the case for eight weeks. It is now three months and more since Catherine disappeared.

BELIEVES CHILD IS DEAD.

Mrs. Winters, the stepmother of Catherine, takes a view of the case which is the direct opposite of the view taken by her husband. She believes more firmly than ever that the little girl is dead and bases her conclusion on the fact that it seemingly would be impossible in this day for anyone to abduct a 9-year-old girl, and keep her in seclusion for this length of time without there being some leak.

Catherine was an unusually bright little girl. She was fond of excitement and diversions of all kinds. She left her home on the morning of March 20, to sell some needles for the benefit of a missionary society of which her mother was a member. At 11:45 o'clock she was last seen, at the corner of Broad and Twelfth streets, directly opposite the Courthouse and in front of the Knights of Pythias Temple. There all trace of her is lost. She at that time was en route to her home for dinner, as she informed Dan W. Monroe, a well-known real estate dealer, who knew her well and conversed with her for a moment.

PYTHIAN REWARD.

The Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias of Indiana, through John B. Gaither, Grand Chancellor, has authorized the notice of a reward of $1000 from the Grand Lodge to be paid to the person restoring the little girl to her father, who is a prominent member of the lodge. Dr. Winters has had a standing reward of $100 up for nearly three months, but says that he will have to borrow the money to pay it, but if the little girl is restored that amount and several hundred more like it will be made up by the loyal citizens of New Castle.

TO WIN HER BACK.

Little Frank Winters, aged 7 years, the brother of the missing girl, on Easter Sunday prepared some Easter eggs for his sister. The gaudy-colored eggs he placed in the big bay window at the Winters home, saying: "I'm going to put these eggs here for Catherine, so she'll see 'em as soon as she comes home." Those Easter eggs are still where little Frank placed them. For several weeks the boy was inconsolable and his only companion was his big white cat, which he loves dearly and upon which he lavishes all his affection. He for several weeks was accompanied to and from school, and was in reality a prisoner, because he was under the watchful eye of some member of the family or friend of the family, it being feared that perhaps he too might be abducted through the same agency that must have been instrumental in the abduction of his little sister.

The search for Catherine has been extended from coast to coast and from the Lakes to the Gulf. Detailed descriptions of the little bright-eyed girl have been published broadcast. Reporters have been detailed on the case and have spent many hours day and night running down clews with just as much dexterity as the detectives, but not withstanding all this, there has at no time been found any trace of the little girl.

New Castle was searched from end to end. Ten days after Catherine disappeared every business house, cellar, barn, outbuilding, sewer, sewer manholes, concrete arches under highways, farm lands, woods, fields and streams were searched. Business was suspended for three hours on this day. Factories were closed and 700 searchers, divided in twenty-five different squads, went over New Castle with a fine-toothed comb hoping that Catherine's body might be found, for it was not then believed she was alive.

Then came the employment of detectives, who have been working on the case ever since. Gypsy bands throughout Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa were searched. Life for gypsies in this part of the country has been just "one damn search after another" since Catherine disappeared.

In face of all the discouragements encountered, Dr. Winters is still hopeful of finding his little girl and the entire populace of New Castle, as well as of the State of Indiana, will rejoice with Dr. Winters if he is successful in locating the little one.

FISH FAMINE IN HONOLULU.

NEW ACT OF LEGISLATURE TIES UP JAPANESE BOATS.

However, R. M. Fitt of San Francisco, "King" of Fanning Island, Proposes to Supply Piscatorial Needs of Hawaiians by Towing Supply in Large Tanks to Market.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HONOLULU, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Situated in the middle of the Pacific Ocean and virtually surrounded by fish of every description, this city is facing a fishless Friday. A famine in the finny table delicacy threatens, owing to the fact that at a recent session of the Legislature the lawmakers, in their farseeing wisdom, adopted a law prohibiting the use of nets more than twelve feet in length in fishing for smaller fish than are used as bait to catch the larger table supply. This law went into effect last March and has resulted in the Japanese fishing fleet being tied up in the harbor for some time. Fish that previously retailed at 10 and 12 cents is now quoted at 18 and 20 cents, with only a small quantity in the market.

However, R. M. Fitt of San Francisco, "king" of Fanning Island, has a solution for the difficulty and proposes to import fish to Honolulu from Fanning, where there is no Legislature to govern the size of the nets and the catch of fish. He is now devoting his time to plans for the importation of the fish which may be caught in abundance around Fanning. His present idea is to tow the catch to Honolulu in large tanks, thus reaching this market with the live fish. Fishing at Fanning is easy work. When the tides rise the lagoons around the island are rapidly filled, the fish following the current. When the tides begin to subside a gate is thrown across the opening of the lagoon, leaving it filled with fish when the tide is low.

Thousands of fish may thus be caught, says Fitt, at very low tide, as many as seventy-five varieties being caught in the lagoon at one time.

LOS ANGELES COOLEST.

Phoenix, Ariz., led the procession today with a maximum of 110 deg. above. Tucson was a close second with 108 deg., while Fresno, Cal., with 102 deg., and Sacramento, with 100 deg., also were in the running. Los Angeles, on the other hand, with a maximum of 82 deg., was two degrees cooler than Montreal and Toronto, highly-touted cold spots of the Northeast. Washington, D. C., and Boise, Idaho, had the same temperature, 92 deg., which also was the Chicago maximum. Cincinnati and St. Louis showed 96 deg., while Indianapolis, Boston, Denver and New Orleans each displayed 94 deg. All over Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma, an average of 98 deg. prevailed and work in the fields was greatly hampered.

Tonight there is a perceptible change in Michigan and Wisconsin, indicating the cool wave is spreading. Severe storms are raging along the eastern ends of the Great Lakes system and wire communication is shut off from several points.

The two had left the house but a short time when it was struck by lightning and was destroyed by fire.

VETERANS BREAK CAMP ON FIELD OF GETTYSBURG

Events of Fifty Years Ago Contrasted With Those of the Day—An Eyewitness of Scenes Separated by Half Century Unites Them Into a Fabric of Words—Tragedy and Hope as Handmaids of the Defeated Army.

BY J. A. WATROUS,

Lieutenant-Colonel, U. S. Army, Retired, Late Adjutant-General Iron

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GETTYSBURG (Pa.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Breaking camp at Gettysburg in 1913, and the two great armies, both badly shattered, marching away from there in 1863, are two such strikingly different experiences that one is lost in contemplating them.

Gen. Lee's army, after the severest defeat it had ever suffered, with a loss of more than 25,000 in killed and wounded, not to mention the prisoners, dispirited, broken in body and shocked in mind, hungry and poorly shod, filled with darkest gloom at the thought of the frightful losses and blasted hopes, started back to Virginia, doubting that thousands of them would reach there.

At times by the side of the marching infantry and other times in the rear, or at the head, was a wagon train, many miles in length, laden with groaning, agonizing and, in many instances, dying brave men. In these wagons were only a portion of Lee's wounded.

So, one of the great armies left Gettysburg fifty years ago. The next day the other army, almost as badly shattered, by shot, shell and bullet, took up the march in pursuit of that other American army. This army was not hungry, it was not poorly shod or poorly clothed, it had not suffered its greatest defeat—it had not met its Waterloo—it had not met with a disaster that settled forever that no foreign nation would intervene in its behalf; it was not a march with the thought that the foundation of its government was crumbling and the finger of Fate pointing to Appomatox.

It had won its greatest victory, had seen the high-tide battle fought and had won it. It was full of hope and confidence. The beginning of the end was in sight to every officer and every man.

So marched away from Gettysburg, Lee's and Meade's armies fifty years ago.

The picture just painted partakes of the pathetic and sorrowful as well as of high spirits and hopefulness.

After a week spent in tents, every one on the ground replete with historic interest, a week in which the survivors of the two armies of fifty years ago mingled as loyal, country-loving citizens of this great nation; mingled in perfect harmony as brothers, as fellow American soldiers, the one trying to outdo the other in expressions of admiration, in praise of the great, strong, united country with love for both country and flag, the veterans are leaving after the reunion. Nine veterans died during the reunion.

There were at one time 60,000 American soldiers in the camp, 20,000 of whom, according to the best estimates, had been at Gettysburg fifty years before, and everything about the little city and the great fields—was of intense interest to them, and they walked about them arm in arm, at one point chatting and laughing at recalling the way in which one side or other hastened from the field, and another time filled with emotion that silenced tongues and sprinkled cheeks, at the thought of tent-mates or old leaders who had died on the ground where they were now standing. When they were not at their meals or sleeping, thousands upon thousands of these old gentlemen were wandering over the fields, facing and suffering the burnings of a hot sun, waving aside the comforts of shade in trees under which Lee or Meade or some corps commander had made famous by establishing his headquarters there. Those 20,000 men who had fought and fought th days at Gettysburg half a century made the very best of all their in revisiting places of deep in to them. It was a historic vi the veterans of both sides and visit was a historic event which nation is likely to remember in nection with the battle during centuries to come, for it was an event as never before found into history in this or any country in the world.

There were hundreds of during the week but I was una find one where all present were soldiers or where all present Confederate soldiers. Every them, like the great reunion a Blue and Gray assemblage.

It thrills and fills the heart boundless gratitude to know th not one of these gatherings wa said a word that would hurt the ings of either a boy in blue or in gray and it is said that there to be no effort to avoid unple ness. It was natural.

The absence of frivolity on the of this multitude that in the lo wore uniforms and had a part greatest war of modern time noticeable. There was less of the ical than seemed natural. All we busy with their thoughts and pleasures to squander time amusements as they delighted years ago.

Before I forget it, let me in the whole week I did not soldier of either side under the ence of liquor. It was the haved vast body of old gentlem the sun ever smiled upon in and certainly the happiest and satisfied. If it happened that a growler complained of there were twenty to condem for his ingratitude.

But I am forgetting how two armies marched away from tysburg the second time. To long story short all of them away full of gladness, grateful of the happiest weeks of their greatly benefited in many ways splendid types of country-lov riotic American citizens; they go away, the oldest almost hope, hungry, ragged, realizing all of their fighting had been and that their cherished baby ment was soon to breathe its cause of the blow it had re Gettysburg.

They all went away in cars, in comfort; all of one mind everything that is essential citizenship and all as proud of citizenship as any other class ple the nation ever had. The not a spark of anger the one the other in a single breast. such a sight as the world never fore saw—such a sight as the probably will never again

AKRON BALLOON WINNER OF GREAT AIR RAC

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) July 5.—Unofficial figures on the landing places of the four balloons in the national elimination race made by Aero Club officials tonight give first place in the race to the Goodyear bag of Akron, O., which landed at Westbranch, Mich., an estimated distance of 652 miles from Kansas City.

While Gen. Watts, pilot of the Kansas City II, telegraphed that he had flown 720 miles in the Kansas City II, which descended at Goodrich, Mich., Aero Club officials figure his distance at 630 miles, giving him second place in the race.

Third place is accorded Capt. Honeywell in the Kansas City Post balloon, which landed at Rockwood, Mich., and last place to the Million Population Club of St. Louis, which came down at Manchester, Mich., a distance estimated at 590 miles.

The following is the experience of George Quisenberry, aide of the balloon Kansas City II, as telegraphed to the Kansas City Star tonight:

"The balloon Kansas City II and myself landed on a farm one and one-half miles north of Goodrich, Mich., this afternoon, 730 miles from Kansas City. A farmer's boy told us our location; we weren't sure whether we were in Illinois, Indiana or Michigan, or in Canada, as we hoped.

"We thought we had recognized either Chicago or Milwaukee as sliding under us, but we didn't know—and then the clouds came up. We fought them during the remainder of the trip, and only occasionally could we obtain a glimpse of the earth. Once we heard the noises of a city beneath us, the street cars, the motor honks and the whistles of trains and all the many sounds, but the white clouds could not be penetrated.

"The night was dark; there was no moon and only the stars gave us light. The earth beneath us was black. Now and then the lights of a town flashed beneath us, or the lightning cracked off in the west. And for the rest—only the murky blur of what we knew as sleeping farmhouses, roads, creeks and rivers. We saw them only as the lightning flashed. We put the basket in order, stored the water bottles, food, the ballast and the wardrobe carrying all of our sweaters, caps and heavy gloves, in the places on the side of the The first course was fried the second course was ice cream that ended it.

President Tucker Outlines Reform Programme.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) July 5.—The fortieth annual session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections was opened tonight with a public meeting. Mayor George F. Cotterill welcomed the delegates and Gov. Ernest Lister spoke the State's welcome.

The response was made by Mrs. John M. Glenn of New York, whose husband is general director of the Russell Sage Foundation.

The varied and far-reaching programme of reform demanded in the name of social service by the conference was unfolded tonight by Frank Tucker, of New York, its president.

"I believe that the third era in the life of the national conference has begun," Mr. Tucker said.

"I believe that the new era will concern itself with constructive discussion for a programme to bring about the health, efficiency, happiness and welfare of individual, family and community. We must expect to be the melting pot from which our knowledge and ideals will flow into the programmes of constructive action. Social justice demands minima below which no individual or family, who is a member of a community, shall be expected to exist. It puts no ban on knowledge, wealth or power, provided they are not acquired at the expense of the weaker or used for their exploitation.

"What are these minima that social justice demands?

"(1.) A living wage—Social justice demands that the very least among ye shall be paid enough to have for himself and family education, adequate housing, sufficient food, simple clothes, heat, light and transportation, reasonable recreation, health, care and protection, insurance against death and disability.

"(2.) Reasonable working hours and conditions of work—Social justice demands that the worker shall not be destroyed or disabled, or his working years shortened. It demands that the number of hours of continuous work shall be reasonably limited; that there shall be one day's rest in seven; that occupational diseases shall be studied and preventive mechanisms and processes arbitrarily provided and their use enforced; that the home shall not be turned into a sweat shop, clothing food factory, candy factory or nursery; that there shall be light, air, sanitary conveniences, as well as safety appliances for machinery in the factory, foundry and workshop.

"(3.) Education—Social justice demands that everyone shall be trained to be efficient as a producer and a consumer and effective and intelligent as a community member.

"(4.) Housing—Social justice demands that the housing of the lowliest shall have sanitary and housekeeping necessities, shall not be overcrowded and shall be procurable at a reasonable price.

"(5.) Social justice demands that the lowliest shall have sufficient food. It demands that neither the raiser nor the consumer of food shall be exploited. It demands that food shall be clean and unadulterated; that it shall be sold by honest weight and measure. It demands that it shall not be [illegible].

"(6.) Clothes — Social justice demands that clothes shall be honest, simple and appropriate. It frowns upon extravagance, exaggeration and constant change. It forbids the wanton destruction of birds and animals to gratify a senseless vanity.

"(7.) Health—Social justice demands that the individual be taught from the time of first understanding the elements of health preservation; to know the danger signals of disease; that he shall be taught to spot the quack and shun him; to look askance upon patent medicine cure-alls; that he shall know the problems of sex and have a holy horror of venereal disease.

"(8.) Recreation — Social justice does not exclude the yacht, the automobile, the polo pony, the picture gallery or the private engagement of the opera star from the millionaire's scheme of recreation, but it demands that all shall have a playground, a public bathing beach, a dance hall, an art collection, and music and the drama in all their forms of expression.

"(9.) Security of life and economic security through social insurance—Social justice does not exclude the millionaire's policy for the rich man any more than it excludes him in the [illegible] of life, but says that not he alone but all working men shall have the protection against accident, sickness, old age and death."

Owing to many of the citizens celebrating the Fourth in neighboring Placer county towns, the Americans did not provide the usual observance of the day here.

Hundred Thousand Head of Australian Cattle to Be Imported Annually for Feeding on Southwestern Ranges—In Meanwhile Frozen Meat Shipments Increase.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Negotiations reported to be under way indicate that not only will large imports of Australian meats be shortly made to the United States, but that cattle on the hoof will be shipped to the Coast from the Antipodes.

The Oceanic Seamship Company, the Union Steamship Company and other operators have been asked, it is said, to give rates on the movement of live stock. The project is being engineered by Los Angeles capitalists and the plan is to ship stock to be distributed over the vast grazing lands of Southern California, Arizona and Nevada. It is understood that the present plans call for the landing of between 50,000 and 100,000 head of Australian cattle per year.

F. E. Schlagther of Salt Lake City, who investigated the meat proposition recently, is the authority for the statement that the Australian cattle are to be imported. He has correspondence with the American Consul in Melbourne and with representatives of the Oceanic and Union lines.

The American-Hawaiian Company has a plan in view to extend its service to Australia, following the opening of the Panama Canal, and the completion of its new freighters now on order will give it a fleet of thirty-two vessels. Some of these, it is said, may be so altered that they can be used as cattle ships.

Local shippers will receive in the future heavy shipments of various varieties of Australian and New Zealand meats. The last few steamers that have arrived from the British Colonies brought heavy shipments of frozen meats in the refrigerators. That the shipments will grow in size is indicated by the fact that the cold storage space on the steamers in the trade between Australia and this port is being increased. The Union Company's steamer Acrangi, which is due next Thursday from the Antipodes, is bringing 200 tons of frozen meat for local consumers.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The Western Fuel and Diggs-Caminetti cases, delay in prosecution of which resulted in the sensational resignation of United States Attorney McNab, will be tried by three special assistants to the Attorney-General. Word to that effect was received here today by Benjamin McKinley, acting United States Attorney from Atty.-Gen. McReynolds. The telegram of notification follows:

"I have retained Matthew I. Sullivan, Thomas J. Roche and Thomas E. Hayden as special assistants to represent the government in all prosecutions heretofore instituted against Maury I. Diggs and Drew Caminetti and also those against the Western Fuel Company and its directors. Mr. Sullivan is to occupy the position of leading counsel. Please co-operate with them and give them free access to all papers involved."

In view of the fact that President Wilson has already sent to the Senate Hayden's nomination to be United States Attorney here, his appointment as special assistant to his own office caused considerable speculation.

Enlistment of Recruits to Close Next Tuesday.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MONTEREY, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tuesday will be the last day that young men from schools and colleges may file their applications and be admitted to the War Department experimental camp of instruction at Pacific Grove. Announcement to this effect was made today by Maj. Herman Hall, commanding officer at Camp Murray. Young men from San Francisco and vicinity, Maj. Hall says, may file their applications at western department headquarters and then hurry down to camp, but owing to the nature of the work that will be undertaken next week the boys must be here in time to master the preliminaries.

Those who apply at the eleventh hour must pay their own transportation to and from camp, pay about $7 for a uniform that will be supplied here, pay $1.75 weekly for rations and agree to remain throughout the life of the camp or until August 6. But a few more boys are wanted to complete the personnel of an otherwise perfected organization.

Three additional students were enrolled today. E. Cragun and George M. Dunford from the Utah Agricultural College, and Shirley French from the San Francisco Business College.

FIRST COMPANY DRILL.

After the Fourth of July holiday the work of the camp started off with vim today. Following breakfast, setting exercises were held and then Lieut. Edward L. Hopper, commanding the students' company, put the boys through the first company drill they have so far had, all previous drills being in squad formation. For the first half of the drill regular soldiers acted as squad leaders, but the last half the cadet corporals assumed this work. The company was put through a hard, extended, order skirmish drill and at the same time were instructed in signals and the use of ground.

TARGET PRACTICE.

For two hours after this work Capt. Alfred T. Smith, Twelfth Infantry, took the boys on the newly-made rifle range on the rocky shore of Monterey Bay, half a mile from camp where for the first time the students had an opportunity to show their efficiency at real target practice. For each student there was a regular soldier to act as personal instructor, these explaining the mechanism of the army rifle, the proper firing position and manipulating the sights. Each student was given an opportunity to fire fifteen shots, five shots each in the standing, kneeling and recumbent positions. The work was very satisfactory to Capt. Smith and showed some preliminary training on the part of many students in this class of work.

Target practice promised to be a big factor in keeping up the interest of the students in camp life and they are becoming enthusiastic over it and are beginning to show rivalry.

As a slights illustration of the efficiency of some of the army men stationed at the camp for instruction purposes, Capt. Smith today sent Sergt. G. J. Bare, Co. B, Twelfth Infantry, on the range to test the rifles and the targets before the students undertook their work. Sergt. Bare, who will represent Co. B at the Western Department semi-annual target shooting at Monterey next week, selected eight rifles to test. He fired five shots from each or forty shots in all, and made thirty-eight bu'lseyes, but two shots failing to find the exact center of the target.

MAP READING.

Maj. John T. Nance today made a valuable and interesting talk to the students on map reading and field orders. Maj. Nance is the officer detailed as professor of military science and tactics at the University of California and is an unusually fine instructor. It is the subject of much comment, that, while the University of California, Santa Clara University and other similar institutions around San Francisco Bay are all represented by students, Stanford, of which David Starr Jordan is chancellor, has not a single student enrolled. Whether or not Dr. Jordan is adverse because of his peace work to a camp such as this where the boys are obtaining training that undoubtedly will make them better and more useful citizens in time of either peace or war is not known. It is understood, however, that Stanford students did enroll some time ago, but later cancelled their applications.

MODEL FIELD BAKERY.

Instruction that will prove of value if not productive of an uninterrupted night's sleep will come tomorrow or Monday when the students will be called from their cots at 2:30 a. m. to see how the men of the field bakery from the Presidio of San Francisco start their baking operations. The bakers mix the dough for their bread at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and start baking two hours after midnight. The students will be called out only once during the camp, however, to watch the baking operations begin at the model field bakery, the best that can be erected in a camp.

INSPECTION EACH NIGHT.

Hereafter there will be an inspection of camp each night at 11 o'clock to determine if all the young men have reported back for duty after their evening of freedom. No student will be allowed out of camp after 11 o'clock excepting when he is attending some social function at Pacific Grove, Monterey or Del Monte that has the approval of the commanding officer at Camp Murray.

LOTS OF SPORT.

The following notice issued today by Lieut. C. R. Bennett, Seventh Infantry, adjutant and camp athletic officer, gives some idea of the pains he is taking to provide healthful and clean amusement for the students. In part the notice read as follows:

"For those who desire to play tennis a court just beyond the first house on the right-hand side of the road west of camp is available, also the tennis courts near the hotel in Pacific Grove, and those in the Del Monte Hotel grounds. These courts may all be used free of charge.

"Baseball grounds between the camp and the Pacific Grove Railroad depot may be used at any time. Tickets for roller skating in the rink at Pacific Grove may be obtained from the adjutant or sergeant-major at camp headquarters. Those tickets will be provided with skates without charge and each student is permitted to skate as long as he desires.

"It is suggested that parties might be made up as it is thought that more pleasure would thus be derived than if individuals went alone or in small groups. Wear civilian clothing when going to the rink as men not wearing a coat will not be admitted. On Tuesday, Wednesday or Friday nights the students company as a whole may use the Del Monte bath house. Swimming may be learned without any danger whatever and much pleasure be had. Water is warm and is supplied daily. Bowling alleys are available in the Hotel Del Monte grounds. It is suggested that those of you who play tennis arrange a tournament among yourselves, that you arrange for say a couple of ball games a week and any other forms of athletic amusement that you desire. Every Saturday night at both the Del Monte and Pacific Grove Hotels informal dances will be held. These dances are for the guests of the hotels mentioned but all students have been favored with an invitation to be present whenever they so desire. There is no charge for admission. I will be very glad to be of any assistance possible in arranging tournaments, contests, etc., and will also thank you to submit to me any suggestions that you care to offer."

FREE FROM TEMPTATIONS.

Camp Murray is far removed from any harmful outside influences. Pacific Grove is a prohibition town and known locally as "the city of churches." No student could be under better moral influences at home than he is here or freer from temptations and in addition to the splendid effect of rigid military discipline. The students have the benefit of out of door life in a perfect climate and in a camp more sanitary and healthful than private camps could be, inasmuch as there are bathing and sewage facilities within the camp proper, running water at the end of every company street and a splendidly equipped hospital tent with the pick of the army medical corps men in charge. Should any illness occur it will not be because every possible precaution known to military medical officers has not been taken to prevent it and judging from the husky looking boys in camp the medical corps men will not have much work to do while camp lasts.

OAKLAND STOPS PUBLIC WORK.

ABOUT THREE THOUSAND MEN THROWN OUT OF JOBS.

Unable to Sell Its Bonds, the Municipality Asks Voters to Increase Interest Rate Twenty-five Per Cent.—Securities May Be Sold Over the Counter.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OAKLAND, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After an investigation made by City Architect J. J. Donovan and Commissioner of Public Works Harry S. Anderson, the latter said today that owing to the failure of the present 4½ per cent. municipal bonds to sell, there are from 2500 to 3000 men of Oakland out of work and that the city is losing weekly pay rolls aggregating nearly $50,000 because all work was stopped on the City Hall, municipal auditorium, schoolhouses and water front improvements.

He said:

"This condition will exist until after the election called for July 22, when the people will be asked to permit the City Council to fix a higher rate of interest on the old bonds, but not to exceed 5½ per cent. Many think that the Council is asking for a new bonded indebtedness, but that is not so. The only new issue is for sufficient money to complete the new City Hall, and all the other bonds are merely what remain unsold of previous issues already voted by the people.

"If this provision was in effect now, allowing increased interest, sufficient bonds to tide over the depression could be sold at 5 per cent. All that is needed now is to sell $1,000,000 worth. And by the time it is necessary to sell the balance, 4½ per cent. or less may be required.

"This, however, cannot be foreseen, and in the meantime, those who are losing by it are the men who were employed on the buildings and those who supply the wants of the working men. Whether it is worth while to increase the interest on a proportion of the existing bonds and keep Oakland men to the number of nearly 3000, at work and have nearly $50,000 paid out in wages every week, or whether all work shall continue at a stand still, adding to the present local shortage of ready money, is a question which the people must decide for themselves on the day of the election."

If the plan carries, the City Council will also be empowered to issue the bonds in denominations of $100 and sell them over the counter to the small investor. It is stated that in this case there will be no murmurings on the part of the small bond buyer if the interest is fixed at 5½ per cent.

PACIFIC COAST CAPTURES NEXT INTERNATIONAL EISTEDDFOD.

Archdruid Institutes the Gorsedd, the Only One in United States. Seven Mixed Choirs Competed at the Pittsburgh Meeting, Which Closed Yesterday.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH, July 5.—The ringing voices of almost a thousand singers brought the International Welsh Eisteddfod to a close tonight after five days of what the officers declared to be the most successful meeting of Welsh people ever held in the United States. The next meeting will be held in San Francisco in 1915, preliminary arrangements for the Eisteddfod having been completed today.

The last sessions were given over to some of the most interesting features of the Eisteddfod, chief among them being the competition for mixed choirs of 150 members each. The choir entered were Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Choral Union, Monongahela Valley, Philadelphia competitive choir, Hayden Choral Society of Chicago and the Scranton Choral Union.

An interesting feature of the day's programme was the final ceremony in connection with the institution of tthe Gorsedd, the only one in the United States. Robed in the handsome vestments of his office, the Rev. Dr. Evan Rees, Archdruid of Wales, tied to the arm of each bard, who had passed the required examinations, the ribbon of his degree.

HEIGHT OF POLICE CRUELTY.

Inflict Third Degree by Taking Cigarettes from Man Arrested in Chicago on Murder Charge.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—Deprivation of cigarettes is the "third degree" being inflicted on Pano Noum, arrested in connection with the murder Tuesday night of Mrs. Florence Woodruff.

Noum has refused to talk and the police took his cigarettes away from him today and refused to allow him to buy any more. The man raged for a time and then subsided into absolute silence.

He is a Macedonian and smoked continually until the police hit upon the idea of depriving him of his tobacco.

Wives of Drinking Men

You can save your drinking husbands and sons by giving them the Neal Treatment, which is a safe, sure internal vegetable remedy that removes all craving for drink in three days without the use of hypodermic injections. If your husbands and sons are discouraged by repeated failures to stop drinking of their own accord, you should act for them, at once, and give them the Neal Drink Habit Treatment at the Neal Institute, or at home, and restore them to sober, useful lives. The Neal Treatment means to them sobriety, while continued drinking always ends in ruin.

Call at the Los Angeles Neal Institute, 945 South Olive street, or 160 Hill street, Ocean Park, California, and investigate proofs and references, or, write or 'phone for book of information. 'Phones: Broadway 4602; A4072. Drug Habit successfully treated.

the Chickering Player Piano
A Perfect Instrument

When you have heard some great Pianist play the Chickering Piano you said, "When I can get that tone in a Player Piano I will buy it." Right now, at this store, you can purchase a Chickering Player Piano—an instrument that embodies the true Chickering tone.

With this instrument in your home you will immediately be able to play like a virtuoso, to produce those delicate tone-shadings that set the great Pianist apart from the ordinary.

Not until the House of Chickering could produce a perfect instrument would they give it to the world. Years of experimentation, investigation and endeavor are behind the Chickering Player Piano.

In a word it is an instrument worthy of the illustrious name of Chickering—an instrument whose greatness can be measured only by that of the Chickering Piano itself.

Come tomorrow for a demonstration. We urge all musical people and music-lovers to see, hear and play the Chickering Player Piano.

The Chickering Ampico

Of equal importance is this first announcement of the Chickering Ampico—an instrument that reproduces the playing of the greatest pianists of the world in a manner hardly conceivable. Just as the camera reproduces and faithfully pictures the features of a beautiful face, so does the Chickering Ampico "photograph" and reproduce, in minutest detail, the playing of the famous pianists. We urge you to come and hear this remarkable piano.

ENDS THREE YEARS' FIGHT.

Porter Charlton Goes to Italy This Week to Answer for Murder of His Wife.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JERSEY CITY, July 5.—Porter Charlton will start for Italy during the coming week to answer for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, according to the present plan of the authorities here.

P. P. Garven, who has represented the Italian government in the case, today, received from Washington the decision and mandate of the United States Supreme Court that Charlton must be surrendered to Italy. Mr. Garven has sent the papers to the Federal District Court in Trenton and will communicate at once with the Italian Consul-General in New York.

Mrs. Charlton was slain in 1910 while she and Charlton were on a honeymoon trip. Her body was placed in a trunk and thrown into Lake Como, Italy. Charlton fled to this country, where he was arrested upon stepping ashore at Hoboken, confessed and began his unsuccessful three years' fight against extradition.

BOLD FRAUD HE CALLS IT.

Hatfield Scores Signing of Wrong Bill by Johnson.

Traces Substitution of the Juvenile Court Act.

But Predicts that Ruse Is Doomed to Failure.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] L. T. Hatfield, attorney for the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and one of the most prominent lawyers of Northern California, has written a brief on the effect of the signing of the wrong juvenile court bill by the Governor, displacing Judge Wilbur at Los Angeles and Judge Hughes at Sacramento, although the Legislature expressly refuse to pass such a bill. That fraud was committed, he openly charges, saying:

"There is no division of opinion of the people of this State in relation to the fraudulent act of those persons who succeeded in reaching the Governor with the spurious juvenile court bill and defeated the legislative bill by an amazingly audacious fraud. That the bill that reached the Governor was deliberately and willfully passed up to him by a series of criminal acts perpetrated for the sole purpose of preventing the two judges of the juvenile courts from presiding in such courts, there can be no doubt. That an examination of the two bills will show that the cover of the bill actually passed was put onto the other bill; that the first printed page of each bill was printed off the same form, the title and first section being identical. The words are divided in the same place, and the punctuation identical and in every way these pages are perfect duplicates."

Mr. Hatfield is of the opinion that "the unworthy object of the bill will fall by its own weight." He points to the facts that the Supreme Court is one of general jurisdiction, that it is "the supreme court," which is by the terms of the bill itself given jurisdiction in juvenile cases, that while the court when acting under the law shall be known as the Juvenile Court, it is only the Supreme Court, that the Legislature does not have the power to create courts at will, that the only court authorized to act is the Supreme Court, and that there is a fatal element in the attempt to discredit the two judges of the court. He quotes decisions to support his view that the members of the Supreme bench will continue to be unfettered in their choice of an associate to handle juvenile cases.

THE PRESIDENT IN HIS ELEMENT.

WILSON COMPLETELY ISOLATED AT CORNISH, N. H.

Sees His Summer Home for the First Time—Miss Jessie and Her Fiance Return from a Visit in Pennsylvania — Chief Executive Says He Intends to "Loaf" Awhile.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CORNISH (N. H.) July 5.—President Wilson, always fond of simplicity and seclusion when seeking rest and diversion from official duties, found in his summer home here, which he saw for the first time today, extreme isolation and quiet.

Arriving at noon at Harlakenden house, which has been leased for two years as a summer capital, the President saw nobody but members of his family.

Absolutely no one got inside the big gate, a quarter of a mile from the house, to catch a glimpse of the President. The evening was spent at home in the shadows of oil lamps and candles for there are no electric lights in Cornish.

The President's arrival attracted little attention. Windsor, Vt., the nearest town of any size to Cornish, contributed a handful of people out of its 2000 population to greet the President. Except for a single cheer there was no demonstration. Along the way some of the natives waved a flag and occasionally an apron fluttered, but the ascent of a three and a half miles to Harlakenden House was uneventful.

The secret service operatives grouped in a car behind trailed along with difficulty as the President's machine plowed through the loose sand and left in its wake an atmosphere thick with clouds of dust.

The weather was hot and sultry most of the day, but cooled somewhat toward evening.

The President was taken on a sight-seeing tour of his home by Mrs. Wilson immediately on his arrival. He stepped out to the portico that fronts on the Connecticut River.

Looking down, however, he saw a moss-covered stream, shallow and filled with logs and debris.

The President took a nap in the afternoon and a short motor ride before dinner. Miss Jessie Wilson returned tonight with her fiance, Francis Bowes Sayre. They had been visiting in Pennsylvania and had spent today at Williamstown, Mass., with President Garfield of Williams College, of which Mr. Sayre is a graduate. The family circle was not complete, however, as Miss Margaret Wilson, the oldest daughter, is visiting near Madison, Wis., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies.

The President brought with him only his physician, Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U.S.N., leaving behind all secretaries and stenographers. He said he expected to do no work but would "loaf." He denied himself to the correspondents throughout his visit, declaring that if anything important developed at Washington requiring comment from him he would go there immediately and become fully advised before expressing himself.

On Monday he probably will play golf. His schedule calls for departure on Tuesday, but there is a possibility that his stay may be lengthened if legislative affairs in Washington are not pressing.

FOX FLASHES INDORSEMENTS.

IT'S SENATOR WORKS AGAINST THE DEMOCRATIC MACHINE.

California Leaders, Male and Female, Fall Over Themselves to Recommend President's Appointee to the Sacramento Postmastership. Party Fight Keeps Wilson Guessing

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The fight over the postmastership at Sacramento is growing more interesting every minute. Thomas Fox, who was appointed, and whose appointment is being held up by United States Senator John D. Works on the ground that he has been a henchman of the Southern Pacific political machine for twenty years, claims to have received all the Democratic indorsements possible.

Here is a list of those who have declared Fox is their preference for the place, and they are in addition to many others which have been announced heretofore:

The Democratic National Committeeman, Senator Sanford, the members of the State Democratic Central Committee, signed by Chairman J. O. Davis and J. J. Scott, Secretary; Senator (now Commissioner) Caminetti, chairman of the State Legislative Committee; twenty-two out of the twenty-five Democratic members of the State Assembly, all the Democratic members of the State Senate and the Sacramento branch of the Woman's State Democratic Legislature.

If Works proves his case against Fox, President Wilson will have grounds for wondering where the Democratic party of California really stands.

Heavy Storms in Lake Region Fail to Cool Off Territory East of the Rockies.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Freakish weather conditions brought cool breezes to some portions of the Lake region, although the rest of the country between the Rockies and the Atlantic Ocean continued to swelter. Heavy storms in the Great Lakes region were responsible for the respite in torridity here. Forecasters predict several days of normal summer weather.

GREEKS SMASH BULGAR LINES.

Infantry in Kilts Rushes Fiery Fortifications.

Trenches at Kilkish Are Filled With the Dead.

Fleeing Soldiers Massacre Women and Children.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—A story of the battle between the Bulgarians and the Greeks at Kilkish, twenty-five miles to the north of Salonika, was received by the Greek daily newspaper Atlantis today direct from Salonika. It says:

"The battle between the Bulgarians and Greeks at Kilkish ended at 10 o'clock in the morning of July 4 in the complete defeat of the Bulgarians after a severe bombardment of the town by the Greeks, who carried the place at the point of the bayonet. The town was then occupied by a part of the Hellenic troops while their comrades continued the pursuit of the Bulgarians, who had fled in disorder, leaving many of their field guns and machine guns in the hands of the Greek victors. More than sixty cannon were captured.

"Kilkish was almost completely destroyed by fire before the Bulgarians fled.

"The battle in front of Kilkish was more important than any of those fought by the allies in the campaign between Turkey and the Balkan states. The Bulgarians, who were much superior in numbers, had surrounded the town with defensive works and trenches nearly six feet in depth and very narrow so that their occupants were sheltered from the splinters of shells.

"Firing started at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. The Bulgarians had stationed their heavy artillery on the heights, from which they fired with good precision, the distances having been marked before the opening of hostilities. The guns first opened at a range of two miles. Their field artillery was too much exposed on the plain below and they found it impossible to bring it into action.

"The Greek infantry received orders to advance by short rushes at double quick so as to render ineffective the marking of the distances by the Bulgarian artillery.

"By 11 o'clock the Bulgarians had come to the conclusion that it was impossible to stop the advance of the Greeks, so they started a great conflagration along their front for a distance of over two miles in order to hide the movements of their army.

"The Greek light infantry in their kilts, however, dashed forward, darted through the circle of flames and brought about the complete demoralization of the Bulgarian troops.

"In the meantime the Greek artillery had taken up a fresh position, whence it opened a fierce cannonade which soon reduced the Bulgarian guns to silence.

"In the meantime the Greek infantry with their bayonets fixed, had arrived within thirty feet of the Bulgarian trenches.

"Then ensued a wild spectacle, Greeks and Bulgarians being mixed together in a furious hand-to-hand fight.

"At 5 o'clock on Friday morning the Bulgarian lines had been pierced but one of the heights around Kilkish still held out. It was occupied by a company of Bulgarians.

"The Greek light infantry dashed up the side of the hill to dislodge them and came into close contact, which ended by the Bulgarians abandoning their munitions and their wounded and flying in disorder toward Doiran, further north, with Greek troops pursuing them without pity.

"The Greek army from Ghevmheli has crossed the River Vardar and is marching to the assault of the almost impregnable Lorges of Teurka north-east of Doiran. The resistance offered there by the Bulgarians is much weaker than at Kilkish, but they are gradually retreating and the capture of Doiran by the Greeks is merely a question of hours.

"The victory of the Greek division at Nigrita also was complete.

"Gen. Sotilles, commander of the Greek division, has telegraphed that a steamer be sent to Stavros to embark a Bulgarian regiment with ten of its officers taken prisoners at Nigrita.

"It is said that the Bulgarian troops when they abandon the towns and villages devastate them after massacreing the women and children in a barbarous manner."

BOY'S HAUNTING LAST LOOK LEADS TO CONFESSION.

"He Wouldn't Play Indian the Way I Wanted to Play," Says Seven-Year-Old Slayer, "So I Threw Him Into the Water!"—Shows No Sign of Regret.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The body of 6-year-old [illegible] Hammer, who was thrown into the north branch of the river and drowned by Harold Fragel, 7 years old, was today recovered by the Rawson-street police. The father of the boy identified the little body, which had been in the water since Tuesday.

"He wouldn't play Indian the way I wanted to play," asserted the Fragel boy, "so I put him into my wagon, and when we got out on the bridge I threw him into the water."

Confession of the Fragel child was not made through fear of punishment or because he showed any signs of repentance for the terrible act, but because of the haunting "last look" in the eyes of his little companion as he sank into the water.

"He looked funny in the water," the little boy told the police, "but I got scared at the awful look in his eyes when he turned over. He went down in a minute, and I ran home with my wagon."

Without a trace of a tear the little boy viewed the dark swollen features of his dead playmate, and, when he had studied the face carefully for a moment, he turned to Lieut. Max [illegible] and said: "Well, he tried to take my wagon and my wood, and that's good enough for him."

Fifty-first Annual Convention of the National Education Association in Session at Salt Lake City—College President Urges Shorter School Courses.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE (Utah) July 5.—The first day of the National Education Association's fifty-first annual convention was devoted to three meetings of the National Council of Education. Thousands of teachers from all parts of the United States are in attendance.

At the afternoon session, President James H. Baker of the University of Colorado presented a report on the "Economy of Time in Education," in which he declared that school and college courses should be shortened so that the student might be graduated from college by the time he was twenty.

At the morning session Carroll H. Pearse, superintendent of Milwaukee schools, said: "Teachers must be paid more or the public must be content to see the quality of the teaching force undergo progressive deterioration." The report of the Committee on Teachers' Salaries, Tenure and Pensions was presented by Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore College. The report stated that a salary of $800 per year in Detroit is equivalent to $1000 in New York or Atlanta, and that a comparison of salaries between cities is of no value without a comparison of the cost of living. It is expected the investigations will be carried further.

Former Governor of Illinois Explains How Woman Who Disappeared from Eureka When He Left Traveled on Same Train With Him to San Francisco.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Former Gov. Yates intimated today that political enmities were responsible for a story published Friday which accused him of having disappeared in company with the wife of E. R. Freeman of Eureka, Cal. The assertions were made by the husband, a photographer and merchant in that town. Mr. Yates, who stopped at the Hotel La Salle for the day, issued an unqualified denial of the charges. He made his statement in the presence of his wife.

"I have never run or gone away with another man's wife, and I don't intend beginning to do such a thing at this time of my life," said Mr. Yates. "I met her incidentally, as I did scores of other people. Mrs. Freeman was on the same train on which I left Eureka. She left it at San Francisco, while I came straight East. I spoke to her on the train as I did to many other people I had met on the Coast."

MRS. FREEMAN ALSO ALIBIS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. E. R. Freeman, wife of a photographer and art dealer at Eureka, is on her way home after an innocent visit to San Francisco brought her undeserved notoriety as a runaway wife who had succumbed to the blandishments of former Gov. Richard Yates of Illinois.

Gov. Yates met the Freemans while filling a Chautauqua engagement at Eureka last week. They went down to the Northwestern Pacific station to see him off Monday morning and Mrs. Freeman decided to ride down to the end of the line at McCann. Gov. Yates had suggested it, and the husband consented, telling his wife she could check up the stock of their branch store at McCann.

When Mrs. Freeman did not return Monday evening or Tuesday her husband became excited and told the newspaper correspondents that she had eloped with Yates.

This is what really happened, according to Mrs. Freeman's story, told to the reporters at the home of her friend and hostess, Mrs. Paul Stein, in the Richelieu apartments, at Guerro and Twenty-second streets:

"After I got on the train I decided that I might as well go on to San Francisco and pay my visit as planned. I had spoken to my husband about it and he said I might go to the city if I wanted to.

"I came away without any baggage, not even a handbag. I came with the Governor. By staying on the train to San Francisco we reached here at 11:30 o'clock last Tuesday morning.

"I telephoned Mrs. Stein at once and told her that I would be out later. Mr. Yates had invited me to take dinner with him. We went into the public dining-room of a cafe downtown. After dinner I went to the ferry station with Mr. Yates, and I bade him good-by there at 4 o'clock.

"My only explanation of the situation is that the conductor joshed my husband and reported the whole thing wrong to him. Today I received a telegram from him telling me to stay here until I heard from him. I wrote my husband a letter after I got here, telling why I had come on so hurriedly. His attitude is wholly unjust to me and to Mr. Yates, who is a man of very high character."

YOUTH ROBS OREGON BANK.

But Is Caught After Cold Bath of Two Hours.

Two Highwaymen Marooned on British Columbia Spit.

Safe Blower Mortally Shot in Georgia Postoffice.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 5.—Virgil Perrine, aged 20, who says he came here recently from St. Louis, robbed the First State Bank at Milwaukee, six miles south of Portland, this afternoon, by holding up the cashier and his assistant, escaped with his loot, about $400, and later was captured by a posse after he had stood submerged to his neck in a creek for two hours, in the hope of eluding capture. The money was recovered.

Perrine entered the bank alone and unmasked at 1 p.m. Assistant Cashier A. H. Sanders stood at the cash wicket while Cashier A. L. Bolstead sat a little back, eating his luncheon from a basket. Perrine was armed with a revolver, which he leveled at the two men, forcing both to stand together with arms upstretched while with one hand he raked the rolls of coin from the nearest tray into his pocket. Then, still keeping the men covered, he backed out the front door and fled.

The pursuit was most spectacular. Sheriff Mass of Clackamas county and Sheriff Wood of Multnomah were notified by telephone and arrived with posses almost simultaneously. Chief of Police Reed of Milwaukee had preceded them in the chase.

As the robber ran, several rolls of silver dollars fell from his pockets. He made for a dense wood near by and, followed by shots from rifles and revolvers of posse men, plunged into the wood which was surrounded, and sticks of dynamite were hurled into the brush in hope of dislodging him. Thickets on all sides were searched.

Perrine, meanwhile, had plunged into a pool beneath an old mill wheel in the woods. Submerging himself to his neck, he held his position and escaped observation until, after two hours, the coldness of the water forced him to emerge. He was seen almost at once and captured, offering no resistance. The money, except the rolls of silver, which he had lost, was taken from his pockets and he was lodged in jail at Oregon City. He declined to talk, further than to say that he was penniless and had to have money and so had committed the robbery.

NEW YORK, July 5.—B. L. Winchell, formerly president of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, and latterly receiver for the system, a position which he resigned yesterday, has been appointed director of traffic of the Union Pacific Railroad. Announcement of his appointment was made here today.

L. J. Spence was formerly director of traffic of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific systems, but the dissolution necessitated his resigning from one of the roads and he assumed the position for the Southern Pacific only. This left the Union Pacific vacancy which Mr. Winchell now fills.

Mr. Winchell's appointment is effective July 15. His headquarters will be in Chicago.

MAY DISMEMBER SYSTEM.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS July 5.—An order was filed in the Federal District Court here today appointing William C. Nixon and William M. Biddle successors to B. L. Winchell in the receivership of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad. Before the receivership they were vice-presidents of the Frisco and now are in charge of operations and traffic respectively. The order which was issued by Circuit Judge Sanborn of St. Paul, specified that Nixon and Biddle each are to furnish bond of $100,000.

The appointment of a receiver for the Brownsville line, which has a mileage of 500 and the appointment of separate receivers for the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway in Texas and announced in a dispatch from Dallas, is considered in certain circles here as an indication of dismemberment of the Frisco system.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois has receivers separate from those of the Frisco proper, and it is understood that it is to be operated independently hereafter.

For the present it is understood the operation of the Brownsville line will be directed from the Frisco offices in St. Louis.

RECEIVERS OF TEXAS LINES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DALLAS (Tex.) July 5.—Federal Judge Meek appointed Avery Turner of Amarillo and G. S. Schleyer of Fort Worth as receivers for the lines of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway System in Texas today. Turner is vice-president of the Panhandle lines of the Santa Fe system, and Schleyer is president and general superintendent of the Texas lines of the Frisco. Bonds of $35,000 will be required of the receivers.

Announcement was made at the offices of the general counsel of the Frisco here today that Frank Andrews of Houston, Tex., was appointed today receiver for the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico Railroad, a subsidiary of the Frisco running from Houston to Brownsville, Tex.

ONE GOOD SAMARITAN AMONG FIFTEEN AUTOISTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MINNEAPOLIS, July 5.—Refusal of fourteen automobile owners to carry a boy to a hospital may result in the death of John McEwen, 12 years old. He was injured Friday night during a fireworks display when a sky rocket went astray at one of the city parks and struck him.

The big stick was fast in his leg while a policeman carrying him in his arms walked up and down before a long row of cars pleading for some one to take him to a hospital. An automobilist who heard the appeal finally came to the rescue.

"I don't want my children to get wet," one owner previously said.

"My wife and her dog are in my car and I can't take the boy," explained another.

BURNS DOWN CAR TOWN.

President of Oceanside Improvement Gets Rid of One Mark of San Francisco's Backwardness.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the disappearance of the horse car from Market street, the street car homes, which for many years have been landmarks at the beach, have taken their departure.

They went up in a blaze of glory on Friday night, while hundreds of people watched the ceremony.

Alexander Russell, the president of the Oceanside Improvement Club, is the man who took the car out of "Carville." He secured permission to burn the cars as a part of the Fourth of July celebration of the district. He also secured an appropriation for fireworks from the city authorities, and set off the fireworks together with the cars, while the chemical engine stood by to render any assistance that might be needed.

The first car house at the beach was the rendezvous of an early day bicycle club.

The club sprang at once into such prominence that it became necessary to restrict its membership; a second car was secured and added to the first, so that the accommodations could meet the demands of the increased membership. These cars were modeled and furnished in a manner so unique and attractive that it may well be doubted if any other feature of this city's life at that time gave rise to wider comment and publicity.

Finally the sand dunes along the beach became dotted with car houses, occupied by all sorts of tenants. With the upbuilding of the district came a demand for the cleanup.

Pa's Joke.

HIS SON'S HONEYMOON IS DELAYED BY M'ADOO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BALTIMORE, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary McAdoo played a little joke on his son and daughter-in-law on their honeymoon recently, according to a story going the rounds of society. The Secretary is a big man with a big laugh, and he hugely enjoys a joke. June 21, in the midst of a terrific rain and electrical storm, in the presence of President Wilson, young McAdoo and Miss Ethel McCormick were wedded at the Emerson country estate. Soon after they sailed on the Emerson yacht Margaret, they did not know that Papa McAdoo had taken an auto, chased into town in their wake and boarded the revenue cutter Apache.

Soon after the Margaret sailed the Apache steamed out of the harbor. The Apache overhauled the honeymoon yacht and stubborn blue-coated sailor men came over the side to tell the landsman with his bride, who didn't know and didn't give a rap for navigation laws, that he was smashing those laws to bits.

For a moment all was agitation and exasperation aboard the yacht. Then Papa McAdoo came over the side and the laugh was on. A few minutes later Papa McAdoo was off for Annapolis, and the bride and bridegroom on their way to Old Point, breathing natural again.

VAN NUYS FOURTH.

VAN NUYS, July 5.—Nearly 250 attended the Fourth of July picnic given yesterday by the Van Nuys Chamber of Commerce at Sheep Ranch, and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

While many went in their own conveyances, it took three trips of the huge sightseeing auto truck to carry those who accepted the Chamber of Commerce offer of free transportation to the grounds.

The day was spent in games and in wandering over the ranch grounds, and it was a picturesque scene about 1 o'clock when the many groups of picnickers were scattered around under the trees and on advantageous spots they could find, taking their luncheons.

The committee in charge furnished free coffee, lemonade and ice cream. The Van Nuys orchestra furnished music during the afternoon. The return was started about 3 o'clock.

MORMONS ISSUE DEFI.

Challenge Denver Minister to a Joint Debate.

Ask Pointed Questions of Christian Conference.

California Woman Gives Cash for Bible in Schools.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mormon leaders here have renewed their challenge to Dr. Robert F. Coyle of Denver, or any other of the opponents of their faith in the city, to meet them in joint debate at any place that they may designate for that purpose. Pending an answer to their challenge the Mormons of Portland will answer Dr. Coyle and his supporters at their regular Sunday evening services in their church at East Tenth and Sherman streets tomorrow. All the charges and accusations made by Dr. Coyle and other speakers at the recent session of the Christian Citizenship Conference will be answered and denied.

"We have invited the delegates to this conference to go to Salt Lake City and make their own investigations," said Melvin J. Ballard, head of the church in the Northwest, today.

"They can hold their meetings in the Mormon Tabernacle and get their information first hand if they want to.

"We always are ready and willing to answer any questions that are made in good faith. The Mormon people are just as patriotic and law-abiding as any of their detractors. We have nothing to conceal.

"There is no one to take up collections to investigate us. We are informed that they collected $1000 the other night to 'drive the Mormons out of the country.' What becomes of that money? We never heard of any funds raised through similar sources being spent in Utah.

"I have attended some of the meetings of this so-called world conference. There seems to be a studied attempt at most of the meetings to excite the sympathies of the audience to the point of contributing money for something. Then they take up a collection. What do they do with the money?

"While we are on the subject we might as well ask what has been done with the money that the people of Portland raised to pay the expenses of this conference? What are the expenses?"

Recognition of Christianity, not only in the individual life but in the organic principles of the United States government, urged by the Rev. Dr. Richard Cameron Wylie of Pittsburgh at the afternoon session of the World's Christian Citizenship Conference today, after which came a call for pledges of money to aid the movement, resulted in receipt of a message from Mrs. Christiana Armstrong of Salinas, Cal., who pledged $1000 for the work to have the Bible put in the public school curriculum. The appeal work was answered by J. A. McAteer of Pittsburgh; B. Y. Rose of Gaston, Or., and C. B. Larrabee of Fayette, Iowa, who stood up in the grand stand and pledged $100 each.

Prof. R. M. Downie of Beaver Falls, Pa., at the close of his address, called upon the audience for contributions to the reform movements of the conference, offering to start the list himself with a pledge of $1000.

POMONA BRIEFS.

POMONA, July 5.—The local lodge, Knights of Columbus, is preparing for the entertainment here on Sunday, July 13, of about 500 knights of the order who will come here to Pomona to witness the exemplification of the third degree in the ninth district of California. The visitors will arrive on special Pacific Electric cars and a banquet will follow the ceremonies of the degree. Hon. Frank Silva of Napa, who is the head of the order in California, assisted by the Oxnard lodge degree team, will work the degree.

The people of Walnut celebrated the Fourth of July with a mammoth barbeque at which several hundred persons were present. Sheep, lamb and beef were barbecued in the approved old-fashioned style. The affair was under the auspices of the Walnut Growers' Association.

Miss Georgia Hawkins, who was graduated from Pomona College last year and who has been pursuing graduate study at the University of California, is at her home here and has been engaged to teach Spanish in the High School at Santa Ana the next school year.

Another demonstration of orchard heaters will be given at the Pomona Fruit Growers' Exchange packing house on Park avenue on Tuesday evening. Preceding the demonstration there will be a meeting of citrus fruit growers in the packing-house at which time the frost protection problem will be further discussed. Many of the growers are already placing large orders for heaters and contracts are being made for fuel oil. Numerous storage tanks having been constructed by the fruit exchanges and also by individual owners of groves.

Sun Variable Star.

the government will adopt the system of observation of the sun's heat.

INTERPRETED BY FORECASTER.

Prof. Cox read the article by Prof. Frost with great interest.

"It is a most valuable article and a highly interesting one to the layman and the scientist alike," said Prof. Cox.

"The subject of the earth's absorption of the sun's heat is one which has interested the government to a great degree. We haven't reached the point of using the figures set forth by Prof. Frost, but I am quite sure that we are going to in time. Prof. Kimball has been making observations along this line at Mt. Weather.

"Since the work of Prof. Langley scientists have been working on the theory. Its importance can be estimated by the fact that it will be possible to forecast the general weather conditions for an entire season."

FROST'S FINDINGS.

In his article Prof. Frost points out that discoveries within ten years indicate that Prof. Langley placed the figures for the amount of heat absorption by the earth at too high a figure. He also declared that the "solar constant"—the quantity of solar heat—is a changeable quantity.

Prof. Frost says, in part:

"Observations for sun spots have now been made long enough so that we know they are more numerous every eleven years, slowly declining from a maximum to a minimum number about seven years later and then rising again to a maximum about four years after the minimum.

"The importance of this discovery of the variation in the sun's heat is probably obvious to the reader. The inhabitants of the earth are entirely dependent for their existence upon the results of agriculture and nothing is more certain than that the radiation from the sun lies as the basis of the principal weather elements in the earth's atmosphere.

"It should not be inferred that a sudden small change in the sun's radiation produces an immediate effect in the terrestial temperatures. The earth's atmosphere takes up these changes and gradually communicates them to the earth's surface. How soon, and to what degree, remains to be, investigated. Continuous study, extended, perhaps, over many years, will be required to determine if these changes in radiation can be predicted in advance, and if the laws can be determined which govern them. It is evidently a most practical problem, touching the interest of every inhabitant of the earth.

"All the numerical values regarding the equivalent in horse power or other units of the amount of radiation received from the sun, as given in the best school and college text-books and in popular articles as well as in most of the encyclopedias and dictionaries, should be reduced by from 20 to 33 per cent. This is very important and will be appreciated by all having an interest in engineering problems.

"But the most striking result is the discovery by Messrs. Abbott and Fowle that the solar constant is not a constant, but avariable; in other words, that our sun is a variable star like hundreds and thousands of others in the sky.

"It was nearly ten years ago that those investigators found evidence that the radiation of the sun was not steady, from day to day, and ten years of work has been devoted to determining whether these apparent variations were really in the sun or due to errors of observations or to fluctuations in the absorption by the earth's atmosphere. They now feel justified in stating that these fluctuations are real and are in the sun itself, amounting to 5 per cent., or more in a period of a week or ten days.

"To get rid of possible local effects in the atmosphere it was necessary to establish two stations for simultaneous work in widely different parts of the earth, and for that purpose observations were made in 1911 and 1912 at a station in Algeria while observations were continued on Mt. Wilson in California. The results from the two stations concurred in showing similar fluctuatons at the same time, thus largely eliminating the possibility of any atmospheric effect, unless it was so widespread as to cover the great distance from Algeria to California. They found that when the sun spots are numerous the radiation received from the sun is relatively high, and that it is relatively low when the sun spots are few or absent. Just at present sun spots are very rare, but they will become frequent again soon and in about four years we may expect that they will be very numerous.

MILLION DOLLAR COLONY WITNESSES A FLAG RAISING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PASO ROBLES (Cal.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The flag-raising and Fourth of July celebration at Atascadero, the $10,000,000 colony near here, was one of the greatest events in the history of San Luis Obispo county. The women's republic flag was raised on the highest peak of the 23,000-acre Henry ranch, and the presentation of the deeds with title in fee simple of the ranch and everything on it including live stock, machinery, $15,000 home and buildings, was made by Mr. Henry to Mabel Lewis, vice-president of the colony-holding company.

During the ceremony the crowd sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" standing, and Mme. Bernice De Pasquali joined.

The flag-raising was a semi-historical event because of the industrial and colony proposition, which means the coming to this country of thousands of new home owners who have already purchased lands here. Speeches were made by the master of ceremonies, John F. Sullivan, general manager of the colony; E. G. Lewis, founder of the colony; Mabel Lewis, vice-president of the organization; K. H. Henry, former owner of the big ranch; Mayor Norton and Senator Campbell of San Luis Obispo; Major Waite of Paso Robles and others.

A Spanish barbecue, daylight fireworks, races, athletic sports and other amusements concluded the programme. A magnificent fire-works display was shown at the Paso Robles Hot Springs Hotel in the evening. Many San Francisco, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara people were here.

It adds significantly that the conflict between the Balkan allies has aroused excitement in the Turkish army, "which it will be difficult for the government to check if Turkey does not obtain just and equitable recognition of her rights." DISGRACEFUL INCIDENT.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 5.—A disgraceful incident marked the arrival at Belgrade today of 1384 Bulgarian prisoners of war, according to a special dispatch from the Servian capital. The prisoners were marched through the streets in the presence of immense crowds of Servians, who closed in cheering wildly at the rear of wagons loaded with wounded, lying three deep, many of them apparently dying. Even this did not stop the enthusiastic outburst of the mob, and the correspondent adds that peace between the two nations is impossible after this.

Orange Industry to Be Developed in South.

Man Arrested for Slashing Another With Knife.

RIVERSIDE, July 5.—After spending a night under the protecting porticos of the Glenwood Mission Inn, where he met at an informal reception the leading citizens of the Orange City, Dr. Lauro Muller, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Brazil, left in his private car this morning with a promise to send a special representative of the Department of Horticulture and Agriculture of his country, on the occasion of Riverside's celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the navel orange industry in Southern California.

The plans for the unique celebration, which was first proposed by one of the representatives of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, were explained to the distinguished visitor through an interpreter, and were received with evident interest.

Although the two parent trees, which are still standing in the valley, were brought from Bahia, Brazil, it was learned from Dr. Muller's secretary that the navel orange is not cultivated to any great degree in the South American republic. "This visit, however," continued the secretary, "may be the commencement of the development of the fruit in our country to as high a degree of perfection as has been attained in California."

So great an interest did the Ambassador take in the two original trees, one of which stands in the courtyard of the Glenwood Mission Inn, that he instructed his secretary to secure the fullest possible data with reference to them.

The Ambassador, who it is understood will be the next President of his country, is returning the official visit to Brazil of Secretary Elihu Root two years ago. He is accompanied by Assistant Secretary of State Dudley Field Malone and military officers.

Ellen Beach Yaw, the "California nightingale," took part in the programme arranged in the cloister music room of the hotel for the entertainment of the party.

BAD EFFECTS OF LIQUOR.

J. M. Maupin is under arrest on the charge of cutting Earl Saylor, an employee of the Pacific Electric, with a knife. Saylor alleges that it was only by putting up a strenuous defense that he saved himself from mortal wounds.

Saylor approached Maupin and three companions, all of whom were under the influence of liquor, to investigate their treatment of a Mexican whom they stopped and whose bicycle they broke to pieces without provocation. As the Mexican returned with Saylor, Maupin, it is alleged, rushed upon Saylor with a knife.

Mystery.

IDENTIFIES HAT OF MISSING MAN.

BRIDE FAINTS AS SHE SEES RED HEART BUTTON.

San Francisco Police Believe that S. J. Finney, the Pittsburgh Cigar Dealer, Was Sandbagged and Robbed and His Body Thrown Into the Ocean.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. S. J. Finney, wife of the cigar dealer of Pittsburgh, Cal., who disappeared under mysterious circumstances in this city on last Monday night, positively identified today in the property clerk's office of the Hall of Justice the straw hat found by detectives in a clump of bushes in Sutro Heights grounds.

When the battered straw hat was taken from its paper wrapping by Charles Ward, an attache of the property clerk's office and was exhibited to Mrs. Finney, she turned it around with trembling fingers until she brought into view a red heart button sewed on the band. Upon seeing this she fainted and fell to the floor. Ward and other attaches of the office revived her.

On recovering consciousness she moaned and cried that the hat was that of her "poor, dear husband," and that she had sewed the red button on the side band.

She said that Finney had left Pittsburgh on last Monday and had told her he would be back in a few days. He cautioned her, she said, not to pay any bills or sign her name to any papers during his absence. She thought he had about $200 on his person when he disappeared and had come down here to investigate in the cigar business. She had been married to Finney eight months.

The straw hat identified by Mrs. Finney as her husband's has a break on the back of the crown. A hole large enough to insert two fingers has been made at this point. An examination of the hat fails to show any spots of blood, such as might have been made had the hat been on Finney's head when the break in it was made.

The detectives say that a blackjack or a gas pipe wrapped in a sack might have dealt a murderous blow, which would have broken the hat and skull and yet not have spilled any blood.

Mrs. Finney told the police that Finney invariably went to Sutro Baths when on a visit to this city. On the delay of his arrival here Finney's wallet and bank-book were found in the Sutro Baths' enclosure by H. H. Leggo of Melrose. Finding the address in the bank-book, Leggo forwarded the articles by parcel post to Finney's address at Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Finney said that this parcel has in some manner gone astray as she had not received it and did not know there was anything wrong until she read in the papers of her husband's disappearance.

Detectives worked all day today on the case. The present theory of the police is that Finney was sandbagged and robbed of his money and that his body was either hidden in Sutro Heights or was thrown into the ocean.

LONDON, July 5.—Seven suffragettes and their six male champions, one of whom was a clergyman, were ejected for raising a disturbance during the speech this afternoon of Chancellor Lloyd George at a garden party organized by the Radicals at West Islington.

Despite the Chancellor's plea that the removal of the disturbers be done gently, one woman was so badly mauled that she had to receive medical treatment. From that on Mr. Lloyd George's speech was without interruption.

train which brought him from Minneapolis.

A group of reporters asked him about the report that his father-in-law had given him a cuffing after hearing that he had bought champagne and lobsters for a clique of hotel clerks at McCormick's cafe.

RUNS AWAY IN A SPECIAL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Just because Frank D. Hopwood, his father-in-law, punched and slapped him at the entrance of McCormick's cafe Thursday night, Charles G. Gates ordered a special train and hit the high spots for New York.

The young multi-millionaire, heir to the late John W. Gates's $30,000,000, today reached New York, where he is expected to remain until his lacerated feelings have healed.

Mrs. Gates, nee Hopwood, is still in Minneapolis. She told a reporter that Mr. Gates had been unexpectedly summoned East on business and that she would join him there if his stay was prolonged.

Young Mr. Gates experienced an excess of patriotism Thursday, and as a preliminary recognition of the national holiday began burning up money instead of the prohibited fireworks.

At 5:24 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Gates were to accompany Mr. and Mrs. Todd Lewis to the Charles E. Lewis place at Frederic, Wis. Train time came and passed and Mr. Gates appeared not. He was distributing souvenirs of his country's greatness among the highly appreciative servitors at the St. Paul Hotel, St. Paul. These souvenirs were all stamped by Uncle Sam himself, and the population is said to have been enriched by about $200 in $20 bills which Mr. Gates scattered about. Particularly the "Greeters" who were closing their national convention in Twin Cities seemed to appeal to Mr. Gates, it was said at the Hotel St. Paul today. He appeared with a large party of visiting hotel clerks at the bar and in the roof garden in the afternoon Thursday and bought lavishly.

While "buying" he would occasionally amuse himself by peeling off a $20 bill from a huge yellowback roll and sticking it in the pocket of one of his companions.

This was resented by some and welcomed by others. If the money was refused, Mr. Gates would throw it on the floor and leave it or try to give it to some one else.

Mr. Gates remained in St. Paul until about 7 o'clock, when he rode away in an auto. Meanwhile the week-end excursion planned by his wife was abandoned when no word was heard from the errant patriot.

I CURE PILES
FISTULA AND ALL RECTAL DISEASES
WITHOUT AN OPERATION
BY MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS.

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to all others. I cure without surgery and my patients are never confined in bed and never lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

MOODY OF SANTA MONICA IN WITH DAY'S BIG COUNT.

Jerome Goes to Second—Little Harold Bury's First Count a Hummer—Little Scores a Little—Pasadena Polly Reels Off a Few—More Enroll—Some Personal Pointers—Next Week's Great Game.

There was something doing among the "four hundred" yesterday!

Those at the top pulled hard toward the celestial heights and there were several changes in location all along the line.

Little—Walter J. of Santa Monica—scored a little, just to peg down the stakes which fastened his tent at the head of the encampment. Walter does not mean to have anyone sneak past while he takes even the shortest nap.

Jerome made a leap-frog jump over Paul of Pomona and went to second.

Pasadena Polly couldn't bear to stay fifth, so he scored some yesterday, but his 1350 moved him only to fourth place, Fair Helen of Troy (Monrovia) not being heard from.

Earle Weller, Long Beach Lad, climbed from the four thousands to the five thousands on a ladder 800 rungs in length, but—such are the fortunes of war—this only served to hold him in his position of the previous day, sixth.

Today's gains then stand:

Little, 600; Waller, 700; Moody, 2700; Polakoff, 1326; Weller, 800; Lewis, 400; Blumenthal, 600; Lois Wise, 150; Harold Tilton, 850; Harold Bury, 1100.

Little Harold Bury made a sensation with his very first score, which was 1100, and went well with his expressed determination to have first prize or nothing. He says he does not even want the $500 in gold; but absolutely WILL HAVE that first prize. Harold is a bright and intelligent boy and will certainly make a telling record in the campaign. He lives at No. 2711 Blanchard street, and is a graduate from the grammar school. Harold has already decided what he means to make of himself, although he is but 14 years of age. He intends to be a court reporter, and it is with this view that he means to win the highest prize in this contest. He believes that it will take a thorough education to enable him to fill this position.

Leo Moody has just got well fitted into the harness and from now on will make things hum. Leo has a very business-like card which he hands to those whom he approaches on subscription matters. It reads: "I am entered in The Times Educational Contest. Will you help? I shall call. Wait for me, or drop a card to LEO R. MOODY, No. 314 Fourteenth street, Santa Monica." This is a very good introduction and should enlist interest for Leo. He is an enterprising boy and one whom people must like. Santa Monica has two of the best contestants in the crowd and may well be proud of its young citizens.

The week has rounded up gloriously, in spite of holiday interruptions. Many have scored and there are some who have waited until the next week to come. Some have not fairly started yet and there are others who have but just enrolled, so that we may rightly say that this was really a preliminary week's work and next week will see all well in line for the great race.

We wish to urge contestants to keep exact count of their scores, so far as possible. The scores are counted in the circulation department of The Times and also by the scholarship scorekeeper and it is our intention to have everything perfectly correct; but as no one in this world is infallible, we would like to have the contestants also keep a check on their scores so that there can be no misunderstandings nor dissatisfaction.

Have You As Many Teeth As You Need? Answer Me Personally

You said: If I could get these unsightly vacancies in my jaw filled with teeth that would feel and look like my own once did, Oh, how I would enjoy chewing a good, thick steak instead of compelling my stomach to do the work intended for teeth. And you said (as you looked into your mirror:) I want teeth that will return my mouth to its once youthful appearance. I don't want my mouth to be older than the balance of my face. I want a pleasing, attractive expression about my mouth, so my friends will think me good to look at. Furthermore, I want them comfortable and durable, and the work must be done gently and without pain.

All right, listen to what I say: I'll agree to every one of your demands and replace either one or twenty-eight (a full set) teeth equal in every respect to nature's best. And now to price—Can't you afford to take the time to come and get my estimate, together with expert advice, free, as to the best method of putting your teeth in first-class condition? Get busy.

FOR WOMEN AND MEN.

Facts, Features and Fancies.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

DAILY BEAUTY HINT: A cleansing and healing application for the complexion is made from the oils of nuts. It is prepared by a local specialist and is said by many who have used it to be most effective in the beautification of the complexion.

[illegible] is the logic of Fashion's rea[illegible] illustrated in the evolution of [illegible] garb into something really [illegible]fortable.

This time, as in several other in[illegible] it is polo which has wrought [illegible] transformation. A recently-de[illegible] polo costume for women con[illegible] of breeches, an easy-skirted coat, [illegible] to the knee, and a shirt [illegible] raglaned sleeves or sleeves cut [illegible] the elbow. The coat is made [illegible] sleeves. This gives complete [illegible] of action for the game. A [illegible] hat, which actually shades the [illegible] and does not give occasion to [illegible] about the blowing breezes, and [illegible] boots complete this delightfully [illegible]ated suit.

[illegible] particularly encourages me in [illegible] costume is the fact that comfort [illegible] so boldly sought in its con[illegible].

[illegible] courage mustered for the [illegible] of such clothes for sporting [illegible], I predict that it will not be [illegible] ere we have incorporated into [illegible] wardrobe for all occasions the [illegible] comfortable and healthful.

It is unbelievable that any who [illegible] experienced the freedom from [illegible] skirts and binding lingerie [illegible] ever willingly return to their [illegible].

[illegible]—there is in existence and ap[illegible] at rare intervals a truly [illegible] business suit for wom[illegible]. One of the Broadway merchants [illegible] me word the other day that he [illegible] something which would interest [illegible] within the next few hours it [illegible] purchased by a woman who had [illegible] eagerly awaiting such a suit. [illegible] suit was somewhat on the order [illegible] season's popular riding suit, [illegible] that instead of breeches there [illegible] comfortable skirt, with capa[illegible] pockets! Personally I believe [illegible] would be willing to swap breeches [illegible] pockets. As I have often said, we [illegible] be truly emancipated, how[illegible] many amendments are attached [illegible] the Constitution, until we have [illegible] and ample pockets, in order to [illegible] our hands from the burdens with [illegible] we at present encumber them.

[illegible] my fondness for fore[illegible] beautiful things as they are [illegible] unpacked, one of the big jew[illegible] houses which maintains a large [illegible] of fine art ware invited [illegible] to visit the stockrooms where a [illegible] consignment of European goods [illegible] just been received. Such fun as [illegible] to watch those foreign-looking [illegible] unpacked and to guess as the [illegible] emerged from its depths as to [illegible] might possibly be! There [illegible] marbles, fine bronzes, ex[illegible] lamps de luxe. One [illegible] piece was a kitten [illegible] gray marble, really kit[illegible] and having the actual ex[illegible] in the eyes, of a kitten [illegible]. Another piece represented [illegible] a Boston bull pup. [illegible] expression of his upcurled [illegible] uptilted nose was delicious, [illegible] marble was mottled in brown [illegible] exactly as is the coat of the [illegible] dog. When it came to the [illegible] and statuettes, these were [illegible] in their chaste carving and [illegible] expressions. A lovable nude [illegible] crying (in white marble) I [illegible] because he must don cloths, [illegible] he certainly looked quite well [illegible] without them. Two stubby[illegible] young birdlings were sipping [illegible] from their mother's bill. So [illegible] better than Nature's work [illegible] this that, could that wise dame [illegible] them, I fancy she would try [illegible] them in her next bird-in[illegible] from some hidden nest.

[illegible] novel combination of materials [illegible] in some of the jewel boxes and [illegible] trays with standards was of [illegible] with lace and hand-made rib[illegible] flowers! Such a strange consort[illegible] of the most filmy and ethereal [illegible] the sturdy would have been un[illegible] of daring heretofore. But [illegible] has decreed that effect shall [illegible] supreme aim, and that the [illegible] may wind whithersoever [illegible]. This is true of art which is [illegible] art, as well as art in dress and [illegible] decoration. I cannot [illegible] half about the beautiful arti[illegible] glimpsed in that delightful fore[illegible] of newly-imported beauty which [illegible] allowed to dote upon in the cool [illegible] of those receiving rooms; but [illegible] may see them soon, and I believe [illegible] even though I carried away a [illegible] full of their beauty, I robbed [illegible] of nothing in so doing. It will [illegible] there when you are given a [illegible]

[illegible] the desert sands are the [illegible] and camels are seen toil[illegible] weary way across the sunny [illegible] to some far oasis which is [illegible] gleaned. An oasis in the [illegible] merchandise is the note paper [illegible] is the raison d'etre for this [illegible] scene. It is called papyrus [illegible] in fact (or at least in effect) [illegible] from the fiber of this plant and [illegible] each corner of the liberal sheets [illegible] an Egyptian emblem, a [illegible] papyrus, a scarab, an ibis. The [illegible] are encased within in a [illegible] of Egyptian brown tissue and [illegible] is wound with strands of [illegible] papyrus. Truly beautiful and [illegible] is this stationery, and worthy [illegible] gift from friend to friend. [illegible] like good bargains, but [illegible] you see them you will say that [illegible] has not been told." Those [illegible] and sheets which are on [illegible] one of the big Broadway [illegible] I am talking about. Some are [illegible] made from the very best [illegible] and some are hem[illegible] and some are both hem[illegible] and embroidered with a [illegible] edge! The price is less than [illegible] many kinds in less fine qual[illegible] goods, and all the beautifica[illegible] added. These are really the [illegible] in such articles that I [illegible]

Fine Frock Materials.

Dress crash in all the popular summer shades and in white with borders in colors woven in effects with crash—this is a frock goods bargain for the week in one of the big Broadway stores. The borders are very refined in design and dainty in colorings and the effect of ratine upon crash is excellent. The woman who is handy with her needle can fashion for herself a most fetching frock at very little cost, if she avails herself of this sale and it will be a frock fit to wear anywhere.

A New Kind of Kitchen Apron.

A kitchen apron made from rubber is the latest in the way of sanitary household devices. This apron is really good looking, too, being of checked or plain patterns, and the washableness and wearableness are unlimited, in addition to the fact that it will really protect the clothing beneath. For washing dishes or cooking, when one is in outdoor garb, such an apron would be most valuable.

George Washington Silver.

Silver in the exact reproduction of that used at Mt. Vernon in the old days—this was what the national holiday brought out in the windows of a large Broadway jewelry house which makes a specialty of fine silverware. The flat silver and the larger table pieces are all in exact similitude of the George Washington pattern. While this collection was used, in the midst of bunting and flags, as a symbol of the patriotic occasion, it is always kept in stock by this reliable and well-equipped house.

For Suit Case Frocks.

For making the week-end frock to pack in the suit-case—because it will not crease—the one-piece dress of shantung will not soon be replaced. I saw in one of the Broadway stores a new importation of this useful and summery fabric, which was unusually good and inexpensive. With touches of the bright colors which are so much used this season for collars, cuffs, vests and sashes or sash ends, such material can be worn by anyone of whatever complexion. For motoring, in the shape of long, loose cloaks, shantung is also most available, as well as for railroad travel, since it sheds dust so readily and always appears fresh and crisp.

Of Import to All.

A sale of import to all who love beautiful articles, is that annual clearance which begins today. Every one knows about this eventful sale and many watch it to procure at great reductions the many things which they "have always wanted." Oriental brasses and China wares, kimonos and goods for making these, as well as crepes both cotton and silk for summery frocks and underwear, the useful and artistic white and blue napery and towelling which finds so may place in both summer and winter homes—in fact, everything usually carried in stock at this well and favorably-known oriental store, will be included in this much-for-less sale.

Cooking as a Fine Art.

FOR WOMEN HOMEKEEPERS

FASCINATING TALK ON A FASCINATING ART.

Open House and Free Lessons Three Days in the Week, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, in Afternoon, Second Floor New "Times" Building.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

It is with feelings of pleasurable anticipation that we learn that Mrs. Haffner-Ginger's cookery lessons will be resumed in the Times Building on Monday. Doubtless the attractions of July 4th would have proved the stronger had she elected to lecture on that day, but we cannot get along without her for one more day.

Especially as the weather is distinctly warmish and she proposes to concoct a number of irresistible and utterly delectable salads for our benefit. One can concentrate on salads this weather without the slightest ennui or exertion—it is probably the one subject upon which we can evolve a little enthusiasm.

Age cannot wither nor custom stale the infinite variety of Mrs. Haffner-Ginger's salads—salads to inspire poets, salads upon which to found operas, salads that, committed to canvas, would make the reputation of an artist. The sort of salads that encourage us to live a little longer, salads to charm, to propitiate, to console, to woo.

There are many kinds of salads—cafeteria salads, church social salads, picnic salads, camp salads, family salads, sister Emma's salads, club salads, combination salads, French, German, British, Spanish and American salads, ship salads, desert salads, and a variety of mild affairs known as cucumber salads, lettuce salads, beetroot salads, tomato salads and potato salads.

All very estimable in their way—nice respectable, well-meaning salads and much, much better than no salad, but not one single one of them has attained to the realms of soulful supremity as is given to the salads which materialize under the deft fingers of the archcook. Mrs. Ginger's salads are to ordinary salads what the sun is to a half-penny rushlight, and we housewives of high ideals can no more afford to miss this opportunity of sharing her secret processes than we could—well, miss getting married.

We are to be initiated into the wonderful possibilities of many kinds of vegetable salads, luscious, piquant affairs that spoil the palate for the club combination salad for ever after. Seductive fruit salads, juicy, concentrated paradise—the kind of salads that make us forget our woes and count life one prolonged joy. Chicken salads, fish salads, meat salads but not the kind we know under those unpretentious titles—all these and much more will be demonstrated unto us.

After that, of course, we shall never have the face to serve an ordinary salad again. Our whole ideals on salads will have been elevated to a higher plain and henceforth we shall learn to think imperially when it iomes to the esthetic combination of the component parts of the subtle thing called salad.

I once knew a great tenor who was wont to keep vast audiences enthralled who still took greater credit unto himself because he knew how to make A salad. Only one salad he knew, but what a salad! Had he served no other item on his menu we should have all flocked to his house for a taste of that single salad. It is told also of Ellen Terry that she, too, shines at salad mixing and insists upon making everything that appears on her table under that heading with her own dramatic hands. Bernard Shaw, as well known, is a virulent vegetarian—and I am firmly convinced that it is because someone once made him a salad that was a salad and spoilt his palate for anything more mundane for evermore.

There is no end to the variety of the salad and, properly made, it fills the fullest requirements for nourishment. Which is the most comforting thing I can think of to tell you since after tomorrow's lecture you will assuredly yearn for salad three times a day and aught else will find you indifferent. They have a salad in England which is known by the ever-attractive title of Salade a la Americaine. The ingredient is grape fruit, I remember, and there is quite a noticeable dash of something naughty—if it was rum it would not taste any different. I have never been able to get just that salad in America but no self-respecting hotel in any of the other large cities of the world would dare confess ignorance thereof.

Another, known as Parisian, was invented in London and meets with much favor here—that is chiefly strawberries and brandy and frozen cream—so I don't know how poor dear Long Beach is ever to make the acquaintance of these wondrous things. But Mrs. Haffner-Ginger can doubtless prescribe for their sad case—we shall flock in our regiments—likewise our very summeriest attire—to hear and see what she has for us tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

NAMING A JAPANESE BABY.

Sometimes It Is a Simple Affair, but Frequently the Whole Family Settles It by a Real Lottery.

[Pittsburgh Gazette:] Often the naming of a Japanese baby is a simple matter, the father or grandfather speaking before the company the name of some famous man if the child is a boy, or of some favorite flower if it is a girl. For girls, Hana, flower; Yuki, snow; Ai, love, are the favorites of parents with a poetical strain.

The sterner country folk choose for their daughters, Matsu, pine; Take, bamboo (the bamboo joints are exact, hence the exactness of virtue;) Ume, plum, since the plum bears both cold and snow bravely. For boys, Ichiro, first boy; Toshio, smart; Iwao, strong, and Isamu, brave, are very popular.

Where belief is strong in the power of a name the family, in holiday dress, often assembled in a large room. Each writes a name upon a slip of paper and lays it reverently before the house shrine. From the group a very young child is chosen and led before this shine, and the fate of the name is decided by the small hand which reaches out for a slip. Though it is a festive occasion, the selection of a name is made with a seriousness worthy the election of a bishop. Many believe devoutly that this rite influences the baby's entire future, and therefore the one whose slip is chosen incurs from the moment of choice great responsibility for the child's welfare.

Farm Ideas
For Farmers

(Others will please not read)

A FARMER working on a large field of poor land is like a Lost Voice Crying in the Wilderness. He may putter along for years and wheedle a meager living from such soil.

But the farmer who goes onto say 20, 40 or 60 acres of fertile land where the water is already flowing in large volumes from big pumps, is so sure of success that the difference is he can feed full ears instead of nubbins; it means bumper crops, not lean crops; in short, success, not failure.

When I offer you such fertile land in the Perris Valley at $150 an acre with water rights free, it is like inviting you to sit down with me to eat a fat, juicy, standard-bred Pekin duck that will dress 5 pounds when ten weeks old; but if you insist on going out and buying wild, uncultivated land, you will have to eat "Spoonbill" that has eked out an existence in the salt marshes.

Perris Irrigated Farms, a well settled, modern community, is only two miles from a $25,000 High School and the hustling town of Perris, a railroad center, with its churches and fraternal orders, bank, shops, stores and lumber yards. These Farms are proven fertile. To live on one of them is in itself a reward. Keep your eyes open and watch the upward trend of values there. Remember Nature is unkind to the unwise.

Perris Valley is a great demonstrated alfalfa and fruit section where you can buy and have time enough for the land to pay for itself. Alfalfa is the hinge on which your fortune may turn! Delays are dangerous!

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

WATER POLICY IS OUTLINED.

Dam Across Arroyo Seco the Eventual Outcome.

Board of Education Accepts High School Group.

Gates's Escapade Sets Pasadena Tongues Wagging.

PASADENA, July 5.—The policy that will probably be carried out by the City Commission, so far as immediate steps to increase the water supply of the city are concerned, was announced yesterday by City Commissioner M. H. Salisbury. His recommendation is that a new well be drilled now, probably in the northeastern part of the city, at a cost of about $25,000, and that it be made the custom of the city to add a new well to the system each year.

This, he says, would serve the immediate need, and he hopes in a year or two to have a bond election called for voting on the issuance of proposed bonds with which to put a dam across the Arroyo Seco. This project, according to his estimates, would cost about $125,000.

"I have no intention of urging a bond election for some time," he said last night, "but, so far as I am concerned, my policy is to develop the possibilities we have in our own property before going outside of the city for additional water. That which would be desirable would not be a concrete dam, but a system of dams constructed of boulders and so arranged that the water in the Arroyo Seco, instead of running largely to waste when we have our rains, would be absorbed in the soil there in the canyon, and thus be held back until much later in the season. The scheme is not original with me. It has been carried out in many other parts of the country and has met with much success. The North Pasadena Land and Water Company before it sold its holdings to the city estimated that the cost of such an improvement would be $125,000, and I think that it could be done for this. The place for the dam would be a point about three-quarters of a mile below Dark Canyon.

"Such a dam would materially increase the supply of water from the arroyo and would also increase the flow in some of the city's wells. With such an improvement it would be a long time before Pasadena would have to secure water from outside sources.

"As to the well that I want to see drilled now, there will be $63,000 left over the expenses of the water department for the next year, and I want to see about $25,000 of this used for the improvement. This amount would pay for the drilling of the well and the installing of a motor-driven pump.

ACCEPT NEW BUILDINGS.

The Pasadena Board of Education met yesterday forenoon and closed up its business preparatory to the installation of the new members of the board and the consequent reorganization, which will take place tomorrow. With the final payments to the contractors who erected the new Polytechnic High School buildings, the board accepted them, and practically everything pertaining to the new school has been permanently fixed. Some furniture remains yet to be installed and then the buildings will be ready for use when school opens next fall.

The largest payment made yesterday was the final payment to W. C. Crowell, the general contractor. The amount was $42,175. Munger & Munger and E. O. Nay, plumbing contractor and contractor for installation of the heating and ventilating system, respectively, were others who were paid yesterday.

Although they had no official part in the proceedings, the newly-elected members of the board were present at the session yesterday in order to familiarize themselves with the work that is in hand.

On recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Rhodes, the appointment of the following new teachers was yesterday approved: Roy Bond, intermediate school; Carl H. Carson, High School, history; Ada Kennedy, grammar schools, home economics; C. E. Hill, principal of grammar school; Miss Helen Lamphere, grammar grades; Katherine McGorray, High School, home economics; T. J. Lang, normal training; grades; A. J. Misner, High School, commercial department; W. H. Nichols, High School, instructor in engineering F. B. School, High School, manual training; Caroline N. Van Nuys, grades; C. H. Preston, principal of Lowell School; Helen Gilliland, grammar grades; Eleanor Kitchen, physical education, and Lulu Foreman, Clara Crosman and Guerney P. Hill, grammar grades.

Superintendent Rhodes reported that the enrollment of the summer school that was opened several days ago will exceed 600 pupils.

STREETS TORN UP.

Much complaint is being made by residents of Oak Knoll because the city water department has neglected to place red lanterns on the streets, although it has piled dirt high there, where trenches have been dug for both new water and gas mains. Hillcrest avenue is dug up for its entire length, and the last few nights there have been no lights, they declare, and many automobile accidents have been narrowly averted.

Extensive street improvements are being made in Oak Knoll, so that many of the streets there are almost impassable and residents are finding it difficult to get to and from their homes in their automobiles.

ARE ENTHUSIASTIC.

Many Oak Knoll people and others are impatient to congratulate Frank Verbeck, the winner of the Los Angeles-Sacramento road race, who, for some time has been the chauffeur for E. E. Hewlett of that section and who is well known among automobile people of the city.

He has long been noted for his penchant for speeding. The desire to "let his car loose" has led him into encounters with "speed cops," both in Pasadena and South Pasadena.

CREATES INTEREST HERE.

The news from Minneapolis of the excitement caused there when Charles G. Gates, millionaire stock broker and son of the late "Bet-you-a-million" Gates, created a scene by refusing to leave a restaurant where he had set out to order liquid refreshments and shower large tips on the waiters and members of the orchestra, has caused much discussion here. Mr. and Mrs. Gates were in the city the greater part of last winter, and announced their intention of returning next winter. They were at the Hotel Maryland for some time, and later lived in Oak Knoll. Gates talked some of making Pasadena his permanent home.

MANY IN MOUNTAINS.

The succession of three holidays has resulted in the mountains near Pasadena being overrun with "hikers" and campers from the city, Los Angeles and all Southern California. Last night there were over 400 on the summit of Mt. Wilson alone. A dance was given at Strain's Camp, where all attended in khaki attire, and other amusements were arranged for the visitors at the hotel. The traffic up Mt. Lowe has been heavy and there were over 200 persons last night at Switzer's and other camps in the Arroyo Seco. Many picnic parties were held in the mountains the Fourth, others yesterday, and there are to be many more today. Practically all of the large auto trucks in the city are in demand for this purpose.

WELL-KNOWN COUPLE WED.

Miss Eudora Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Graham, No. 523 South Hudson avenue, and Aubrey St. Clair, son of the late Norman St. Clair, a well-known artist and architect, were married at the home of Rev. A. L. G. Trew of Ivanhoe last Thursday night. Relatives and friends were present. Commissioner and Mrs. M. H. Salisbury gave a wedding dinner in their honor at their home, No. 11 North Mentor avenue, last Friday. Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair will make their home at No. 312 South Lake avenue. The bridegroom is a draftsman in the office of the city water department.

STILL GOING AT REDONDO.

Thousands of People Remain Over Saturday and Will Return Sunday Night—Interesting Programme.

REDONDO BEACH, July 5.—The biggest celebration ever held here and the largest crowd that has ever visited Redondo Beach marked the national holiday yesterday and today. Flags flying, bands playing and the noise of the firecracker all told of Independence Day.

More than 45,000 persons came here on the electric cars which gave a seven-minute service from Los Angeles, and in automobiles, although the majority of the automobile crowd did not come until in the afternoon.

The programme planned by B. A. Minor, manager of the water front for the Pacific Electric, was carried out without a hitch from the flag-raising until the grand fireworks display.

But one slight accident occurred and the vast crowd seemed to comprise only jolly individuals bent on having a good time.

A pretty ceremony attending the raising of a large flag from a pole 114 feet high opened the programme. The big flag measuring 35 feet by 18 feet was unfurled from the pole by little Mary Senft. The national salute of twenty-one guns was given, a bugler played the call "To the Colors" and 300 school children sang the "Star-Spangled Banner," led by Charles Watson, cornetist.

The fife and drum corps of Civil War veterans from the Inglewood G.A.R. was one of the interesting features of the day. The aged veterans came down from Inglewood and throughout the day played the fife and drum as they marched along El Paseo. The members of the corps are E. A. Spaulding, W. E. Hessick and J. K. Bishop snare drums, George W. Leftwich, bass drum, and H. Enlow, fife.

Band concerts, dancing, races for the children, swimming races, diving exhibitions, a life-saving drill by the life guards, out-of-door vaudeville and a magnificent display of fireworks from the end of Wharf No. 1 comprised the programme.

Thousands bathed in the surf and bathers waited in line for nearly an hour at the bath house to secure accommodations, as every one of the 7000 suits was pressed into service and more needed. All of the amusements were crowded from morning to night.

A number of children became separated from their parents during the day but even they shared the general good nature of the crowd and patiently waited at the Police Station until found by their parents. Several youngsters fell into the deep plunge of the bath house and were promptly rescued by the life guards. The children promptly began their swimming again though they refrained from going in the deep tank.

A sensation was created along El Paseo when some English women with their escorts calmly made their appearance and strolled along with cigarettes in their mouths. The sight was too much for the police officers who requested the women to cease smoking in public and their request was at once acceded to by the fair smokers.

A number of jolly parties picnicked on the beach and had displays of fireworks. One of the merriest of these was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy on the beach to relatives and friends. Bathing, games on the beach and fireworks were enjoyed by the members of the party which included Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Van Kaathven and daughter Alice, Mr. and Mrs. Volney Howard, Mrs. J. J. Mellus, Mrs. A. J. Howard, Mrs. Samuel Brown Thomas, Miss Aileen McCarthy, Miss Katherine Mellus, Miss Jean McCarthy, Bruce MacNeil, Arthur and Herbert Howard and little E. Avery McCarthy, Jr.

Santa Monica.

EARLY CLOSING IS FAVORED.

Santa Monica Council May Reject Recent Advice.

Impetus Given Plan for a Municipal Auditorium.

Officials Are Preparing for Annual Road Race.

SANTA MONICA, July 5.—Despite the recommendation to the contrary by the Police Commission, the City Council will probably pass an ordinance closing the doors of all cafes and other liquor-serving places at 12 o'clock.

The fear that the question of making Santa Monica a dry town may enter into the municipal election in the fall is given as a reason for the change of front by the Councilmen. The cafes are now allowed to remain open all night if they desire, and, until this week, sold liquor until 1 o'clock. Last evening at all the cafes the guests, it is stated, were privately given the tip that no more liquor would be sold after 12 o'clock and that they had better stock up. As a result every guest who so took advantage of the present regulations did not suffer from lack of wet goods. Cafe owners state that the proposed law will work a hardship upon them, as theater parties from Los Angeles seldom get here until near midnight.

AUDITORIUM PROJECT.

The move to give this city a municipally-owned auditorium, built of concrete, was given an impetus by the organization of the Santa Monica Bay Chautauqua Association, which will work hard for the plan.

The officers of the association are: Rev. J. L. Lobingier, president; Miss Charlena Welch, secretary, and the following were appointed a nominating Committee to select new officers: Arthur L. Waterhouse, Mrs. R. Z. Gill and Miss Welch. There will be seven members of the board of directors. A committee, consisting of Rev. W. K. Beans, F. H. Taft and Miss Charlotte Kisner, was appointed to draw up a constitution. The next chautauqua will be held after school closes next year.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Dolbey Tooker, aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Tooker, was accidentally shot while at the Grand Canyon with his parents yesterday, according to a dispatch received by the lad's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Tooker. DICKER IS IN PROSPECT.

Pacific Electric Will Grant Certain Favors to South Pasadena on Reciprocity Basis.

SOUTH PASADENA, July 5.—The Pacific Electric will apply to the Trustees of this city within a short time for a franchise to electrize the Southern Pacific tracks in South Pasadena, with a double track, and a permit to run express trains through the city. Various guesses have been made as to the attitude of the Trustees. One report was that a trade was to be offered, by which South Pasadena would obtain service by means of a new short line, running through Schuetzen Park, to the present short line at Rose Hill, in return for which the franchise for the improvement of the Southern Pacific would be requested.

Another alternative suggested was that if this city showed no disposition to make a bargain whereby Pasadena could be given a swift outlet via the Southern Pacific tracks, the present steam road franchise would be utilized, and the express trains would run from Pasadena through this city by locomotives, which would place South Pasadena at the mercy of the railway company, which would be acting entirely within its legal rights.

On the other hand, it has been stated by residents of this city that there will be no opposition to the electrizing of the Southern Pacific line, or to the running of express trains through the city, if one sole condition is complied with. This condition is, however, a great obstacle, as it involves the expenditure of many thousands of dollars, being the lowering of the Southern Pacific tracks, and the building of overhead bridges at all street crossings. The Pacific Electric will not consider this, it is alleged, as it would be too great an expenditure for the mere shortening of the running schedule for service which would create little new business, and merely be an added convenience to territory already being served fairly well.

Until the franchise application is made by the Pacific public hearing held, than mere guesses can either side. Neither the tric nor the Trustees have final statement, or commit selves to any specific course news that an application made is welcomed as that in the near future will be definitely decided the other.

LARGEST ON THE COAST.

Colton Is Promised One of the Greatest Factories on the Pacific Slope—News Briefs.

COLTON, July 5.—The largest cotton mill on the Pacific Coast is to be right here in Colton. Such is the announcement that has sent this little community up into an ecstacy, for even the most optimistic of the city's boosters feared that the project was but a dream which would have a rude awakening.

Now, however, that M. P. Durham, promoter of the cotton factory, has selected a site from among the three offered him free by Colton citizens and has ordered his grading crews to begin work immediately, there is every reason to believe that the mill is a certainty.

The site selected comprises ten acres on the east side of Mt. Vernon avenue, just south of its junction with Colton avenue, and is known as the James Maxwell and W. W. Cabel places. It is near the Riverside-San Bernardino new Pacific Electric road, and will have excellent railroad facilities.

S. W. Williams, a Los Angeles engineer, accompanied Mr. Durham to Colton and aided in running the temporary lines for the location of the factory, which is to be known as the Olympia Cotton Mills. There will be five large buildings, all of reinforced concrete; main factory, three stories high, with fourteen-foot basement, 118x526 feet; bleaching-rooms, 280x75 feet; dyeing-room, 268x75 feet; bleaching-rooms, 260x115 feet; office building, 90x40 feet. In the factory at the start will be 90,000 mule spindles, which will be run continuously night and day with three shifts of hands, the expected employment being that of 2500 persons. With the immediate additions and extensions, once the mill is in running order, it will be the largest in the United States. The ground not used for other purposes will be attractively laid out and parked with a fine lawn and flowers.

The coming of the great industry is one of the best things that has ever fallen to the lot of the Hub City, and is the result of the recent formation of a booster club, who offered free sites to reliable manufacturies. Right away the Industrial Committee will set about collecting the money pledged by the people of Colton for just this purpose, although to the credit of Mr. Durham he offered to advance the necessary funds for the purchase of his factory site if necessary.

Real estate has already taken a boost, and plans are being made for the erection of many new houses for the inrush of laborers from the outside.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The Paonessa Construction Company is rapidly pushing the street-paving work along, and it looks good to the eyes of the townspeople to behold smoothly-paved blocks where once the main street resembled a country road in winter time. HEMET PASTORS TO ASSAULT SATAN IN CONJUNCTION.

Expert Offers the Opinion that Oranges Will Only Yield One-third of Normal Crop on Account of the Frost—Sewer System Is Accepted by Trustees.

HEMET, July 5.—The union meetings for the summer, which are held every year by the various churches, will commence Sunday at the Baptist Church. Rev. A. E. Weston, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon, and George Lunt, a choirster of considerable note, will have charge of the music for the three months' meetings. The pastors of the various churches will alternate in the preaching services on Sunday.

THIRD ORANGE CROP.

Much speculation has been indulged in over the prospect for the citrus crop in the Hemet Valley this year, and until recently it has largely been guess work. While only the young trees were frozen or seriously damaged, it was generally believed that the freezing of the leaves would interfere with the bloom. It is the opinion of George E. Lunt, who, probably, is as familiar with citrus culture as any person in this part of the State, that the valley will produce nearly a third of a normal crop. This opinion is shared by other experts. Several new groves are being set out and orange men are going ahead with the work with renewed energy.

WALNUT CROP BOUGHT.

V. H. Vross, representing Smith & Miner, Santa Ana, was in the valley this week and contracted for the walnut crop at $12.25 a hundred, a much larger price than is usually commanded. The crop of the valley will amount to about fifty tons. There are a large number of young orchards here and within the next few years the walnut crop will be double what it is at present.

SEWER SYSTEM ACCEPTED.

The sewer system was accepted by the Board of Trustees at their meeting Tuesday evening, and the final payment was made to the contractor, J. F. McMullen.

The sewer system, including the forty-acre sewer farm, has cost $42,000, and covers eleven miles of the incorporated city. Property owners are connecting with the system at a rapid rate. To provide for the sewer system the city issued $44,000 in bonds, which were sold, including premium and accrued interest, to Torrence, Marshall & Co., of Los Angeles for $47,000.

COMMERCIAL CLUB MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Hemet Commercial Club will be held in the basement of the Carnegie Library building Tuesday evening, July 8. Reports from the various officers of the club will be made, and plans for the future work of the club will be mapped out. The Hemet Commercial Club has maintained offices and a display-room in the Operahouse building and has had an able secretary in the person of A. L. Aylesworth on duty the year round.

MANY WELLS PUT DOWN.

Numerous wells are being sunk in the western part of the valley, and well drillers have been taxed to handle the work. Los Angeles and Santa Ana capitalists have purchased large acreage in that section and are having water developed. Among the large sales made recently was the John Rosa 400-acre ranch west of Hemet, which was sold to the W. I. Hollingsworth Company of Los Angeles for a consideration of $34,000. Five years ago this same ranch was bought by Mr. Rosa for $5000. Another large sale was consummated this week when C. E. Carpenter of Los Angeles purchased through B. H. Crow of San Jacinto, the Maple Leaf ranch for a consideration of $32,000. The Graham Farm Lands Company, through John Deegan of Hemet, has also purchased 725 acres of land near the Cawston Ostrich Farm, five miles northwest of San Jacinto. Many other smaller sales have been made during the past few weeks which indicate that the section known as the dry lands west of Hemet is rapidly coming to the front.

MINOR HAPPENINGS.

J. G. West, who is slated by Congressman Kettner to be the next postmaster of Hemet, has moved to town from Oakcliff. C. O. Gillett, the present postmaster, has two more years to serve, and will in all probability hold on to the job till his term expires.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bartlett have returned from Los Angeles, with plans for their new residence which will be erected upon the site of their former palatial residence which was destroyed by fire a month ago. The building will be mission style, of concrete, two stories, and will cost over $10,000. It will be one of the most elegant homes in Hemet.

Rev. J. F. Moody left for San Francisco yesterday, being called there by a telegram stating his brother, Judge Frank Moody, was in a serious condition and would have to undergo an operation. Later advices state that Judge Moody survived a serious operation for intestinal trouble, but that unless complications set up he will recover.

Dr. Douglas H. Morse of San Francisco, who recently purchased a large ranch on the Hemet tract, has opened an office in the Operahouse building and will engage in the practice of medicine.

Percy Davis, formerly principal of the Hemet grammar school, left yesterday for San Diego, with his family, where he will reside. He has purchased an interest in the Coast Product Company and will be treasurer of the concern.

M. Aden was taken to Riverside yesterday, where he had to have his left leg taken off, on account of gangrene having set in. Mr. Aden has been suffering from a dropsical condition of the feet for several months and recently he bruised his left foot. The sore would not heal, and he was compelled to undergo an operation to save his life. He rallied from the operation and Riverside physicians state he will recover.

S. J. Gabler, the tailor, broke his right leg in jumping from the laundry truck yesterday evening.

R. R. Palmer has sold the Hemet garage to C. M. Crosson and Mr. Whetstone, formerly of Santa Ana, but who recently purchased a garage at San Jacinto. Mr. Crosson is working on a patent automobile tire which seems to be a winner. The tire is made of a steel band and springs and will do away with rubber.

H. O. G. Kolisch, who has been in Hemet for the past several months, left yesterday for Germany.

ORANGE BRIEFS.

ORANGE, July 5.—Today Mrs. H. W. Shell received a telegraphic message stating that her husband, a mine superintendent, had been accidentally killed at Havilah, Kern county, where his mine is located. Details of the tragedy are not known here. Shell's wife and children have been living here for two years that the children might go to school.

Harry Wagers, employee of the gas works at Santa Ana, was riding to his home here last night when he collided with another bicyclist. Partly stunned and bleeding profusely from cuts through his lips, Wagers sat beside the road. The other bicyclist struck a match, seeing the blood on Wagers's face, took fright. He rode away, leaving Wagers to take care of himself.

HEMET TAKES TWO DAYS FOR GREAT CELEBRATION

HEMET, July 5.—The biggest celebration in the history of the San Jacinto Valley, after a two days' run of continual pleasures and hair-raising incidents, closed at the Hemet Stock Farm this afternoon with the "round up," a genuine wild-west exhibition, in which cowboys and cattlemen vied with each other in daring stunts characteristic of the frontier.

The celebration, which commenced yesterday at 8 o'clock, was one continual round of pleasure from start to finish. From 8 o'clock a.m. till 10:30 the large crowd was entertained with athletic events and automobile and motorcycle races on Florida avenue, one of the prettiest and best driveways in this section of the State. Liberal prizes were given the winners of the various events, and everyone was happy. The automobile and motorcycle races were the great feature of the morning's programme, and some of the most daring riders and drivers entered the races and contested every point for the honors.

MAKES ONE MILE A MINUTE.

There were a half dozen or more entries in the motorcycle races, and three of the riders, Lloyd Hallock, Albert Todd and Clyde Blackwell, negotiated the mile course in less than one minute. Previous to entering the automobile races Elwin Rowell, a daring driver, made an exhibition mile in one minute in a stripped automobile, which he built especially for the occasion. In the ten-mile race Rowell won, negotiating the distance in less than fifteen minutes. J. H. Spencer was a close second.

SAN JACINTO WINS.

In the ball game between Hemet and San Jacinto teams at 10:30 on the High School grounds, the San Jacinto team won the $25 cash prize, the score being 21 to 11. Hemet and San Jacinto imported players, but the pitcher who came from Los Angeles to twirl for Hemet, was unable to stand the excessive heat and threw up the sponge in the first inning. This lost the game to San Jacinto.

BALLOON ASCENSION.

In the afternoon races at the Hemet Stock Farm under the auspices of the Hemet Driving Club, and a balloon ascension by H. R. Young of Seattle furnished a programme worth seeing. Besides numerous trotting, running and burro races there were two events under the rules of the National Trotting Association, namely, a farmer's trot, three best heats in five, and a special trot, in which horses owned by the Hemet Stock Farm participated. In the farmer's trot, Gray Morse, owned by Lee Minnich, trotted a mile in 2:52 and won the three heats. In the special trot Betsy Direct, owned by the Hemet Stock Farm, won the two heats and made the mile in 2:26. The side-splitting event of the programme was the half-mile burro race in which two girls and three boys entered. Miss Pearl Blair, a mountain girl, negotiated the half mile in 2:15 and won the bridle and $5 in cash. The balloon ascension was one of the best exhibitions ever given. The day's programme closed with a grand ball at the operahouse.

"ROUND UP" A THRILLER.

The "round up" at the Hemet Stock Farm, which closed this afternoon, was the finale of the big celebration, and every number was a thriller. Wild mountain horses, daring and intrepid cow punchers and Indians, furnished an exhibition which eclipsed anything of the kind ever seen in this section. Several of the horsemen, who took part in the Los Angeles Rodeo, were here and took part and carried away cash prizes earned at the risk of their lives. The event was such a great success that it is the intention of the promoters to make it a yearly occurrence.

Not an accident occurred during the two days' big celebration, and it is also worthy of note that there were no drunks or disturbances of any kind on the streets. The great success of the celebration is largely due to J. H. Scales, C. M. Dietterich, Mayor H. P. Shaw, E. C. Warner and several others, who were untiring in their efforts to give the people something worth while. The San Jacinto band rendered music on both days, and Hemet royally entertained the several hundred visitors, who came from a distance.

FRAUDULENT LOVE MAKING.

ORANGE COUNTY COURT FINDS FOR THE WOMAN.

Bennett Baxter Claimed to Hold a Contract, but It Did Not Show that He Had Given Anything for His Alleged Equity—Short News Stories.

SANTA ANA, July 5.—By a decision rendered by Judge West, the court finds that Bennett Baxter's love making was a fraud practiced upon Maud Alice Clay, a neighbor. The judge in his opinion states that when Baxter entered into an agreement to marry the woman he had no intention of carrying out the promise.

Miss Clay owns a ranch in the Golden State tract east of Anaheim. Recently she brought suit against Baxter to quiet title to that land. Baxter set up that he had a contract against the property. That contract was to the effect that he should plant the land to trees, care for them and receive a portion of the land. The contract contained a clause by which Baxter should get the land even should it be found that lack of water would prevent carrying out the project.

In her testimony the woman stated that she was persuaded into making the contract. She said that without any cause that she could fathom Baxter's attitude toward her suddenly became cold.

Judge West gave judgment for the woman, declaring that Baxter secured the contract without giving any consideration and that he has no title or interest to any of the land claimed by Miss Clay.

DRUNKEN DRIVER.

Last night a buggy in which Harry Hicks and his brother-in-law were riding was run down by an automobilist who was traveling without lights and in a zig-zag manner to indicate that he was intoxicated. The buggy was hit from behind and three wheels were torn off it. The two men were badly bruised, but had no bones broken. The automobilist did not stop to see what damage had been done. He increased his speed and the last seen of him he was having difficulty in keeping the machine in the road.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Efforts were made today without success by the Southern Pacific officials to locate P. L. Miller, supposed to be of Santa Ana, on a message from Bakersfield that stated that P. L. Miller's son, also with P. L. as initials, had been killed at Mojave. He was asleep under a car and lived two hours after his injury. So far as can be learned there is no P. L. Miller here.

Today the ancient bones of an Indian were unearthed in a gravel pit on Chester Smith's ranch on Mitchell avenue. Several of the teeth were deeply worn, indicating that the Indian was old when death came. In this same gravel pit about fifteen years ago a number of stone utensils were found.

Mrs. Francisco Herrera asked the police today to help find her daughter, Juana, aged 15. Juana climbed out of her bedroom window last night. Barefooted she went to the tent occupied by Jose Veloz, who is also missing. From that place her tracks showed that she had put on her shoes.

With a yellowtail weighing seventeen and a half pounds, Victor Walker yesterday set a heavy fish record for the Orange County Rod and Reel Club. The fish was caught off the shore between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach with a nine-ounce rod and a nine-strand line. Walker played the fish for forty minutes before he took him into the launch.

W. B. Marshall, an old man, was knocked down by Robert Appel's motorcycle yesterday at the corner of Fourth and Main streets. He escaped with a sprained wrist.

Health and Beauty Helps

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Clara: I know parnotis will greatly reduce your weight, and when this is done you will feel much better and healthier. To prepare the treatment, get from your druggist 4 ounces parnotis and dissolve in 1½ pints hot water, then take a tablespoonful at meal time. This acts gradually and gently and safely reduces weight without resorting to violent exercise or dieting. This treatment is far superior to any "patent" fat reducer, for the reason that the graceful lines of the figure are regained and the flesh and skin are left firm and smooth.

Alma: Beautiful eyebrows and lashes will add greatly to the expression of your eyes. Rubbing pyroxin on eyebrows will make them grow thick and beautiful, and frequent applications of pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger will cause them to come in long and curly. Use care and don't get any pyroxin where hair is not wanted.

Anxious: This is the only safe, certain hair-remover: Mix into a paste enough delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, cleanse the skin and the hairs will have vanished. Rarely is the second application necessary to remove even a stubborn growth.

Genevieve: You can easily and quickly cleanse your hair and scalp with canthrox, and the shampoo is so refreshing and invigorating that you will never again use or permit the use of soap or other mussy, harmful mixtures for this purpose. Just dissolve a teaspoonful canthrox in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After rinsing, the hair will dry very quickly and take on a rich, even color and beautiful gloss. Canthrox is especially nice for hot weather shampoos, because it stimulates and invigorates the scalp's tissues and makes the head feel so exhilarated.

Auntie: Yes, that old-fashioned kardene tonic will do you a great amount of good, I am sure. Here is the recipe: To prepare, add 1 ounce kardene to ½ pint alcohol (whisky should not be used,) then ½ cupful sugar and hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and you will be surprised how quickly your strength and appetite return. The kardene tonic is fine for any kidney or liver trouble and will clear the skin or sallowness, blotches, pimples and other complexion faults, as well as make you weigh exactly what you should.

Minnie: You should use a crystos eye-tonic, as it is very soothing and restful to tired, aching eye muscles. This tonic is made at small cost by dissolving 1 ounce crystos in 1 pint clear water and 2 or 3 drops of this should be put in the bothersome eye until a cure is effected. The crystos eye-tonic is strengthening to weak, watery eyes and gives to them a delightful sparkle and youthful expression. With the aid of the crystos eye-tonic it is frequently possible to discard glasses.

Lucy: Nature exacts heavy tolls when her laws are violated. Your skin has been abused by powder. An ordinary spurmax lotion, made by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, into which is stirred 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine, is far superior to powder when on and seems part of the skin, and its use will give a rose-blush and velvety smoothness to any complexion. I can highly recommend the spurmax lotion for clearing the skin of all complexion disfigurements and bringing back the healthy glow of youth to the aged, weather-marred or powder-ruined skin.

Jennie: No, quinzoin hair tonic cannot possibly injure the hair. Quinzoin itself is the most beneficial remedy of which I know for all hair and scalp troubles, and when it is made up according to my simple directions is better than any hair tonic you ever used. To prepare, just add 1 ounce quinzoin to ½ pint alcohol, then pour in ½ pint water. This inexpensive tonic stops the irritation almost instantly and its use will banish dandruff and make your scalp healthy. Then a beautiful growth of long, silken hair will follow.

Annice: Make your own greaseless cream-jelly wrinkle-remover at little cost by pouring 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine into ½ pint cold water, then adding 1 ounce almozoin. Let dissolve thoroughly before using, apply thickly and leave over night. Then apply more cream and massage skin until the cream-jelly disappears. This is splendid for correcting every faulty complexion because it gives natural beauty and I have found that certain results follow when this almozoin cream-jelly is used to banish wrinkles and round out hollows.

Stricken with appendicitis while at work Thursday morning, Dr. W. N. Horton, city bacteriologist under former Mayor Harper, died last night at the Angelus Hospital following an operation. His sudden death was a shock to the medical profession, in which he was well known, and to a large circle of friends.

Young Denver Attorney Comes Here for Bride He First Learned to Love in Far-off Colorado.

Last evening Charles H. Talbot, a young attorney of Denver, for the first time wrote "and wife" after his name. It was when he registered at the Lankershim Hotel. He and Miss Hazel Marie Smith, recently of Denver, had been married one hour previously at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Alber, No. 6500 Sunset boulevard.

The bride has been a guest for several weeks at the Alber home. Her father is H. Harry Smith, special agent for the New York Underwriters, and his family moved here recently from the Colorado capital. The groom is the son of Attorney Ralph Talbot of Denver. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Evans, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Hollywood.

SEVERAL SENT TO HOSPITAL BY SONORATOWN STABBER.

Swarthy Mexican Plunges Knife Into Wife's Breast and Cuts Two Others Who Endeavor to Interfere. Holiday Carousal Arouses Jealousy. Resembles Soto Case.

Apparently crazed with drink and drugs, Luis Alvarez, 35 years old, plunged a knife, early yesterday morning, into the breast of his common-law wife, Mrs. Nicoloza Larosa. Joe Navarro, 18-year-old son of the woman, interposed his body between the infuriated man and his victim and was stabbed perhaps fatally, the blade penetrating his lung. Francisco Florez, a friend of the boy, tried to wrest away the weapon but was stabbed in the right breast. The cutting affray occurred in the Alvarez home at No. 1345 Willow street. Apparently satisfied with his murderous work, the Mexican ran from the house and has not yet been captured.

Friends and neighbors, who heard the screams of the wounded ones, ran to the house and saw the two men and the woman on the floor bleeding profusely. The police ambulance was called and the three injured persons taken to the Receiving Hospital. Navarro was the most seriously wounded, the attending surgeons saying that the wound in his shoulder and lung probably will prove fatal. The woman and Florez will recover.

In some ways the stabbing resembled the Juan Soto affray wherein the mad slayer of Sonoratown stabbed and fatally wounded the Sosca sisters and a brother. In this instance, as in the former, the police have a good description of the fugitive and every effort is being made to apprehend him before he escapes from the city. Alvarez is said to be about five feet 9 inches tall and to weigh approximately 175 pounds. He is a powerful man, dark and swarthy, and wears a black mustache.

According to the information gathered by the police after the stabbing, Alvarez and a group of friends passed the afternoon of the Fourth celebrating. The guests lingered and it was decided to make a night of it. Wine and other liquor flowed freely and several of the guests as well as the host partook of marihuana, a shrub of the hemp species with an effect like opium, with their tobacco and smoked it. Quarreling became frequent and finally most of those present went away.

After words, said to have arisen over the attentions bestowed by Mrs. Larosa on another man, Alvarez became frenzied and seizing a knife, according to the victims, plunged it into the woman. The stabbing of the woman's son and the other man quickly followed. The police believe that Alvarez is still in hiding somewhere with friends in the city and expect to bring about his capture.

HERMOSA BEACH.

HERMOSA BEACH, July 5.—Mrs. John Root of Los Angeles swam out beyond her depth this morning while bathing here and was overcome. She was rescued by another swimmer who carried her to shore. She was unconscious and it was some time before she was resuscitated through the efforts of Dr. M. Jaynes. She was then taken to her home in Los Angeles.

The largest crowd of the season was here yesterday for the Fourth. Hotel Berth was filled and a number of cottages were rented by the manager to accommodate the guests. Although no formal programme was planned for the day there were many clam bakes and beach parties and a fine display of fireworks was given by the city at night.

CARD OF THANKS.

We want to thank Hamburger's and employees, relatives, friends and neighbors, for their kindness and beautiful floral offerings tendered us during our recent bereavement.

FIRE PLOT UNCOVERED.

Hotel at San Diego in Which Three Hundred Persons Slept Is Set on Fire.

SAN DIEGO, July 5.—When the fire department had extinguished a small blaze in a hotel at Sixth and E streets early this morning, they discovered that elaborate preparations had been made to burn the building, in which over 300 persons were sleeping. The firemen founds cans of distillate, bottles of oil with wax corks, turned end down, so the oil would scatter, saturated excelsior and an oil-soaked string fuse extending almost the entire length of four stores on the ground floor, about 200 feet long. The cans of oil were planted beneath the stores. The bottles were in the rear of a room occupied by a chinaware store.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Della Blanchard, sister of Mrs. Fred W. Saunders, who conducts the hotel. Mrs. Blanchard at once gave the alarm and quick work by the firemen saved the building and probably many lives. The police think they have a clew to the identity of the firebug.

LOS ANGELES WOMAN LOST.

Disappears Suddenly from a Hairdresser's Establishment at Venice and Friends Ask Police Aid.

VENICE, July 5.—Friends of Mrs. Rose Jarvis of Los Angeles appeared at the police station today and requested the officers to help them locate the woman. Mrs. Jarvis dropped from sight yesterday afternoon after leaving a hairdressing establishment on Ocean Front. Mrs. Jarvis's daughter is almost prostrated over the disappearance of her mother, who promised to be at their temporary apartments on Trolleyway at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A handbag carried by Mrs. Jarvis, minus a large sum of money which she carried away from her rooms, was found in the hairdressing establishment. She is described as being an unusually attractive woman of 35 years, rather stout for her age, with dark complexion.

MADE MONEY.

According to local bank officials nearly $35,000 was left here by pleasure seekers yesterday. The amusement men and caterers lined up before the tellers' windows this morning, carrying heavy loads of specie and currency. One concession alone, the racing coaster, sold $3292 in tickets, the biggest day's business that ever was done on the coaster.

Wisconsin Society Meeting.

The recently-organized Wisconsin Society will meet at the Federation headquarters tomorrow evening and the roll of charter members is still open for signatures. All "Badgers" are invited to come and join and all out-of-town visitors will be welcome.

Colored Woman Bites Patrolman.

Patrolman McClarey, in an effort yesterday to arrest Mrs. Emma Bruex, a buxom colored woman, was bitten on the right hand by the infuriated amazon, but succeeded in taking her to the police station. The patrolman's wound was treated at the Receiving Hospital and no ill effects are expected to follow.

Burglars With Rope.

Burglars, thought to be boys, entered the store of D. G. Schaper, Seventh and Hill streets, early yesterday morning and made way with several sweaters and other clothing. The skylight was broken and there were the marks of bare toes on the side of the wall, indicating that the boys lowered each other into the store by a rope.

Will Serve for Short Time.

Although the resignation of Police Commissioners McDill and Akey, to take effect tomorrow, have been placed in the hands of the Mayor, they will serve two weeks longer at the request of Mayor-elect Rose. The regular Police Commission will be held by the old board next Wednesday, with the exception that the new Mayor will preside.

She Takes to Oil.

Newly-equipped for oil burning, the City of Topeka of the Pacific Coast steamship Company's fleet is on the way from San Francisco to Eureka on her maiden trip as a consumer of the stuff that made many California millionaires. This boat is the first of the Pacific Coast's fleet to be equipped to use oil as fuel.

European Steamship Manager.

Bruno Osuchowski, for the past four years connected with the steamship business in this city, has been appointed manager of the new European steamship department of the California Savings Bank. Osuchowski has traveled extensively throughout Europe and speaks eight foreign languages. David F. Robertson will continue in charge of around-the-world and trans-Pacific tours.

New Free Public Market.

The new free public market at Thirty-eighth street and Long Beach avenue was opened yesterday, this being the fourth free public market established by the city. There were about 500 patrons, and the ten wagonloads of produce were sold out soon after 10 o'clock. A much larger supply is promised for next Saturday. Superintendent O'Brien says he expects this to be one of the busiest markets.

Pipe-line Hearing.

Commissioner Edgerton of the State Railroad Commission is scheduled for hearings at Chino and San Bernardino tomorrow and Tuesday, respectively. Both are in the matter of the application of the Southern California Edison Company to lay a pipe line six miles long from Pomona to Chino that the latter city may be supplied with gas. The cost of the work is given by officials of that company as close to $20,000.

Ships to Greet Daniels.

The Navy Department has ordered the battleship South Dakota and four submarines, and possibly other ships, to anchor in Los Angeles harbor on July 23, the date on which Secretary Daniels will make his visit to this city. The officers of the vessels will attend the Chamber of Commerce smoker in Shrine Auditorium in honor of Secretary Daniels on the evening of the 23d. The Secretary will arrive at 6:30 p. m. over the Santa Fe railway, on the 23d and will depart for the north at 8 o'clock p. m. on the 24th.

Wants Sale Retrained.

Mrs. Nellie J. Elliott has brought suit against the Sheriff and the Bresee Brothers' Company to recover a homestead which is to be sold for a judgment of $1547.15 held by the company. She asks for an injunction restraining the Sheriff from selling the homestead, valued at $5000, alleging that the declaration of the homestead was never abandoned. The declaration, she states, was made September 24, 1912, and at that time she stated she was the head of the family, Elliott not making the declaration for their joint benefit.

Railroad Strong in Agriculture.

Prof. Lewis A. Merrill, who has been in charge of agricultural work for the Salt Lake in addition to his duties as supervisor of extension work for the Agricultural College of Utah, has severed his connection with the latter institution and will hereafter devote his entire time to railroad work. Announcement of this fact was made yesterday by General Traffic Manager Wann in a bulletin asking the co-operation of trainmen, as well as agents, in spreading the gospel of intensive agriculture. Merrill will make his headquarters at Salt Lake City.

Too Much Echo.

Judge George Church of Fresno, who was sitting in Extra Sessions last week, found difficulty in hearing the witnesses in the suits he tried. He declared he would have to become accustomed to the acoustic properties of the courtroom. He is not the only one who complains of the difficulty of understanding witnesses. Judge Monroe is continually instructing them to speak up, not only that he may hear them, but that their attorneys may catch more than a word now and then. These courtrooms on the eighth floor of the Hall of Records are large and airy, but there is too much echo.

Matinee Theater Party.

A charming and delightful box party was given by Mrs. Kate Mason Deming of No. 2215 West Twenty-fourth street at the Mason Operahouse yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Gertrude Bresee to witness "Bella Donna," played by Mme. Nazimova. Five o'clock tea was afterward served in the tea-room of the Alexandria Hotel. The party was one of many compliments and social functions on account of Miss Bresee's forthcoming wedding, which will take place early in the fall. Among the ladies present, all dressed in white, were Miss Gertrude Bresee, Mrs. B. W. Mrs. Bresee, Mrs. Stre Newhauer, Mrs. E. J. Jay, Mrs. T. A. Wright, rington, Mrs. H. H. Ros Brown, Mrs. E. C. Over Seas and Continents.

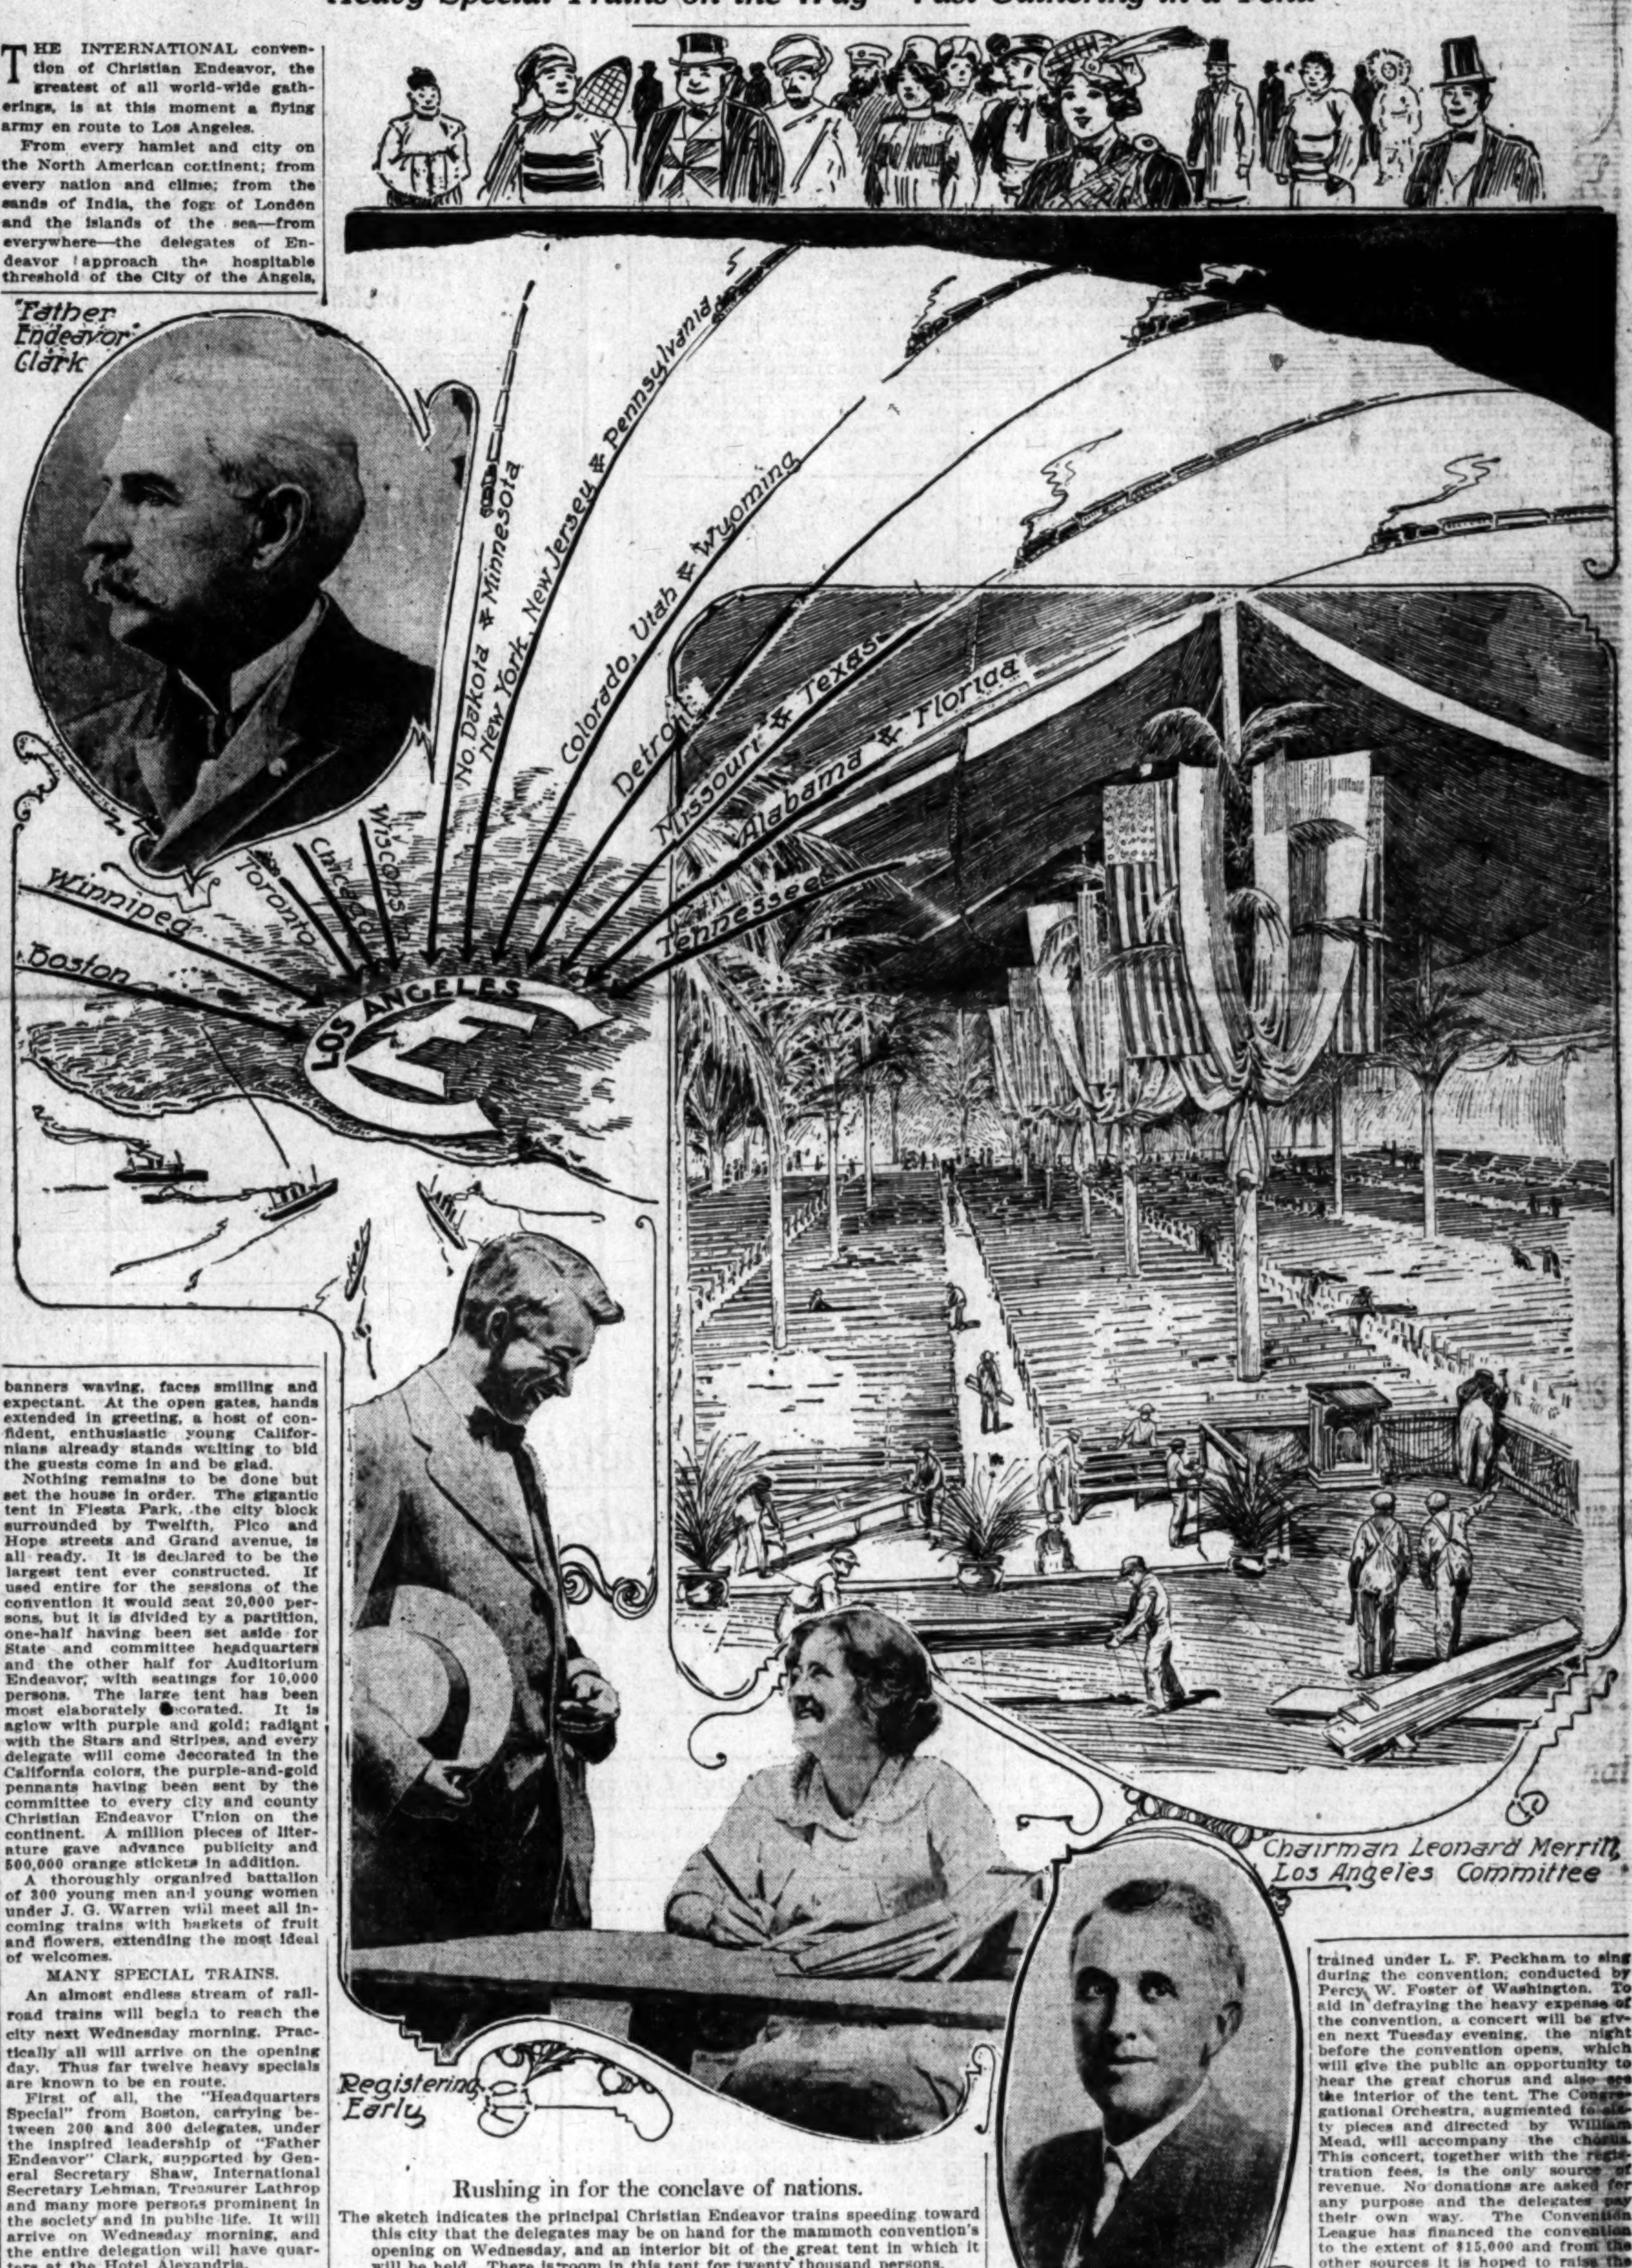
CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS OF ALL THE WORLD SEE MECCA IN LOS ANGELES THIS WEEK.

Delegates Representing Four and a Half Million Members in Many Countries Coming to International Convention Opening Next Wednesday—Nearly Forty Thousand Persons Expected. Heavy Special Trains on the Way—Vast Gathering in a Tent.

THE INTERNATIONAL convention of Christian Endeavor, the greatest of all world-wide gatherings, is at this moment a flying army en route to Los Angeles.

From every hamlet and city on the North American continent; from every nation and clime; from the sands of India, the fogs of London and the islands of the sea—from everywhere—the delegates of Endeavor approach the hospitable threshold of the City of the Angels, banners waving, faces smiling and expectant. At the open gates, hands extended in greeting, a host of confident, enthusiastic young Californians already stands waiting to bid the guests come in and be glad.



Rushing in for the conclave of nations.

The sketch indicates the principal Christian Endeavor trains speeding toward this city that the delegates may be on hand for the mammoth convention's opening on Wednesday, and an interior bit of the great tent in which it will be held. There is room in this tent for twenty thousand persons.

Nothing remains to be done but set the house in order. The gigantic tent in Fiesta Park, the city block surrounded by Twelfth, Pico and Hope streets and Grand avenue, is all ready. It is declared to be the largest tent ever constructed. If used entire for the sessions of the convention it would seat 20,000 persons, but it is divided by a partition, one-half having been set aside for State and committee headquarters and the other half for Auditorium Endeavor, with seatings for 10,000 persons. The large tent has been most elaborately decorated. It is aglow with purple and gold; radiant with the Stars and Stripes, and every delegate will come decorated in the California colors, the purple-and-gold pennants having been sent by the committee to every city and county Christian Endeavor Union on the continent. A million pieces of literature gave advance publicity and 500,000 orange stickers in addition.

A thoroughly organized battalion of 300 young men and young women under J. G. Warren will meet all incoming trains with baskets of fruit and flowers, extending the most ideal of welcomes.

MANY SPECIAL TRAINS.

An almost endless stream of railroad trains will begin to reach the city next Wednesday morning. Practically all will arrive on the opening day. Thus far twelve heavy specials are known to be en route.

First of all, the "Headquarters Special" from Boston, carrying between 200 and 300 delegates, under the inspired leadership of "Father Endeavor" Clark, supported by General Secretary Shaw, International Secretary Lehman, Treasurer Lathrop and many more persons prominent in the society and in public life. It will arrive on Wednesday morning, and the entire delegation will have quarters at the Hotel Alexandria.

The New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania delegation will arrive on a combined train over the Santa Fe at 7 p. m. Wednesday, and will have headquarters at the Lankershim Hotel. They will come by way of the Grand Canyon and will return a week later by Yellowstone Park.

The Canadians will arrive on two specials. That from Toronto is scheduled to come in over the Santa Fe at 11 a. m. Wednesday, with 300 delegates on board, and that from Winnipeg will arrive near the same time with 200 delegates.

The above are supposed to be the four heaviest trains. Colorado, Utah and Wyoming will arrive on the Salt Lake at 9 a. m. Wednesday, and the delegates will go to the Hotel Baltimore. Missouri and Texas will arrive over the Santa Fe on Wednesday afternoon. Other specials will be as follows: North Dakota and Minnesota, Detroit, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida, Wisconsin, Chicago, but on the whole, much the largest number of delegates will arrive on regular trains, which will be run in sections to accommodate the rush.

Foreign delegations will come from Hawaii, Australia, Japan, China, West Indies, England, Ireland, Scotland and India, and when the rolls are made up representatives will probably be found from the other half-score countries.

MILLIONS OF THEM.

It is estimated that not less than [illegible]00 delegates—that is persons officially appointed to attend by their several societies—will come from outside of California, though in Christian Endeavor every man, woman, girl or boy who registers and pays the fee of $1 is a delegate in every sense of the word. It is believed that the number of persons to take advantage of the low rates of travel will be at least five times this number, while California alone is counted upon to register 7000 delegates. So that in the aggregate the convention is expected to bring between 30,000 and 40,000 strangers to the city. The enrolled membership of the Christian Endeavor Societies of the world, covering more than twenty countries, is over 4,500,000, according to the latest figures.

A corps of pages and guides has been organized by Harold Cross, each of whom, both boys and girls, will be clad in full white costume with lavender belt and other touches of the same color, and will wear a huge button. The pages will be at the service of the visitors to "show them" anything they want to see or know.

MUSIC A BIG FEATURE.

A chorus of 900 voices has been trained under L. F. Peckham to sing during the convention, conducted by Percy W. Foster of Washington. To aid in defraying the heavy expense of the convention, a concert will be given next Tuesday evening, the night before the convention opens, which will give the public an opportunity to hear the great chorus and also see the interior of the tent. The Congregational Orchestra, augmented to sixty pieces and directed by William Mead, will accompany the chorus. This concert, together with the registration fees, is the only source of revenue. No donations are asked for any purpose and the delegates pay their own way. The Convention League has financed the convention to the extent of $15,000 and from the other sources it is hoped to raise the other $10,000.

In return for this outlay, the delegates will leave in the city, according to the estimates of experts in that direction, not less than $1,000,000, in addition to their influence in advertising the city and Southern California after they return home.

The committee in charge of the convention is composed of Leonard Merrill, chairman; A. J. Gatter, State president; R. E. Small, J. O. Smith, J. P. Wells, John Willis Baer, Paul C. Brown, Harold Cross, H. J. Godber, F. A. McBurney, A. M. McDermott, F. P. Rossiter, Leon V. Shaw and J. G. Warren.

The World's Standard Piano--

The Steinway Piano is owned and controlled by the Steinway Family. For four generations it has been made by Steinways, and today it is being made by Steinways. If you were to go to New York tomorrow to interview any of the Steinway family, you would be obliged to seek out Mr. Fred Steinway at the factory—where you would find him personally engaged in supervising the construction of Steinway Pianos. You would find Mr. Theodore Steinway there also, and three others members of the Steinway family. Mr. Charles Steinway, President of the Institution, would be at the New York office.

What better testimony could be given to the value of an instrument than the fact that it is produced under the personal supervision of the men whose name it bears—and whose sole aim in life is to maintain the standard of the Steinway—the world's best piano?

A Question of Principle.

WHY BISHOPS REFUSED CARNEGIE'S MILLION.

Vetoed Proposition Submitted Through Board of Trust of Vanderbilt College Because Donor Stipulated that the Methodist Episcopal Church Must Give Up the Medical Department as a Condition.

CONCERNING a tentative proposition from Andrew Carnegie to donate $1,000,000 to the medical department of Vanderbilt University, Bishop R. G. Waterhouse of this city, one of the board of visitors, said yesterday that the College of Bishops exercised its right of veto because the conditions of the gift have the effect of taking control of the department from the church and that the money could not therefore be honorably accepted. Chancellor Kirkland and the Board of Trust were in favor of accepting the money and submitting to the conditions.

"The reading public is doubtless more or less perplexed by statements it has seen in the daily press concerning this university and Mr. Carnegie's reputed gift to it of $1,000,000," said Bishop Waterhouse.

"Mr. Carnegie has really made no gift, and does not desire to make any to Vanderbilt University so long as it is owned and controlled by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, or any other church. In his letter to Dr. Kirkland, as secretary of the Executive Committee of Vanderbilt Board of Trust, which is the only document offered in proof of his willingness to give anything under any conditions, he says: 'I approve thoroughly your suggestion that this gift be conditioned on the appointment of a small board of seven persons to govern the medical school, who shall be chosen absolutely without reference to denominational considerations, and purely upon the ground of fitness for their duties.

"'I make the following proposition for your consideration: I will furnish the $200,000 cash now needed for the laboratories, and the remaining $800,000 shall remain in the custody of the Carnegie Corporation in New York—interest at 4 per cent. to be paid to the university for the use of the medical school until such time as the question of denominational control has been settled by the court of last resort, its final disposition to be then determined.

WHAT CARNEGIE SAID.

"Mr. Carnegie, in this last quotation, shows that he is aware of a question in controversy, and in a previous paragraph he has written of it thus:

"'A suit is now before the courts to test the question whether the university shall be governed by an independent, self-perpetuating board as at present or whether the trustees shall be chosen by the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with which denomination the university has been since its beginning in sympathetic relations. Should the trustees finally receive an adverse verdict, I understand that the university will then be under distinctive denominational control. This result would seem to me to be unfortunate for the future progress and well-being of the institution. I do not believe that it is wise for any sect to control educational institutions such as universities, whether the organization be a Methodist Conference or a Presbyterian Assembly or a Catholic order.'

"In a closing paragraph, he says: 'The objection to denominational control of colleges and universities is not due to lack of sympathy with religion. It lies in the fact that such control by a single denomination rarely means religious development, but nearly always means that both education and religion are subordinated to the interests of the particular organization which is in control.'

"Now, the $1,000,000 under consideration certainly belongs to Mr. Carnegie, and he has a right to say on what conditions he will part with it; and he has said. As an American citizen he must not be denied freedom of opinion and the right to express his opinion. This letter shows him in the full exercise of these rights.

FOUNDER AND OWNER.

"The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, claims to be the founder and owner of the Vanderbilt University, and has so claimed for nearly forty years. This claim was never openly disputed until very recently. The contention of the church, so far as tried in the courts, has been upheld in every point, and there seems to be no good ground to fear any reversal. So far as the church is concerned, Mr. Carnegie's proposition is not one of giving to, but one of taking from.

"In case he gives a million dollars to the medical college of the university, a governing Board of Control must be established immediately, and the gift, for the present, will be so conditioned that in case denominational control of the university continues, he can force a grant of independence to this new governing board for the medical college, if indeed it should lack anything in that direction, or withdraw with all ease eight-tenths of the proposed donation. He certainly means that the church must give up the medical department as a condition of his gift, and leaves it in doubt as to whether he may not withdraw all he intends for endowment, in case denominational control of the university is continued.

"If Mr. Carnegie were making his proposition directly to the church and without solicitation, it would afford just cause for resentment, to put the matter mildly, but it should be remembered that a gift was solicited from him by the Executive Committee of the university board, and the idea of a distinct governing board suggested to him by the solicitors, and there was doubtless a large amount of correspondence of which the church knows nothing. The blame of all the embarrassment in the present situation to any and all parties concerned, rests upon the majority of the board of trust, who are supporting the chancellor in a course of disloyalty to the church that founded and owns the institution.

BISHOPS REFUSE OFFER.

"On June 20 the College of Bishops, sitting and acting as a board of visitors of Vanderbilt University, according to the charter of the institution itself, vetoed all action taken by the trustees looking to the acceptance of Mr. Carnegie's offer on the conditions named. In an address to the church for whom they acted in passing this veto, the bishops say:

"'We are deeply concerned for the welfare of the university; and if this gift had been offered without embarrassing conditions, as all other gifts to the institution have been made, we should have offered no objection to its acceptance; but the conditions attached to this gift and the letter accompanying it, which must be taken as expository of the conditions, are such as lead us to believe it cannot be accepted without a breach of trust and without dishonor to the church if the conditions are fulfilled in good faith to the donor.

"'We are as unwilling that Mr Carnegie should be deceived as that the university should be dismembered and the church of God dishonored.'

"In the concluding lines of another paragraph they say: 'Were our people never so poor and our educational needs never so distressing, we could not entertain such a proposition. We know how to endure poverty, but we have not learned nor are we ready to be taught how to accept gifts to which are annexed conditions that require the sacrifice of our self-respect, the defeat of the founders of the university, the renunciation of the principles which we hold in common with all the churches, and the abdication of the mission of the church of God in the field of Christian education.'

CONFLICT OF BELIEFS.

"Mr. Carnegie in the conclusion of his letter from which we have quoted, announces himself as believing, with Matthew Arnold, in all religions, and quotes from him the following lines:

"'Children of men! the unseen Power whose eye
Forever doth accompany mankind,
Hath looked on no religion scornfully
That men did ever find.

'Which has not taught weak wills
how much they can?
Which has not fallen on the dry heart like rain?
Which has not cried to a sunk, self-weary man:
Thou must be born again?'

"The lines of the last division of this quotation mean to affirm that every religion strengthens "weak wills," refreshes the dry heart, and preaches to "a sunk, self-weary man" the new birth. Now, this may be good poetry, but it is not truth. Only one religion known to man accomplishes these things, and vastly more. A very limited acquaintance with the religions that obtain, and have obtained among men will convince of this, and the most protracted and profound research will show nothing to the contrary.

"Such belief seems to me to be broad and thin as moonshine, spineless as jelly, and as ineffective as either for purposes of warmth or support. Mr. Carnegie is vastly better than this creed. He has been touched, modified and helped by the grace of the true Son of God, much beyond what he is aware.

"Who moved him to build a Peace Palace at The Hague, if it was not the Prince of Peace? He has doubtless had some painful observations of, and experiences with sectarian narrowness, but the churches have, and have had, no monopoly of narrowness. The world is full of it.

"Who among the sons of men stand so good a chance to increasingly escape it as those who have profound reverence for and closest association with Him who said: 'To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world that I should bear witness to the truth.' His inspiration made the early church the friend and promoter of learning, and accounts for the fact that the Protestant churches of this country have been the pioneers in every educational line.

UNIVERSITY A BLESSING.

"No surer way for cursing the church with narrowness and fettering the enlarging spirit of Christ in her could be devised than by destroying her schools and making educational enterprises impossible to her life. Mr. Vanderbilt blessed southern Methodism and through her the South, in a measure he never dreamed of when he made possible her dream of a great central university.

"If Mr. Carnegie could rid himself of some ill-founded convictions he has about education under the supervision of the church, he would not only make an unconditional gift to the Vanderbilt University, but enlarge his great foundation for the promotion of teaching and admit every church school, in which all truth is taught with perfect freedom, to its benefits, and this would doubtless include almost every Protestant school.

"Thousands of Christian men, and especially hundreds of Christian leaders, rejoice in what Mr. Carnegie has done and is doing for the service of humanity in general, and they are very far from any desire to give him any personal offense, but they must claim for themselves the same rights as to freedom of opinion and expression that they willingly accord to him. Such men might desire to warn every man, including Mr. Carnegie, of what seems to them to be a very common fault of the age.

"It is that of becoming enamored of a single dimension commonly called broadness. Broadness is a sorry thing if it exists alone, or at the expense of the other two dimensions. It is a monstrosity when marked by thinness and shortness. The world's hope is in the one symmetrical character that has appeared in the course of the centuries. The man of all and perfect dimensions, who in thorough veraciousness called himself 'Son of man' and 'Son of God.'"

MORE POLITE THAN WE.

Traveler Who Made Long Stay in Switzerland Tells of the Rules in the Hotels.

Americans have much to learn in the way of politeness, according to Gerard S. Mellen of Des Moines, who is visiting relatives on Magnolia avenue after a tour of the world and a long stay in Switzerland. Residents of this entire country are far from polite as measured by the Swiss standard.

"In Los Angeles the signs say 'Keep off the grass,'" he said. "In Switzerland parks the signs read 'Will the public have the kindness not to mar the beauty of this plot by walking on the grass,' which is what one might almost expect to see in Boston. This is only one example. The rules found in hotels are a criterion which cannot be excelled for nicety and at the same time a hyperfluity of language."

Following are a few examples to be found on the cards placed in every room, Mellen having one of the cards:

"While leaving their rooms in the evening the honored guests are prayed to turn off the electric light.

"For guests who do not wish to take their meals in the hotel the price of the room is elevated one franc for each person.

"The honorable guests are prayed to avoid on S day and festival days every unnecessary work for the employees, especially in the forenoon when most of them go to church. The hotel is closed at 11 o'clock in the evening.

"The guests are prayed to remove the key in their room and put it on the keyrack in the office upon leaving the hotel. Departure, if possible, should be announced in the office three hours before the guest finds it necessary to leave. Guests using the room after 5 o'clock in the afternoon will be expected to pay extra for the service.

"Inconveniences, reclamations and complaints have to be made personally to the manager in the office, where he will esteem it a pleasure to render any assistance that will insure the comfort of the honored guest."

HARRY BROOK AT THE CONFESSIONAL.

Why I Left "The Times."

[Harry Brook in Brain and Brawn for July:] Several correspondents have asked me why I left the Los Angeles Times, where I worked as a laborer in the editorial vineyard for twenty-five years, editing the Care of the Body department during thirteen years of that period. Instead of replying directly I will tell you a little story:

Once upon a time there was a man who died and went to heaven. After he had been there a week, Peter's major domo reported that the fellow was a nuisance, raising such a continuous disturbance that he had become unbearable. Said Peter, "Send him down below." And down below he went. Ten days had not elapsed before Satan's chief fireman came and complained that the man was preaching insurrectory doctrines, and threatening to upset the system of government that had prevailed from time immemorial in the infernal regions. Satan scratched his head with the tip of his tail, and after a few moments of reflection said: "Give him some sulphur and brimstone, and let him go out and start a little hell of his own."

[Very good, not to say "devilish clever." But there are some substances besides brimstone that cannot be safely stirred up. See?—[Ed. Times.]

Certain well-known winter residents are also listed about as follows: "Usually leaves about May 15. Like itinerary early."

Years ago, when the rebate flourished in the land, when you could get bargain rates for a nice slice of business, it was a case of cut and thrust with the passenger men. To-day, when rates are a staple commodity, the passenger man has to exercise business finesse in getting the trade. More than all, he depends on his card index, reinforced by "git up and git."

SIGNAL SYSTEM FOR SANTA FE.

DOUBLE TRACK SAFEGUARDED TO ALBUQUERQUE.

Nearly Thousand Miles Under Protection When Blocks Are Established—All Improvements to Be Completed by September, Say Officials—Work Authorized.

Within a few weeks the Santa Fe will begin installing a block-signal system of the electrically-operated type along all double track now existent or under construction between this city and Albuquerque. With the manual blocking system now in operation on single track between the two places, and the mechanical blocking system generally used east of Albuqueque, the new year will see the Santa Fe operated under practically absolute block system between this city and Chicago.

Announcement of the proposed new blocking system was made yesterday by Chief Engineer Harris while here making arrangements for bids on work in connection with the new mechanical terminals. He refused to state the cost of the work but said the electric blocking system will be used to protect 362 miles of double track—equivalent to 724 miles of single track—which means that the cost will be high.

Harris further stated that all double-tracking work now under way in Arizona, New Mexico and through Cajon Pass in this State will be completed by September 1.

Regarding the Summit-Victorville double-tracking job, Harris stated that the work has been authorized, but that no appropriation has yet been made by the Executive Committee. This job when completed will afford the Santa Fe a double-track line between this city and Needles.

Until the appropriation for the Summit-Victorville job is announced the exact route of the new line across the mountains will not be known. The reason is that a large appropriation will mean an immense amount of blasting and excavating to secure a minimum gradation; while a smaller appropriation will mean a lesser amount of this work, with a correspondingly heavier gradation.

Two lines have been surveyed between Summit and Victorville. One provides for a gradation of close to eight-tenths of one per cent. a mile, while the other has one grade of 2 per cent.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS TRAIN.

Luxuriously-equipped Special Will Carry Delegates to the Convention at Minneapolis.

The Knights of Pythias special train, to be known as "The Dokkie Special," will leave for Minneapolis on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, where the biennial convention of the order will meet on July 15, 16 and 17. The members of Al Borak Temple will assemble at their hall on North Spring street nearly in the morning and will march to the Arcade Station, escorted by brass bands and a large number of members of the order. They will made a strong pull for bringing the 1915 convention to this city and in pursuit of this object will keep open house and extend lavish hospitality. Their special train will be one of the best-equipped that has made a long-distance run from this city. A portion of the party will stop at Truckee, en route East, and visit Lake Tahoe and Reno, while others will go on to Salt Lake, each of these cities having provided a programme of entertainment during a twelve-hour stop.

Christian Endeavorers.

deavor, the title given to the big tent, meetings will be held in many churches in the neighborhood daily from 9 to 12. These will be in the nature of denominational and department rallies. Noon meetings will be held in Temple Auditorium by Billy Sunday; on Thursday and Friday afternoons meetings of the California Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the tent, and great night meetings will be held there every night except Saturday.

The first session of the convention will be held on Wednesday evening, President Clark presiding, and will open with a great praise service. Leonard Merrill, chairman of the local committee, will deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the organization that has perfected the arrangements for the gathering; Dr. William Horace Day will speak the greeting of the churches, and Mayor Rose that of the citizens in general. To these addresses Dr. Clarke will respond, after which an hour will be spent in an informal reception and greetings among delegates.

Thursday night Dr. John Willis Baer will preside; President Clark will deliver his annual address, which will be a talk on "Christian Endeavor as an Exponent of All-round Efficient Christianity." He will be followed by H. N. Lathrop, treasurer, and William Shaw, secretary.

Friday evening will be devoted to a magnificent electrical parade and a Christian Endeavor parade in which the delegates will march by States and countries. At 9 o'clock p.m. a concert will be given in the tent.

Sunday the delegates will attend meetings in the churches, and on Sunday night a great meeting on world-wide Christian Endeavor will be held in the tent, President Clark presiding. An address on the subject, "Christian Endeavor in a New Republic," by Rev. Edgar E. Strother of China; "Christian Endeavor in a New Old Republic," Rev. T. Sawaya of Japan; "Christian Endeavor in India," Rev. Stanley A. Hunter of India; an address by Rev. Stephen J. Corey of Cincinnati, and closing address by Rev. Dr. McAfee of Berkeley.

Monday evening, President Clark presiding, a large number of Christian Endeavor experts will be introduced, who will speak especially upon the plans for 1915. State and provincial presidents and leaders in foreign lands will be called upon for responses, and the farewell message from the ministers of the city will be delivered by Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher of Temple Baptist Church. The final word of the convention will be spoken by President Clark.

All of these meetings will be characterized by magnificent musical programmes led by the great chorus of 900 voices and the orchestra of sixty pieces.

NEVER GROW OLD.

That a man is just as old as he feels—and a woman, too, for that matter—is to have a practical demonstration here on Wednesday. Any person having doubts on the subject may satisfy themselves by watching the arrival of the Christian Endeavor special trains from all parts of the United States and Canada on that day, and by following the convention during the succeeding days.

It is still the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor as founded by Francis E. Clark thirty-two years ago. "Father Endeavor" Clark is today, as he has always been, its president, and many of those most active in its councils began their active work in its ranks during the first decade of its existence. Young people there be—many thousands of them—but those with frosted locks refuse to yield to passing time and count themselves out.

Scan the list of speakers if you will and consider the names of college presidents and men famous in the religious history of America and every foreign country under the sun.

Los Angeles now owns as a citizen the president of Occidental College, John Willis Baer, who did more than any other living man except the honored founder of the society to make it a vital force in the religious life of the young people of the world, and who is yet its honorary secretary. During the greater part of the first quarter-century of its life, Dr. Baer was the forceful agency in keeping lavie the spirit of world-wide endeavor from the platform in every great city in this and other countries, and in almost every hamlet in his native land. And President Baer is no "old one." In the list of speakers which includes him, will be found a cheery lot of men who have grown older in years but remain young in spirit.

Here are some of those who will address the convention: Rev. Thomas Ashburn, Knoxville, Tenn.; Prof. Amos R. Wells, Boston; Bishop Alexander Walters, African Methodist Episcopal, New York; Rev. R. B. Peery, Atchison, Kan.; Rev. Daniel A. Poling, general secretary Ohio Union; Rev. Robert E. Pretlow, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Rev. Edgar E. Strother, China; Rev. T. Sawaya, field secretary Japan; Stanley A. Hunter, India; Rev. Stephen J. Corey, Cincinnati; Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps;" Rev. Claude E. Hill, Valparaiso, Ind.; Rev. William Patterson, Belfast, Ireland; Prof. Aaron Brown, Pensacola, Fla.; Rev G. E. Burlingame, Rev. W. T. Johnson, Richmond, Va.; Rev. J. Percival Huget, Detroit; Rev. E. A. Walkins, Albany, Mo.; Rev. B. W. Arnett, Philadelphia; President Henry Churchill King, Oberlin, O.; Rev. Julian C. Caldwell, Nashville; Miss E. Graham, Ireland; Peter Kahonoluna, Rev. F. E. Harry, Australia; Field Secretary Karl Lehman, Boston; Rev. Robert F. Coyle, Denver; Rev. J. T. McCrory, Pittsburgh, Pa.; J. A. McDonald, Toronto; Rev. W. A. ("Billy") Sunday; Rev. W. T. Johnson, Richmond, Va.; Rev. W. L. Burdick, Alfred N. Y.; President Ward, Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. Charles W. Record, Canton, O.; Rev. Frank M. Goodchild, New York.

Among the local men announced are Dr. William Horace Day, Rev. W. Leon Tucker, Rev. J. C. Pinkerton and Dr. J. Balcom Shaw, who will take charge of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, September 1. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, and many others.

J. Mack Love,

One of the well-known attorneys of the Middle West, who will arrive here tomorrow to make this his permanent home.

ANGELENO BOOSTER NOW.

Prominent Middle West Attorney Leaves Big Practice to Locate in California.

J. Mack Love, a prominent attorney of Arkansas City for the past twenty-five years, and well known through the Middle West, will arrive in this city tomorrow. He has definitely several his connections and will locate in Los Angeles, although he has not yet decided upon any professional connection.

Love began his career as a lawyer in Exira, Iowa, where he occupied an office with D. B. Lyons, who for the past nine years has been a loyal Angeleno booster. Love went to Arkansas City twenty-five years ago and has practiced law in that city for the entire period of his residence there. For the past two years he has been president of the Commercial Club.

Just before his departure for this city a love feast was tendered him by the club at which a gold watch and cane were presented, with numerous expressions of regret at his departure. Two of Love's sons are already residents of California, so the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Love will be in the nature of a family reunion.

THE MAYOR "GETS HIS."

Degree of "Ex" to be Conferred Upon Hizzoner at the Ad Club's Commencement Exercises.

Mayor Alexander will receive his diploma and the degree of "Ex" at the luncheon of the Ad Club at Christopher's on Tuesday. The diploma is made of genuine goat's skin, beautifully hand-illuminated and will be given as an official farewell. It is expected that the Mayor will make his supreme effort as a public speaker and consequently the affair will be also in the nature of a shirt-waist party, affording His Honor the opportunity of speaking in his shirt-sleeves.

One of the best ordinances passed during the present administration, according to the retiring Mayor, is the one demanding honest advertising which has had its widespread effect as shown even in the window displays of merchants.

The vigilance work is particularly commended because of the arrest of thirteen violators of the ordinance on fraudulent advertising and the conviction of the first seven of these who have been brought to trial. The endeavor of the club to pass a State law as stringent as the city ordinance denotes legislative endeavor. The promotion of advertising with advertising in the daily papers is another featured phase and finally the respect that the club has merited from the community for its activity in the betterment of conditions is quoted.

Procedure on the raising of funds for the great memorial fountain at Exposition Park will be discussed at the luncheon and as soon as the new city administration is in harness active work on raising the $500,000 will be started. George Harrison will outline the plans for this campaign.

Next week's meeting of the club will be unique. A 1000-mile relay race will be run by the members. H. L. Stilwell will be starter and entries will be announced this week.

HEAT THE TRANSMITTER.

And It Will Largely Increase the Volume of Sound and Clear up the Tones on a Long Line.

[Philadelphia Inquirer:] In experimenting with telephones surprising results were obtained by a Danish engineer named Petersen by simply heating the transmitter. It was found that this increased the volume of sound very considerably.

In fact, a transmitter thus heated so increased the volume of sound that the receiver, laid on the table on the other end of the line, delivered the speech so plainly that all at a far corner of the big room away from it heard every word distinctly. Before the transmitter was heated this was impossible.

Now Prof. Hanover of the Danish State experimental establishment has taken up the matter and finds that a simple apparatus may be made for heating the microphone transmitter of a telephone and thereby enable messages to be transmitted by telephone a much greater distance than is possible under ordinary conditions.

The reason for this is simple enough. The heating of the microphone transmitter results in making the air about it rarified, and this naturally carries the sound better. For telephones extending over high and weather-exposed mountain peaks and in such places where there is difficulty in making the sound carry well, this heating can be resorted to and the line made as clear as a bell.

Out and In.

NEEDED CHANGE NOW AT HAND.

New City Administration to Take Hold Tomorrow.

Mayor-elect Isn't Telling His Appointments.

Council's Probable Line-up on the Morrow.

At 12 o'clock noon tomorrow Los Angeles will get what it needs badly—a new city administration. Mayor Alexander will vacate the big chair, and ex-Police Judge Rose will assume the reigns of government. The key of the city will be formally presented to the new Mayor by the retiring one.

While this ceremony is going on in the tower room of the old City Hall, the installation of the new City Council will be in progress in the Council chamber.

The old City Council will hold a regular session tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, and will take up a lot of routine business that needs immediate attention. The Council clerk's basket is filled with this class of material, so the time will be fully employed until the gavel falls and the present City Council is adjourned sine die. Immediately thereafter the new Council will take its seats, the desks being assigned alphabetically to Betkouski, Bryant, Conwell, Langdon, McKenzie, Reed, Snowden, Wheeler and Whiffen.

Frederick J. Whiffen has been decided upon in a caucus of the Council-elect for the presidency and there is no indication that this decision will be changed.

After the new Council organizes, the president will announce the nine committees decided upon at a caucus held last week as the method for handling the city's business.

LIKELY COUNCIL LINE-UP.

The indications are that the line-up will be as follows:

Public Safety, which includes the fire and police departments, City Prosecutor and fire and police alarm system, John W. Snowden, chairman; J. S. Conwell and Frederick J. Whiffen.

Public service, including the water department, municipal light and power and aqueduct, Martin F. Betkouski, chairman; Charles McKenzie and Fred C. Wheeler.

Finance, including City Treasurer, Tax Collector, Tax Assessor and Auditor, Frederick J. Whiffen, chairman; J. S. Conwell and Haines W. Reed.

Public Welfare, including parks and playgrounds, Art Commission, Humane Animal Commission, City Planning Commission, moving picture censors, public library and Industrial Commission, Fred C. Wheeler, chairman; Haines W. Reed and J. S. Conwell.

Public Works, including street maintenance, street improvements, sewer construction, City Engineer, land and public buildings, building department, boiler and elevator inspector, City Electrician, plumbing inspector and garbage and rubbish disposal, Wesley J. Bryant, chairman; Fred C. Langdon and J. W. Snowden.

Efficiency and Supply, including purchasing department, civil service, Sealer of Weights and Measures, City Attorney and City Clerk, J. S. Conwell, chairman; Charles McKenzie and J. W. Snowden.

Public Health and Sanitation, including health department, sewage disposal, Housing Commission, municipal markets and municipal nursing, Haines W. Reed, chairman; Fred C. Wheeler and W. J. Bryant.

Harbor and Municipal Railroad, Frederick C. Langdon, chairman; Martin F. Betkouski and F. C. Whiffen.

Public Utilities, including Board of Public Utilities, transportation and other utility problems and Gas Inspector, Charles McKenzie, chairman; F. C. Langdon and Haines W. Reed.

WHO WILL ROSE APPOINT?

Mayor-elect Rose would not discuss his probable political appointments yesterday except to confirm the report that Boyle Workman, son of "Uncle Billy" Workman, would be appointed a member of the Water Board to succeed S. C. Graham. In fact Judge Rose does not know himself who will occupy all the positions as he will meet refusals from some of his friends.

"I am not looking for any office and do not expect to take one except some condition arises whereby I could help Judge Rose," said P. P. O'Brien, who was largely instrumental in securing the election of Rose.

John Luckenbach, campaign manager for Rose, sailed for Europe as soon as the election was over. Before he went he made it plain that he is not out for any office.

William May Garland, who exerted his powerful influence for Rose, has been mentioned as a possibility on several important boards. However he may be induced to take a position on the Water Board. M. P. Snyder, former Mayor, is also a possibility. Garland, Workman and Snyder would make a strong combination according to City Hall political wiseacres.

Most intrest centers around the Police Commission and the positions of Chief of Police and Fire Chief.

Mayor Rose is expected to offer one place on the commission to Vincent Morgan, a clever young lawyer who has a splendid reputation in the city. The other vacancy will be hard to fill. F. C. Finkle and Dr. John C. Gilmer have been prominently mentioned. Several days ago when asked about these men Judge Rose smiled quizzically and refused "to affirm or deny."

While Fire Chief Ely may continue in his present place, the friends of Walter Lips believe he is entitled to reinstatement. Mayor Alexander discharged Lips for alleged criticisms of the inside workings of the administration. Lips was a strong supporter of Judge Rose.

CHIEF SEBASTIAN REMAINS.

It is generally believed that the new Mayor will retain Chief of Police Sebastian. At least he has said nothing about displacing him.

Louis Schwaebe has been mentioned as a successor to Capt. Hance as City Treasurer, but Judge Rose may surprise some of his supporters by continuing Capt. Hance in office. It is said that the City Council is back of Hance because of his record and his abstinence from private politics.

A. A. Hubbard will finish his term ending January, 1914, as president of the Board of Public Works. Commissioners Handley and Johnson may also be retained, though there are plenty of men willing t their places.

IMPROVING.

Woodrow Wilson will not oppose his daughter in the choice of a husband and she will be allowed to marry at home. Providence seems to be making wiser fathers than it once did.

QUITE SENSIBLE.

Vanderbilt University trustees have decided to accept Andrew Carnegie's million, despite the opposition of the bishops. They seem to have reached the conclusion that a bishop is only a bishop, while a million is a pay roll.

SLOWLY RECOVERING.

The waving of an American flag at Winnipeg precipitated a riot. We can realize that the Canadians and other Britishers were sensitive about the vaunting of Old Glory in 1776 and in 1812, but we had hoped that they would let bygones be bygones by this time.

A CHILD OF FATE.

John D. Rockefeller probably begins to realize that it never rains but it pours. A few nights ago his garage burned up. Friday lightning struck his favorite church and burned up his pew. John D. still has more faith in God and in Standard Oil than he has in his digestion.

PERFECTLY SAFE.

The bears sought cover in the Chicago grain pit yesterday. This was an unnecessary precaution. Nobody is shooting bears any more since there is no political advertising gained by it. Even the word "strenuous" has gone out of fashion and there is nothing left but the frazzle.

A MARK OF RESPECT.

Street cars of San Francisco stopped for two minutes in memory of the late superintendent of that system. Perhaps he would have liked double speed better. Men of that type find their greatest joy in the world's highest action. Since all true religion is meant for living, nothing is more reverent than life at its best.

NATURAL ORDER.

One hundred of San Francisco's policemen will be lined up for identification by convicted bunco men. This is exquisitely appropriate. Society must watch itself from every angle. It is not at all uncommon for the criminal to detect the officer. Sometimes it is not easy for the outsider to pick the really bad man, even as we do not always find the real Christian at church.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF "JOKERS."

A variety of "jokers" were smuggled into the tariff bill by Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee who desired to take care of certain "special interests." Automobile manufacturers have discovered that their protection, fixed in the bill at 45 per cent., is virtually reduced to 20 per cent. through the provision permitting import of component auto parts at the latter rate, thus enabling the foreign automobile manufacturer to import his machine in parts and put it together here without further payment of duty.

The following is a good specimen of the many inequalities in the new tariff: Wool is put on the free list, but the hair of the Angora goat is made dutiable at 20 per cent. Thus 600,000 wool growers in the United States are deprived of all protection, says the Protectionist, while a few men, mainly in Texas, owning Angora goats are protected. In the same way yarns of wool are made dutiable at 20 per cent., while yarns of goats' hair will enter at 30 per cent.

And a thing like that is what the Democrats call a "scientific tariff." Of course President Wilson will approve and sign it, and that is what comes of our having a schoolmaster for President instead of a good lawyer or a capable business man.

WILSON AT GETTYSBURG.

The most interesting and important thing President Wilson could and should have said to the veterans at Gettysburg yesterday, he omitted. The President's theme was the achievement of the American people during the fifty years since the battle of Gettysburg. "What have these fifty years meant?" he asked. And he answered as follows, the words in parentheses being the words he was afraid to utter:

> "What have they meant? They have meant more peace and union and vigor, and the maturity and might of a great nation.
> "How wholesome and healing the peace has been. We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battles long past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the manly devotion of the men arrayed against one another now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete the union has become (under Republican rule,) and how dear to all of us, how unquestioned, how benign and majestic, as State after State has been added (under Republican rule,) to this our great family of free men. How handsome the vigor, the maturity, the might of the great nation we love with undivided hearts; how full of large and confident promise that a life will be wrought out that will crown its strength with gracious justice and with a happy welfare that will touch all alike with deep contentment. We are debtors to those fifty crowded years (of Republican rule,) they have made us heirs to a mighty heritage."

THE CURRENCY MIX-UP.

President Wilson demands the immediate and unconditional enactment of his Federal Reserve Bank Bill. Bankers of Chicago, Boston and other financial centers outside of Wall street favor many of the provisions of the bill and disfavor others. Wall street is dead against the bill. Representative Henry of Texas, chairman of the Committee on Rules, who was turned down by the President for a Cabinet position, is smiting with the dagger of Joab the administration measure that he dare not attack with the sword of the Philistines. He says that the President's Federal Reserve Bank Bill is the Aldrich bill veneered over so as to fool the people. Many members of Congress are weary of the genial July climate of Washington. They are anxious to go home and confer with their constituents and learn their views on the Wilsonian tariff before tackling the Wilsonian bank bill. Republicans are rejoicing over the troubles of their adversaries and hoping that they won't miss any harm that is coming to them, and the Democrats are dancing around the political caldron and stirring up its incongruous contents and singing the refrain chorused by the witches in "Macbeth":

"Double, double, toil and trouble,
Fire burn and caldron bubble."

IN THE HOSPITAL.

Very properly a general protest is voiced against the imposition of an arbitrary eight-hour law for nurses in hospitals. The chief protestants, moreover, are the nurses themselves. They object to being coddled by a patriarchal Legislature.

Those who framed this obnoxious and obstructive ordinance little understand the noble spirit that animates the devoted workers who have dedicated their lives to the greatest military service on earth—that of fighting disease and death. An eight-hour law for soldiers engaged in the battlefield, where the destruction, not the preservation, of life is the chief object of the fighters, would provoke universal opposition. Yet it would be a far less foolish move.

What people or government would tolerate a ridiculous proposal to limit the fighting of a regiment at the time of war to any fixed number of hours? How many battles would be won by an army that was thus hampered and throttled in its fighting activities?

So in the hospital, where the lives of the sick and suffering may depend on the unbroken ministrations of the nurse and doctor who have studied and understand the case, a sudden withdrawal of their services at a critical moment—due to the enforcing of a cast-iron rule—would jeopardize the life of the patient. In the midst of an important operation, perhaps, the eight-hour shift may expire, and the nurse in the case must neglect her sacred office to obey a crackbrained law. The result might be a death-bed.

Even if this is a far-fetched illustration, it is a possible consequence to be considered. The conscientious devotion of hospital nurses is something far beyond the comprehension of those who would run life after the hard metallic plan of labor-union promoters. With such the call of humanity comes second to red tape and official supervision.

But the nurses in our hospitals have red blood in their veins and charity in their hearts. They are soldiers fighting the battle of humanity, not to be forced into a disgraceful surrender, though Holy Hiram himself sound the call for retreat. Our people will not permit an extra burden to be placed on the hospital work of California.

THE INCOME TAX.

The Spokane Spokesman-Review of recent date had an able editorial on the subject of the income tax. It answers and completely answers the question why incomes of less than $4000 a year should be taxed to relieve men who have an income of $4000 per annum or over. It says that in several European countries "incomes of much less than $900 a year are taxed and that exemption of incomes below $4000 in this country will free nineteen-twentieths of American citizens from direct interest in and responsibility for the money affairs of the nation.

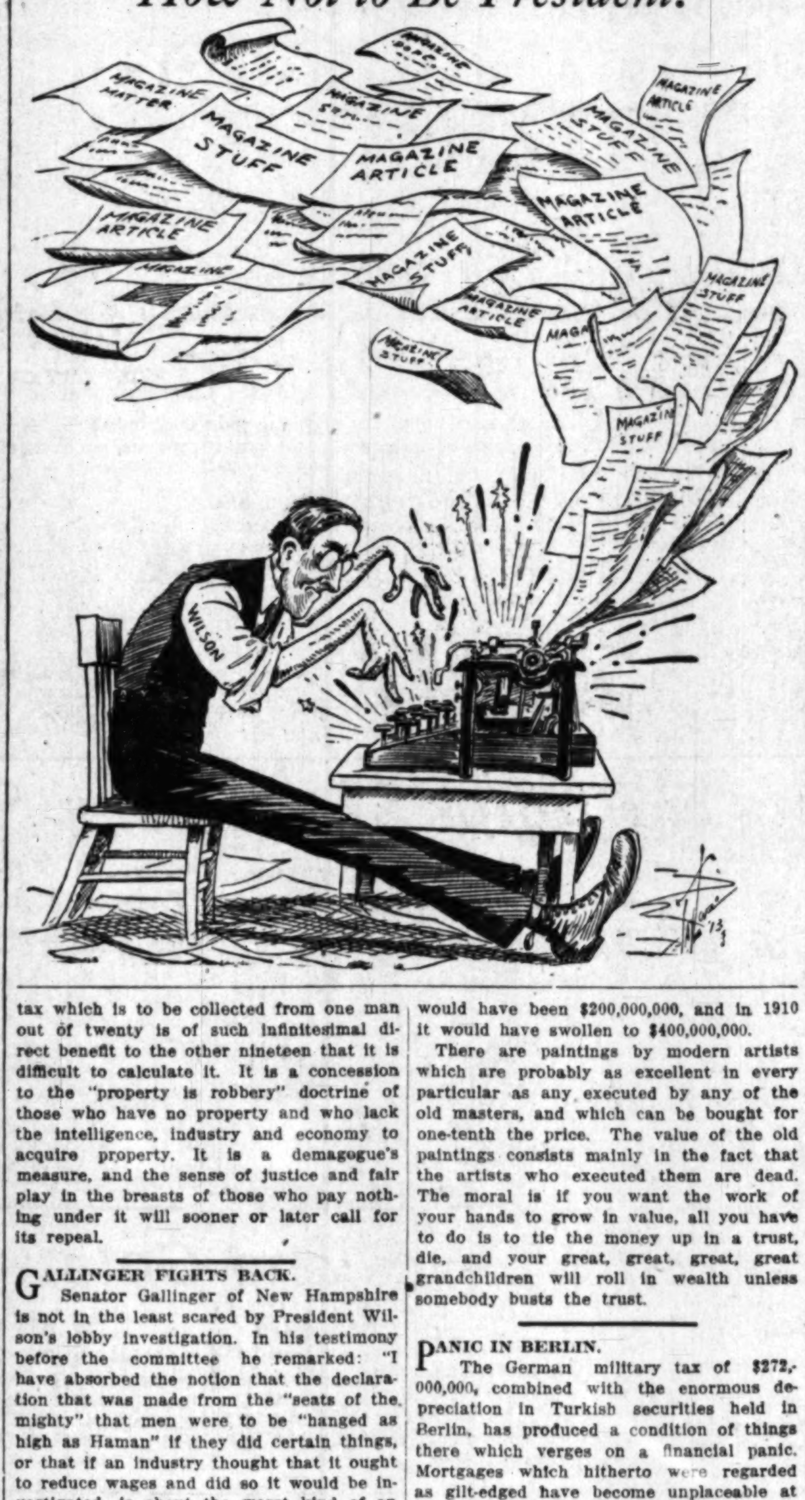
"No country can afford the exemption of such an enormous number of citizens from direct financial connection with the business of government. The monetary loss alone to the revenues would be very great. The effect on the exempt would be demoralizing and in the long run disastrous to the welfare of the nation.

"The reason why incomes below this amount should be taxed, so long as the return from them repays the cost of collection, is that exemption of any income from taxation is undemocratic and deprives a very large number of American citizens from doing their part in directly defraying the expenses of the national government."

The income tax is un-American and at war with the principle of equality of right which our fathers established in the Constitution, and which leading statesmen have for generations woven into the thought of the American people. It is unjust to the thrifty. It is of no practical value to the poor man. It has never heretofore been invoked except as a war measure, even as the writ of habeas corpus has sometimes been suspended in times of public peril. It was acquiesced in during the Civil War without much remonstrance because the life of the nation and the freedom of man demanded that every possible source of revenue should be placed under contribution to provide money to pay a million of men under arms.

With more of remonstrance it was resorted to during the Spanish war to provide funds for the exigency. What is the occasion for again enacting it? Profound peace and unexampled prosperity prevailed from land's end to land's end when President Wilson took the oath of office. Our revenues were more than ample to meet all the expenditures of government. The income tax was inserted—openly, brazenly, defiantly inserted in the Wilson-Underwood bill, for the avowed purpose of making good the deficiency in the revenues that would result from placing sugar, wool and other articles on the free list. The free list was not a Democratic measure, for that party went into power on the doctrine of a tariff for revenue only, and a free list produces no revenue at all. The income tax which is to be collected from one man out of twenty is of such infinitesimal direct benefit to the other nineteen that it is difficult to calculate it. It is a concession to the "property is robbery" doctrine of those who have no property and who lack the intelligence, industry and economy to acquire property. It is a demagogue's measure, and the sense of justice and fair play in the breasts of those who pay nothing under it will sooner or later call for its repeal.

How Not to Be President.



GALLINGER FIGHTS BACK.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire is not in the least scared by President Wilson's lobby investigation. In his testimony before the committee he remarked: "I have absorbed the notion that the declaration that was made from the "seats of the mighty" that men were to be "hanged as high as Haman" if they did certain things, or that if an industry thought that it ought to reduce wages and did so it would be investigated, is about the worst kind of an influence I can imagine."

The Senator deemed that the President made a most unfortunate publication when he got up a scare to let the people think that the Congress of the United States is being attacked by an insidious lobby. Such a publication he suggested was a species of lobbying intended to influence not only public men but opinion, and served to intimidate men against their own judgment.

Mr. Palmer, the head of the beet-sugar protectionist group, was questioned concerning the "boiler-plate" newspaper publicity campaign waged by his organization. He shocked the investigating Democrats when he replied: "I have never given that matter a thought along this line. It always seemed to me that it was optional with the newspapers whether they printed our matter or not. If what we had to say was not in accordance with their own views, they were at liberty to discard it. Besides, I can tell you of other instances where this system of publicity was used for purposes which you may not consider so ulterior as that of the beet-sugar propaganda. The preconvention campaigns of Woodrow Wilson and Oscar W. Underwood for the Democratic nomination at Baltimore were waged with boiler-plate news as one of the principal munitions of warfare."

The Democratic Senators who are endeavoring to smirch Republicans with their lobby investigation at the instance of President Wilson are finding out that there are more blows to be received than there are to impart.

A HIGH-PRICED PAINTING.

Two hundred thousand dollars seems a good deal of money to give for a painting, but it may be fairly considered that any article is worth what it will bring at public auction after due notice.

Rembrandt's "Bathsheba" recently sold at auction in Paris for one million francs, the highest recorded price ever given for a painting. It was bought by a firm of New York picture dealers in sharp competition with an agent of the Rothschilds.

"Bathsheba" was painted in 1643 and was sold in Amsterdam for 550 francs. In 1791 it was the property of a Parisian named Poullain and at public auction brought but 800 francs. Sir Thomas Lawrence, who owned it in 1830, sold it for 3937 francs. In 1841 it passed for 7875 francs into the possession of the Steengrancht family. It did not appear again upon the market until the other day, when for account of some New Yorker, whose name is not given, it was purchased for one million francs.

Great as was the advance in value in "Bathsheba" from $110 in 1646 to $200,000 in 1913, it is nothing to what the gains would have been if the Rembrandt family had invested the original $110 in a loan at 6 per cent. compounding annually. If this had been done the principal sum would now exceed four hundred millions of dollars. When George Washington was President the original 550 francs would have increased to two million francs. When Jackson defeated the British at New Orleans it would have swollen to eight million francs. When California was admitted to the Union there would have been sixty-four million francs in the fund. When Sumter was fired on the original fund of $110 would have amounted to twenty-five millions of dollars. When McKinley was President the Rembrandt fund would have been $200,000,000, and in 1910 it would have swollen to $400,000,000.

There are paintings by modern artists which are probably as excellent in every particular as any executed by any of the old masters, and which can be bought for one-tenth the price. The value of the old paintings consists mainly in the fact that the artists who executed them are dead. The moral is if you want the work of your hands to grow in value, all you have to do is to tie the money up in a trust, die, and your great, great, great grandchildren will roll in wealth unless somebody busts the trust.

PANIC IN BERLIN.

The German military tax of $272,000,000, combined with the enormous depreciation in Turkish securities held in Berlin, has produced a condition of things there which verges on a financial panic. Mortgages which hitherto were regarded as gilt-edged have become unplaceable at 40 per cent. of their value. Although there are 600,000 families in Berlin and families of five and seven persons are living in flats of one room and a kitchen, there are over 80,000 vacant flats in the city. Many new blocks of flats are under foreclosure before they are finished and others are still unfinished because the builders are unable to get any more money. The Merchant Elders' recent report characterized the situation as hopeless. There were 1188 foreclosures in the building and real estate market in the past twelve months.

The regular taxes in Germany with the new income tax and the compulsory insurance of employees aggregate a burden which business men assert exceeds 15 per cent. of their income.

The cable correspondent of the New York Commercial says:

> "A bill now before the Reichstag includes an extra income tax for military purposes and exempts only incomes of less than $750. In order to avoid words the income tax bill provides imaginary property on which very real tax is assessed. The bill provides that in order to ascertain the property of people without property incemoe between $750 and $2500 shall be multiplied by six and the property tax then assessed upon non-existing property of that value. If the value of the income exceeds $2500 the multiple 10 is used, all of which strongly tends to make the thrifty persons hoard their cash or send it abroad."

Savings banks depositors numbering 25,371 have drawn their savings and concealed them in their houses or sent them out of Germany. The new military bill will withdraw 140,000 men from productive industry. The financial needs of Turkey, which must be supplied or the many millions of Turkish bonds now held in Berlin will become absolutely worthless, and the strong probabilities of a prolonged and costly war between Bulgaria on the one hand and Servia and Greece on the other are all factors of disquiet, and the Kaiser in view of the alarming increase in the number of German Socialists, is experiencing the truth of the adage that "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

If you build a line of railway over hills and barren lands, giving lucrative employment to about a million hands; if you cause a score of cities by your right of way to rise, where there formerly was nothing but some rattlesnakes and flies; if, when bringing kale to others you acquire a little kale, then you've surely robbed the peepul, and you ought to be in jail. If by planning and by toiling you have won some wealth and fame, it will make no odds how squarely you have played your little game; your success is proof sufficient that you are a public foe, you're a soulless malefactor, to the dump you ought to go; it's a crime for you to prosper where so many others fail; you have surely robbed the peepul and you ought to be in jail. Be a chronic politician, deal in superheated air; roast the banks and money barons—there is always safety there; but to sound the note of business is a crime so mean and base that the fellow guilty of it ought to go and hide his face; change the builder's song triumphant for the politician's wail, or we'll think you've robbed the peepul, and we'll pack you off to jail.

MODERN MISSIONARIES.

BY HARRY F. BOWLING.

Missionaries are working hard in many countries to bring the heathen to a proper understanding of our higher Christian ideals. If we at home all lived up to these higher ideals, we should have a better chance of converting the so-called heathen. Yet perhaps these heathen, who have a lower ideal but do live up to it, would not be helped much by embracing a nobler faith and neglecting its duties.

China is a case in point. When China adopted oriental philosophy as against occidental militarism, Chinamen, like Jews, to hold their own, were compelled to excel in trade and commerce. Chinese intellect was keen enough to grasp the truth that to succeed in business, a reputation for honesty is essential. They also discovered that the best way to gain this reputation is to be honest. This obvious conclusion has not yet been generally reached by the more complex brains of those holding higher ideals.

Taken as a whole, Chinese traders are the most reliable in the world. A law that decapitates a defaulting banker is a potent force for honesty. Multiplying the avenues of escape for the wrong-doer helps a weak man to toy with his conscience.

The Japanese, on the other hand, lack the reputation of the Chinaman for straightforward dealing, because they have no fixed beliefs or ideals. They have embraced militarism because they have seen it succeed in the Occident; they are opportunists and imitators; they hope to be all things to all men.

Missionaries from America and Europe are working with equal earnestness in China and Japan; so far their efforts have had no effect in changing the general moral characteristics of the two races. Just as certain diseases prevail in certain districts, brought about by climate, swamps, jungles and other natural conditions, so certain racial traits appear to be in the blood of the inhabitants of various parts of the globe. Missionary work will have to create a new race of men—almost to make the leopard change his spots and the Ethiopian his skin—before it can make the ideals of Asia coincide with those of America. And then we might finish up by destroying the heathen honesty of the Chinaman.

Preaching is not the only office of the missionary. Writing the lines is not the most important part in producing a vital drama. In providing shelters for the shelterless and bread for hungry children, the Salvation Army is doing missionary work. All the nobler because it is done in the name of Christ, but just as efficient even if the name of Christ were never mentioned. To provide clothes for savages who are healthier without them, is not missionary work.

Critics of missions are not aware that modern missionaries are working along new lines. An education that fits him solely for clerical pursuits is no longer considered the one requisite in a missionary. He must be a scientist, a doctor, a hygienist, a hunter, a botanist and a good cook as well as a Christian preacher. This generous constructive mission work calls for our best citizens—and it is getting them.

Half a century ago missionaries in foreign lands paid little attention to medicine and physical needs. Too often the Bible was followed by the rum bottle and the dishonest trader. Now it is accompanied by healing medicines and honest business. The heathen, to be saved, must be saved body and soul. They must be taught property rights, not suffer property wrongs. We cannot forget that Christian England attempted to frustrate heathen China in its attempts to kill the cursed opium traffic.

Thank heaven, a new type of man is rapidly coming to the front, to bring about a true conversion. He may be called the honest business missionary. The business missionary is the antidote to the Congo and Putumayo rubber atrocities, to the opium trade and the bagnio. If the gospel is to be preached in every land, it must be by the modern type of resourceful, capable Christian, with honest business as the foundation. Moreover successful missionary work must start with home example. We mustn't risk turning an honest Chinaman into an easy-going moralist. Perhaps if we could make some kind of a trade in morals between the heathen Asiatic and the Christian white man—exchange a little Chinese business integrity for some of our superfluous civilized charity—we might do better than in attempting a complete conversion.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—A noted publicist once said "speak softly but carry a big stick." Fire Chief Murphy admitted that the law provided for a safe and sane Fourth, but he advised everybody to have the garden hose ready in case law-breakers operated. The great and glorious day passed safely enough and despite the oratory the kids are eager for it to come again.

Owing to the defeat of the dog-muzzling ordinance in the Board of Supervisors the canines of the city are once more free. With impunity they laugh at the poundman and scoff at the police. Their immunity from arrest will probably last until the health authorities find a victim who in a good cause will suffer martyrdom and die of rabies.

It is pleasing to note that the proprietor of the Zaza cafe has been acquitted of complicity in the bunco-police scandal. The licenses of the cafes Caesar and Jupiter have been taken away. Policeman Taylor says that he would sooner jump out of a window than confess to taking graft money. It might save the taxpayers money if he was given a chance to make good from a window in the top floor of the Hall of Justice.

With the full approval of the condemned men in State's prison many zealous persons, members of the Anti-Capital Punishment League, are petitioning for an initiative election in 1914. They wish the Governor to reprieve the men until the people vote on the abolishment of capital punishment.

Realty Agent Speck disappeared without leaving any address. His lawyer said that he was taking a much-needed rest but a number of people are more interested in $75,000 that he had in trust than they are in his health. The gentleman has a small name and if he contracts the habit of disappearing he may eventually reach the vanishing point.

There is money in the treasury to pay the salaries of policewomen, but there are none to draw it. Furthermore the Civil Service Commission says it cannot certify applicants for the positions until they know what their duties will be. The commission ought to be censured. It is almost an axiom that the chief and only duty of the average taxeater is to draw the salary.

Gallantry on the part of district attorney and judge allowed a lady accused of attempted extortion to have only women on the jury. Why not allow a husband sued for alimony to get only divorced men as jurors? Going one step farther it would be a delicate little courtesy to an accused murderer if he was allowed a jury of life termers.

Ida George, having once lost her suit against her husband for maintenance, has petitioned for a rehearing. The defendant, Charles E. George, a lawyer, is known as "the intermittent husband," Ida being the fifth lady he has wedded. As the other four are still alive and likely to sue if No. 5 won her case, it might be a humane act to deny the petition for even an attorney would find it hard to feed five ladies at once.

It is supposed to be a misdemeanor to play the lottery, but Li Yung Yow, retiring Consul General of China, who sailed for the Orient this week with $8000 he had won, probably had forgotten it. No steps for his extradition will be taken nor will he be asked to donate any of the money to any of our worthy local charities.

Interviewing Madero.

AN A.P. MAN IN RAINY MEXICO.

Finding the Missing General de la Revoltosos.

Rain and Rebels and Rifles No Real Retard.

The Arkansas Farmer and a Writer of War.

BY ADDISON HUGHES.

There's a lot of difference between a farmer in Arkansas and a war correspondent in Mexico, yet here's an example of similar demeanor.

They tell a funny story in Arkansas of an aged darkey. It was in the cyclone belt during cyclone season. The darkey, on his mule, carried a basket of eggs. He stopped on the road and called to a farmer in a field on the other side of a fence. The farmer came up, leaned on the rail, and asked what was wanted.

"I got some mighty nice fresh eggs here for sale. Ten cents a dozen," said the darkey.

Just then the cyclone hit darkey, farmer and mule, likewise the eggs.

A year later the same darkey on the same mule came along the same road and the same farmer was leaning over a fence at the same spot. The darkey stopped and stared. The farmer shifted his tobacco to the other cheek and drawled:

"How many dozen you got, Mose?"

"Five," came the reply.

"I'll take 'em."

A year and a cyclone apparently didn't make much difference to the farmer. The story may be an exaggeration, but if the farmer was anything like Tim Turner, correspondent for the Associated Press during the Madero revolution in Mexico, it has some foundation in fact. The story told of Tim, who has just come here from El Paso, is truth.

Madero and his rebel army had been lost for weeks. Shortly after proclaiming war against the Porfirio Diaz administration, he and his several hundred followers vanished. The American press was almost as anxious to locate him as were Madero's pursuers. Gen. Diaz wanted his head. The American press wanted his opinions.

Correspondents from the United States scurried over the desert wastes and mountains south of the Rio Grande. They were as thick as Madero's army itself. Reports came from almost every telegraph station south to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec that Madero had been located. Space writers were on the job. But as for the interview—it still eluded capture.

HANDS IT TO TURNER.

Turner, at that time doing assignments for the Associated Press in North-Central Mexico, is a tall, gaunt fellow with Indian cast of features, wide, shining dark eyes, cadaverous expression and a slight stoop—from ducking ceilings and Mexican bullets. Anywhere you see him he'll be wearing a suit of dark-gray mixture, a check cap, a rubber picadilly collar and a small red bow tie.

He is rated one of the four best American newspaper men who specialize in Latin-American journalism. Writing wars is his forte. He knows just enough about hostitilties between armed forces across the border to have difficulty in being polite when he hears these fracases referred to as comic opera or opera bouffe affairs.

The Associated Press ordered one correspondent to find and interview Madero. The correspondent passed the buck. Turner got it, and crossed into Juarez to see if he couldn't get a line on the missing rebel leader. The proverbial needle is no harder to find than was Madero. Turner had scarcely exchanged embraces with the commandant of the post than he heard where an American adventurer, Creighton, was.

Fifteen minutes later a troop train started south. Martin, red of necktie and carefully-creased trousers, was aboard that train. Deduction told him that if anybody knew where Madero was, Creighton at Chihuahua would. He found Creighton, and Creighton delivered.

Turner took the next train north then rode horseback across country to Guadalupe, a squat, gray little Mexican border town. There is a public square, four calles leading into it, a church on each street, and the jefetura. Turner straightened in his saddle as he rode into the plaza. Across the "park," before the jefetura, he recognized half a dozen figures, rebel officers.

STEALING IT.

They welcomed him with open arms, figuratively kissed him on both cheeks and literally hugged him windless. But Madero! Ha! Turner was mistaken. They did not know where he was. Shrugs rose and fell in the group as a storm at sea. No, Madero was not——

Turner's chagrined expression turned to joy. A door had opened between two barefooted guards. Madero, whiskerless, stood on the threshhold. He recognized Tim, but too late. So he invited Tim to lunch. A sardine and a tortilla! After lunch Tim passed around the cigarettes, fished in his pockets for matches and began:

"Now, general, the American public is clamoring for an expression from you. The Associated Press——"

That was all right with Madero. Yes, he would be glad to explain to the press and people of the United States just how he stood, what his aims were once success placed him in control of the destinies of Mexico, and so on. But Senor Turner must appreciate that each word was of momentous import; he must take down a statement, verbatim.

Easy. Turner proceeded to dig from some stray pocket a much-abused little notebook. His pencil was poised over a clean white page. Madero sat back in his chair and rolled his eyes heavenward. The interview was to be inspired. Officers stood about with bated breath.

"Now, general," Tim hurried him, "what will be your first official——"

From outside resounded a clatter of hoofs. There was a sharp "Que Vive?" from the guards. The door slammed open. A tattered Mexican, sombreroed, sandled, dust on his clothes, turned to rivulets of mud, water running from him in streams, stood before them.

"The Federal soldiers—the pursuers, dogs of Diaz, they come in thousands in my wake! Fly for your lives!"

"Que dice?" shouted Madero, sprung from his seat as a jack from his box.

"Damn!" said Turner.

It was evident Madero was not stopping to give the great American people his expression of opinion. Tim sat limply in his chair and watched the rebel officers rush their commander from the shack and out into the drizzle. The plaza was a lake. A score of horses were already being rushed through the water to the door of the jefetura. Madero leaped to a saddle. His officers followed. A bugle sounded and the staff began ploughing their way through the flood.

INSISTENT RECRUIT.

From all sides cavalrymen, in very much of a hurry and with many anxious glances over their shoulders, took their places in the moving column. Turner touched a match to another cigarette and watched the cavalcade clatter by. There was no artillery, but there were commissariat wagon. Around these the guard was gathering.

The last wagon was being pulled through the plaza, hub-high in rain. Several stragglers mounted on sturdy little bronchos stolen from American ranches made up the rear-guard. One was very much in the rear. He had dallied long with a senorita in the shadow of a cathedral. He was in no hurry. He could easily catch up with the slow, lumbering wagons.

Tim called to him. The rider put his horse toward the American. The American advanced through the knee-deep water to the horse's head. Turner dropped a perfectly good cigarette into the flood, put another in his mouth and asked the Mexican for a light. The rebel leaned over in his saddle, puffing at his tobacco.

Tim reached toward the cigarette, let his hand shoot quickly to the Mexican's neck and somersaulted him from the saddle. He was a short rebel and fat, as Mexican men go. He was a bear-cat on a horse but when it came to water—for the first time in his life his entire anatomy was submerged. Nor would he have won a medal in a water-polo game. By the time he had floundered, choking, drowning, above the water, Tim and the horse were across the plaza and Tim was fast reaching a barranca, over which the last wagon was disappearing. High and drier he put heels to his mount and headed for the front of the line. Then the horse fell and broke his leg.

But taking his place in line, Tim splashed on. For half an hour the drizzle abated. Then it was renewed with storm force. For hours it poured. And what hours! The column was moving no faster than a slow walk. The wagons, ammunition and munitions could not be deserted, for Madero was headed the saints alone knew where. The commander himself didn't.

AT THE RANCH.

So part of the infantry—some sixty of 'em—pushed at the wheels while the cavalry, with lariats from saddle pommels, tugged with the wagon teams at the shafts. It rained all that afternoon and all that night. And still the column—and Tim—moved forward. Next day—all day—they marched an hour and rested an hour. That night the march was still on. Men and animals were exhausted, drenched.

Toward noon the walls of a great ranch were spied with glasses. The army moved on the ranch. They were received—hospitably? Madero limped down from his horse. His officers followed. Officers took possession of the ranchman's wife's room and ordered food and drink—quick!

Then there was a shot. And another. Exhaustion fell from the rebel ranks as rain from their slickers. They mounted the ramparts. A courier was dispatched for the infantry, which had been left a few hours' march behind.

"What force is attacking us?" shouted Madero.

"Simply one of our men—he shot a cow," explained an officer, returning from a reconnoiter, "and a second man shot another."

"Court-martial them at once. We must not be unduly alarmed that way," ordered Madero. He sank back into his chair.

Turner pulled a seat over to Madero.

"As you were saying, general," he said, "your first official act after ascending to the control of Mexico will be—what?"

"My God!" Madero looked at him as he would have surveyed an Egyptian mummy found in the tombs of the Mamelukes, had he been an Egyptologist. "Are all American newspaper men like you?"

But Tim Turner got the interview.

"KOREANS—NOT JAPANESE."

"We Don't Want Japanese to Interfere With Our Affairs," Say Rejected Apricot Pickers.

The deepest hatred of the Koreans for the Japanese has expressed itself in Los Angeles as an outcome of the recent trouble of a party of Korean laborers who went to Hemet to pick apricots, and who were turned back by white persons at work in the same line. Yesterday a Japanese merchant approached the Koreans with the suggestion that he take up the matter with the Japanese Consul in San Francisco and seek redress.

"We don't want to see the Japanese Consul, or for that matter have any Japanese interfere with our affairs, whether they are personal or of even an international character," said the Korean spokesman of the group. "We are responsible for ourselves and even though we should perish in this or any other country, the victims of fanatical hatred of any other we should not look to Japan redress in our troubles. While the wise ones are settling to their own satisfaction the identity of the new United States judge for the Southern California district, after Congress authorized such an addition to the judiciary, don't overlook the advancing forces of one Hon. Milton K. Young, first in war, first in fun, but very late in peace until all would-be "reformers" are driven to their nests. Milton is a Democrat of the brand that refuses to leave the reservation or tamper with the brand, and who has about as much use for a Democratic maverick who thinks there is a better political life outside the fold, as he has for one Chorge Alexander, who once upon a time made an attempt to force said Young off the City Civil Service Commission. Of course the attempt proved futile, but the bond of brotherly love between Uncle Chorge and Father Milt has never become so strong that a team of mules is necessary to separate them.

Young is making a decidedly effective battle for this proposed judgeship. He hasn't taken on any scares because of reports that the job is being made for the lone and seclusive use of Lynn Helm; or that Ben. F. Bledsoe is sure to get the appointment; or that Drew Pruitt will get it if he will take it; or that Joe Call is quietly assuming a receptive attitude; or that ex-Judge D. K. Trask is being suggested as the right man to give the office the proper dignity and learning. None of these things appalled this rock-ribbed, copper-riveted, steel-lined, concrete-bottomed Bourbon, who still sees more good in the old-line Democracy than the Wildest-eye "Progressive" ever saw in a pipe-dream. Letters of indorsement have been going out every mail from the best men in the legal profession here, regardless of politics, urging Young's appointment. It is because of the class and character of these letters of indorsement that the Honorable Milton Kidderino Young must be considered as still in the race, though not at all still in it. And the wise gazeeba, who recently declared that Double-U Ona Morton is backing Drew Pruitt for this place, has another guess a-coming. Double-U Ona is for the Honorable Milt all the way down the line.

When the stars and lights of the irrepressible and progressive Jefferson Club, nee Honorable Solomon Patricious Clark, decided not to participate in the mad struggle for political office, that organization proved to its calumniators that it does not participate in politics for mere spoils of office but solely for the uplift and improvement of public life and public affairs. Keeping out of the fight for spoils the Jefferson Club has been harmonized to a degree that almost suggests the Chautauqua salute. While a few individual members may be flirting with possibilities of future advancement, the club as a club has refrained from taking an active part. This doesn't mean that the Jeffersonian leaders do not have some belief in the old war cry of "to the victors belong the spoils;" but because of the conflicting political affiliations of the members it has been deemed wisest to keep out of the job-chasing game and continue in the conflict for the remoralization and uplift of the common humanity in Los Angeles and vicinity. It may be that as a reward for this self-abnegation, Steward Clark may be prevailed upon to accept the Democratic nomination in his district next session.

The George S. Patton boom for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination has been making some impression in the northern section. Patton is one of the few Democratic southlanders who is well and favorably known north of the Tehachepi, and the announcement in these columns that he is boosted for this nomination, has been the subject of recent and extensive comment in several newspapers. Patton was chairman of the State convention when Franklin K. Lane was nominated for Governor and he made many friends by his capable and fair rulings. And this was no easy task at that time, for that was some troublesome convention. E. E. Leake, of Yolo county, and one of the ablest Democrats in the State, declares that Patton will make a formidable candidate, not because he is from Southern California, but because he is recognized as an exceptionally capable man.

The talk favoring Tim Spellacy in this connection also continues; and the name of E. L. Doheny, the oil magnate, may also be heard mentioned intermittently. Doheny as a candidate, pouring "oil" upon the Democratic workers, is an argument that can't be sneezed at.

THE WATCHMAN.

PATTON HOSPITAL CROWDED.

Plea for Relief Comes from Institution, and a New One May Have to Be Built.

Patton has sent out word that the Southern California State Hospital for the Insane is congested. Never in its history have so many patients been crowded within its walls, and a plea has gone up for relief. This problem is now being considered and the report is that either the institution will have to be enlarged or a new one built. If the latter is decided upon another location will be selected.

As the insanity cases have increased in the ratio of three to one over two years ago, the Lunacy Commission of this county can see no relief. An average of fifty cases covering three sessions a week is crowding not only the County Hospital, but taxing the members of the Lunacy Commission. Patton receives a majority of those found insane. There is talk now of providing a sanatorium where the milder cases may be treated, which will, in a measure, relieve Patton. All institutions where those suffering from mental troubles are sent are reported crowded.

The judges of the Superior Court are now considering relieving the presiding judge of the insanity work by assigning it to the judge of the miscellaneous court. The latter will be established when the six new judges are appointed by the Governor in the fall. As its name implies, the miscellaneous court will take civil cases not regularly set in departments, emergency suits and other matters. Having no regular calendar, the judge of the miscellaneous court will have opportunity to preside at the Lunacy Commission at the County Hospital thrice a week.

SHE OFFERS ANY AID.

Woman's Automobile Runs Down and Injures Man in Tunnel and She Looks After His Welfare.

An automobile driven by Mrs. Frederick Calkins, No. 233 Andrews boulevard, yesterday afternoon ran down and injured Clyde Nichols, a laborer living at Fullerton. The injured man was taken to the Receiving Hospital and later, in a taxicab brought at the instance of Mrs. Calkins, was taken to the residence of his sister. He was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Calkins was driving through the Third-street tunnel and Nichols was coming from the opposite direction on a bicycle. Nichols was knocked to the pavement and one wheel of the woman's automobile stopped a few inches from his neck. Mrs. Calkins was anticipated in her desire to take the injured man to the hospital by the driver of another machine who hurried him there. Aside from bruises Nichols will not sustain any inconvenience from the mishap. Mrs. Calkins drove her machine to the hospital and volunteered any assistance possible.

Peek Into Future.

MOROSCO OUTLINES 1914 THEATRICAL FASHIONS.

BY OLIVER MOROSCO.

WHAT will the drama of tomorrow be!

That is a question that is not only interesting every theatergoer who takes the stage with more or less of a degree of seriousness, but every real, active producing manager of whom America can boast.

On my recent trip to New York I met and talked frequently with a majority of those who direct the theatrical destiny of our time, and of each one I attempted to learn their views of the coming year and, in fact, years to follow—to ascertain, if possible, what the ever-changing fashion in plays might bring forth.

And I got very few opinions. They seemed to be a bit at sea.

Ten years ago such plays as "The Prisoner of Zenda," etc.—those of the romantic and melodramatic style—were popular. And in their action the most unusual things happened—almost anything, in fact, that might produce an effect—any theatrical trick that might bring forth applause.

But long since that type of play has gradually but surely faded from sight, just as we have now passed through our two or three seasons of popularity of what is commonly known as "the punch play."

But the "punch plays" were not without their tricks and theatricalism, although these elements were injected into the manuscripts with finer hands and, therefore, made even more effective.

At the heighth of the triumphant reign of the drama with a "wallop," I predicted that it would not be lasting and, to test my opinion, I produced "Peg O' My Heart," a simple, sweet story—just a bit of the life of a little Irish girl placed upon the stage as it might occur in real life—and it is needless for me to say that "Peg" has proved the biggest and most substantial success we have had this year.

DRAMA OF TOMORROW.

But to get down to the subject of the drama of tomorrow.

I have tried for years to study and please the taste of an ever-changing public and in a measure have been fairly successful in keeping pace with it.

I have come to believe—and have once or twice made simple tests—that the drawa of tomorrow must be utterly devoid of theatricalism.

And by theatricalism I mean many things.

Our young writers for the stage must come to know that, while the people of this day are getting more and more willing to face and work out the problems of their existence, they do not care to go to the theater and there witness three or four acts reeking with sadness and gloom and which present to them only the things darkest in life.

And our producers must disregard their tendency to cover the defects of their drama with their tricks of lighting and scenic effects.

One producer especially, has won a great reputation for his sensational effects. As you sit in your cushioned chair trying to listen intently to what is going on about the stage, he will, for no good reason whatever, quietly sneak a light in this window and carefully change the lighting of the entire stage and, just as you have stopped marveling at his handicraft and are about to once more put you mind on the play, he just as deftly sneaks a soft, bluish-green moonlight through the other window.

And after he gets through with three of four acts of these visual surprises you go away from the theater to talk about the wonderful ability of this man, and forget the cleverness or intelligence of the author.

All very well when there is sufficient reason for these things, but to manipulate the emotions of your audience through their eyes and not their brains by a series of tricks of this kind is not giving them good drama.

—THE SOB PLAY.

To get back to our authors and their views of life.

I want to take for the instance "The Great Divide," as I recall it. (I possibly didn't see the whole play. I was "weeped" out of the theater.)

In this Mr. Moody, the author, presents a young woman—a heroine—who, through the best part of her whole life, does nothing but sob. When she is not sobbing she is copiously weeping. Then she goes into a high-powered cry and when she has dried her eyes and pulled herself together she "emoshes" will all her vim and vigor.

That part of Miss Jordan was played by Margaret Angiin, and she was the envy of every leading woman in America. It was a great part, said they. It was wonderful to weep and make an audience weep with your throughout four acts.

But does it seem plausible that this heroine could possibly live a life of solid tears—without one single smile. Is it possible that out among those people of the West—some of the few red-blooded human characters concerned in this play never even called this young woman aside and told her an old "Joe Miller" they heard at a vaudeville show?

No, it is not.

No, life is one long darkness. Even the most unfortunate have their lights and shadows. But Mr. Moody was striving, not to depict this girl's real existence, her joys and sorrows. He was showing her life according to the traditions of the stage. He was striving for an effect and using tricks and theatricalism galore to achieve his end.

But would you call "The Great Divide" the great American drama? Most assuredly not.

That I take only as an instance—one that I readily recall—for I remember how sorry I felt when I first saw the play, for that poor girl who had never known the sunshine of laughter.

And by that I do not mean to relieve a play of this kind by putting in two or three irrelevant characters for the simple purpose of creating a bit of comedy here and there—although I will admit it would have served as a relief to the constant sobbing in this case.

But I do think that had Mr. Moody taken this girl out of real life, placed her upon the stage and shown, along with her sorrows, a bit of her happiness—you know Miss Jordon might have seen something during the action of the play—some other woman with a last year's hat on and thereby might have forgotten her hysteria long enough to laugh just once, or even smile. It would have been a relief anyway—he might have created a personage far more lasting.

And another instance of strait-laced dramatic tradition will be recalled by the fact that in the days gone by our hero must be a man who always did the heroic thing and was forever stern, handsome and dramatic.

No comedy ever—or very seldom—bubbled forth for the simple reason that the playwright followed tradition and created him of the stern, strong, resolute type.

NEED DIFFERENT HERO.

The actor was not wrong. It was with the author that the fault lay.

If this hero had been taken from real life he might have been just as "The Fox" and "The Builders" Rival Attractions.

Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin Here.

Blanche Bates and John Mason Soon.

"The Fox," Lee Arthur's mystery play, has proved such a genuinely popular offering at the Burbank Theater that it will be continued for one more week, beginning with the usual matinee today.

The present revival of "The Fox" in its revised condition has proved even more successful, in fact, than did the play on the occasion of its premier production at the Burbank two years ago, and, in spite of the warm wave and some uncommonly heavy counter attractions, the Burbank Theater has been crowded to the doors at every performance.

The production of this fine play is also made more interesting by the reappearance of A. Byron Beasley, who again appears in his remarkable characterization of Peter Delaney, while the remaining members of the cast—Forrest Stanley, David M. Hartford, Morgan Wallace, Grace Travers, Beatrice Nichols, James Corrigan and the other Burbank favorites—are all shown to exceptionally fine advantage.

The degree of popularity achieved by the "Fox" is unquestionably due

Genius in Beauty.

Beauty like hers is genius. Not the call
Of Homer's or of Dante's heart sublime—
Not Michael's hand furrowing the zones of time—
Is more with compassed mysteries musical;
Nay, not in spring's or summer's sweet footfall
More gathered gifts exuberant life bequeathes
Than doth this sovereign face, whose love spell breathes
Even from its shadowed contour on the wall.
As many men are poets in their youth,
But for one sweet-strung soul the wires prolong
Even through all change the indomitable song;
So in likewise the envenomed years, whose tooth
Rends shallower grace with ruin void of ruth,
Upon this beauty's power shall wreak no wrong.

More Thumb Box Sketches.

Speaking of sketches—I wonder why the painters of Los Angeles so persistently and consistently neglect the possibilities of the summer sands at Venice.

Not merely the beach itself, which is occasionally attempted by the sketcher in search of a paintable "bit," but the picturesque groups upon it.

At 6:30 p.m. last Sunday I found myself on the pier in Venice. The pier was crowded, and I dislike crowds, so I switched to the left, picked my way through the park of automobiles, found a comfortable seat near the edge of the pier, and looked at the strip of beach that curves so gracefully northward.

Little groups of people, mostly in twos and threes, dotted the dun-gray sands, making exquisite spots of color exactly as if they had been arranged for the picture that delighted my eyes. The fading light softened and toned down every detail of the women's gowns, showing only the chasm of their various colors.

Here sat a girl in dull blue near another in mauve. A young man in gray sprawled beside them. A green sunshade stuck into the sand, and holding a feathered hat made a vivid and most beautiful note of contrast. Far away a man in black lay prostrate, with something red (I could not tell what) giving accent to the picture. In the middle distance sat a girl in a gorgeous cerise picture hat with flowing plumes; she herself was clad in white. Other equally picturesque figures and groups were everywhere, against the perfect background of the sands. It was all very simple, very effective, as if laid in with big sweeps of a brush.

Closer to the sea the waves were wetting the sand till it showed a wide band of Italian pink with hints of lavender. On this two or three small children ran and screamed. One was in red and blue, another in blue and white, and several little girls were in sheer white that was positively luminous in the late afternoon light. I sat and gazed and marveled, and wished that Whistler might be with me to see it. What a picture he would have made of it all! Indeed, I decided to unearth my neglected color box the next day and paint it myself. (This I did not do, of course.)

Then, as the light faded more and more, and the people grew blurred and indistinct, I looked toward the sea itself, which had turned to that wonderful green once upon a time used as a writing fluid.

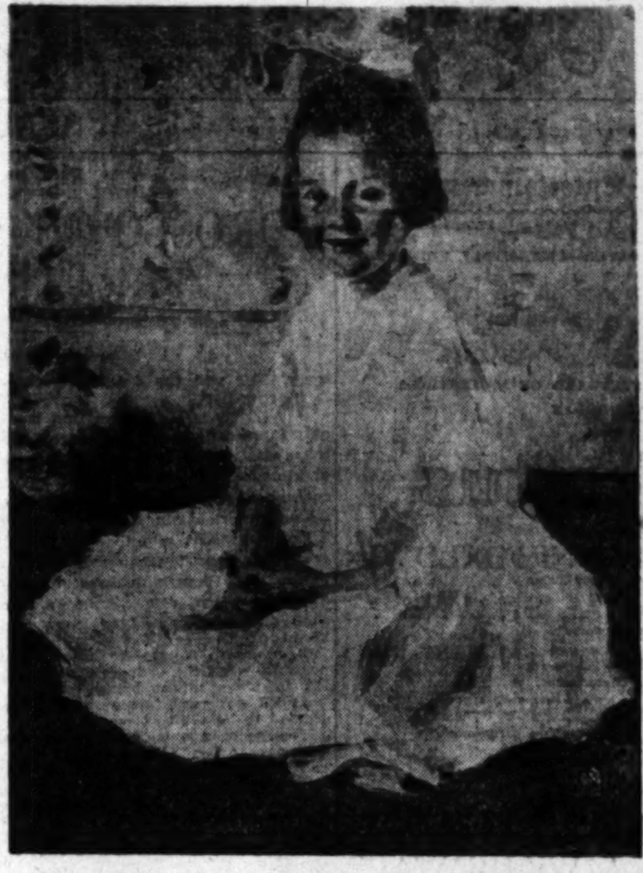
Directing my gaze toward the land again, I found that a sort of red mist was rising, painting the distance with light and delicate smudges of pastel —red mixed with gold and purple. It was now 7:30 p.m. I had studied that wonderful changing impression for a full hour, joyously content with every second of the time.

Glancing sideways, I noted a neat black-silk ankle and a trim high-heeled shoe resting on the railing where my feet were placed. My glance traveled upward. The lady was young and charming. I looked again. She had a chaperon. I got up and went away.

All this is merely a preliminary to some comments I am about to make anent the exhibition of thumb-box sketches now being given in the Merick Reynolds gallery, No. 841 South Broadway. This is my second discussion on the delightful exhibition, therefore it behooves me to be as brief as the exigencies of copy-making will permit.

I began with A, with the intention of stopping with Z. Don't be disheartened—there is no Z, and I have already reached M. And I promise to be brief and cursory, because my own "impression" of Venice has usurped much of my space. If some artist will now go down to Venice and paint it, my labor will not have been in vain.

Herbert A. Morgan shows some women's heads very cleverly and prettily done; Helen K. MacCarthy, little scenes that might be from Spain or Southern Italy, so juicily colorful are they—bits along a river, glimpses of church towers, etc.; Norwood MacGilvary, an exquisite scene, a landscape in late twilight, floating mists over a valley, a moon rising above hills; Louise B. Mansfield, some simple and direct European sketches—wheeled bath-houses in the surf, a quiet village street, two women in white making their way through the light-green foliage of spring, a yellow boat moored near some slender tree trunks.



Little girl in white. By Edward Dufner.

Rhoda Holmes Nichols, whose fame rests on her unusual facility as a water-colorist, has a few strong and simple sketches in oils, one of them with trees like Corot's and a technique like unto Daubigny's. Will T. Quinlan shows himself to be an excellent colorist and an able technician in a snow scene under the heavy blue sky of late afternoon, a study of moonlight over a marsh, and so on. There are good tonal qualities in the evening effects of Carl Ringius, poetic suggestions.

The nude figures by H. C. Renwick, posed in the woods under flickering sunlight, are vigorous things, done in the true manner of the sketch. Chauncey F. Ryder handles his grays well in his hillside in early spring, and in the sketch of waves beating among rocks. Fine color, true feeling, a sense for values are noted in Marion Swinton's nasturtiums, set in a dull-green vase, and also in her picture of a maid of long ago, a pretty pink lass in a greenish poke bonnet trimmed with pink ribbons and roses.

Martha C. Walker's street scenes are done in a direct, simple and forceful way, showing that the painter knew what she was about. Refinement of feeling and handling is noted in the scenes from Egypt, contributed by Victor Wilbour. Gustave Wiegand uses vibrant color with a full brush in his landscape studies of mountains and hillsides.

This interesting exhibition will remain open to July 26.

Wood Engraving for Color.

Among the makers of modern color prints in Great Britain today not the least interesting is that group of artists who have selected the engraved wood block as a medium for pictorial expression in color.

The charm of the Japanese color print was bound sooner or later to inspire European artists to adopt its methods for the utterance of their own ideals of decorative design. But the Japanese artist was never the actual engraver or printer of his design, whereas the English artist is the sole producer of his color prints; he makes his design, he engraves it on as many blocks as he requires for the colors, and these he inks and prints with his own hands. Each print, therefore, is to all intents and purposes an individual work of art; and this wholeness, this unity of work, it is that invests with so much artistic interest and importance the modern movement in engraving for color.

A particularly interesting fact about the artists employing wood blocks is that, while the technique of the Japanese cutters has undoubtedly formed the basis and example of most of the English practice, it is adopted by no means exclusively; in fact, each artist handles the wood with the craftsmanship he finds best suited to his own manner of design.

Let us describe briefly the procedure which these artists have borrowed from the Japanese. First, the design is transferred, in indelible Indian or Chinese ink, onto Indiana mill paper, a thin tough paper, much resembling that on which bank notes are printed, only rather more transparent. Then with starch paste the design is stuck face downward onto the block, which is usually either cherry or pear wood, and sometimes sycamore. When the paper is dry it is sand-papered away until the lines are quite visible on the wood, sweet oil helping to define them. The artist next cuts around all the line with a little pointed Japanese knife, and clears away the intervening spaces of wood with any tools—chisels or gouges—of convenient sizes.

That completes the outline block, but rectangular register marks have to be cut upon it, an eighth of an inch deep, to ensure the exact printing of the color blocks. These have next to be cut, and the colors—the powders mixed with rice paste and water—are applied with flat brushes of Siberian bear. The actual printing is done, not with the roller press, but by hand-rubbing, the damp paper being necessarily absorbent and previously sized. Parchment size is recommended.—[International Studio.

ART NOTES.

Haig Arklin, artist and lecturer on art, will open a studio in Los Angeles. For many years Arklin has been giving critical expositions on the famous masterpieces of painting. He has made superb copies of these paintings, and the copies have been used in stereopticon views illustrating his talks. He lectured last year in the Ebell Club of Los Angeles.

For the past six weeks Jean Mannheim has been sketching at Monterey. He brought a number of superb marines with him which will be exhibited in the fall. A recent successful portrait by Mannheim was painted for the State House in South Dakota.

Seventy-five of the best works of Mode Wineman, the artist-photographer, will be exhibited permanently at the gallery, in Hotel Windermere, Santa Monica. The gallery will have its formal opening on August 2, on which occasion it will receive a name. A thousand invitations will be issued for this brilliant affair, whose Reception Committee will consist of prominent men from Los Angeles, Santa Monica and Pasadena.

"Art and the Human Spirit" is the subject of a series of lectures being delivered this month at Cumnock School of Expression by Edward Howard Griggs. The lectures will deal with the meaning and relations of sculpture, painting, poetry and music.

Xarifa Hamilton Towner has built herself a combined studio and home at Laguna Beach, on the cliffs at the edge of Boat Canyon. She will remain there and sketch all through the summer months. Cypress drive and Magnolia street is the address of the studio.

Theatrical Fashions

And so on down the line of stage characters.

The villain must always and forever be a simon-pure bad man; the ingenue must always be smiling and gay, with a flippant and giddy personality and manner that becomes tedious, while the heroine nine times out of ten was selected for her ability to produce real tears—sometimes even a veritable spring shower.

And the dramatist has in all these years stuck very close to these same traditions.

But that is all very wrong.

My hero might at his noonday meal, as any other human being might do, throw off his heroic aspect and laugh and chat over trivial events.

I would confine my brilliant remarks and my comedy speeches within the character themselves in the story of the play proper. Instead of the trivial thing at the lunch hour in the day, or any person, make the comedy an actual part of the plot, instead of as in the plays of yesterday and today, where the hero was a hero without relaxation from 8:14 to 11 p.m., not forgetting the matinee.

MUST DEPICT LIFE.

The great play of tomorrow must depict life—real human existence as it is, and when the dramatist comes along who can take a slice of life and deftly transplant it to the stage, theatricalism will be left behind and stage tricks will be forgotten.

This has been approached recently in "The Easiest Way," and in "Kindling," but both plays possessed an abundance of the theatrical, which overshadoyed their resemblance to real life in no small degree.

When I say the big play of tomorrow will depict real, everyday life, I will not attempt to pick the plot, foretell the theme, or say what particular phase of life it will reveal to us, but I imagine it will concern the question of sex and revolve about the greatest, but most mysterious and least understood of all human emotions—love—ahd deal directly with a more complete understanding between man and woman.

And the playwright who finally does give us such a great play will handle his theme, whether it be that of love—the sex problem—or some other, in an absolutely frank and candid manner, for the people of today are rapidly coming to squarely face their problems of life rather than to know they exist, but possess too much false modesty and lack of courage to uncover and solve them.

The great trouble with a vast majority of the people of the present day is they are constantly striving to make every one else believe they are something they are not and never will be—they spend all too much of their time "kidding themselves"—to drop into slang—but as the world becomes educated, and it rapidly is, this tendency is fast disappearing.

MANY VITAL PROBLEMS.

There are thousands of vital problems in this world and in our everyday life that are still unsolved—many that none have even seriously considered, and it seems to me that it remains for the stage in the near future to bring about a finer understanding and a keener knowledge of the human emotions—as they really exist, by placing real life, minus theatrical frills and fancies, upon the stage in such a frank, but and interesting manner that cause the populace to take a mental exercise that is bound sult in benefiting present-day ity and bettering the future tion.

I myself have conceived dwelling about a phase of life touching on the which I shall call "The Tomorrow," a title which that I have set forth above.

I do not claim to be able to rately gauge the public taste future. I only try to carefully my public, keep pace with the stay close to earth and base my ment accordingly.

While I hold forth no hope may be lucky enough to hit theme and successfully convey public the thought that will great play of tomorrow, I to be the manager who succeeds finding and producing such a play.

The son proceeds to Arizona, and there becomes involved in a big irrigation war.

From this point develops a story of unusual interest, into which is cleverly interwoven a thoroughly fascinating and quite unusual love story, coming to an end, of course, with the final curtain to the exact satisfaction of the audience.

"The Builders" has powerful situations and thrilling moments, as well as an abundance of the most wholesome sort of comedy. It is exceptionally well suited to the talents of the Morosco company, and will find William Desmond, Frances Ring, Harrison Hunter, Howard Scott, Grace Valentine, James K. Applebee, James Neill, Florence Oberle, and, in fact, every member of the organization, cast to especial advantage.

Orpheum.

The coming week, opening Monday matinee, will positively be the last for this season of the stay at the Orpheum of Cecilia Loftus. It is with her own; she has no rivals in her line and her work is all her own. regret that the announcement is made, but the exigencies of the booking office compel the limiting of her engagement here to a single fortnight. Miss Loftus is deservedly one of the most popular stars on the Orpheum time, and her mimicry is all She varies her impersonations from time to time and will have several new ones for her last week here.

With Miss Loftus is a fine new bill, bringing back for their first vaudeville engagement here a duo of popular favorites, Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin. In "Pickings from Song and Dance Land," these two clever entertainers have combined in one act a series of songs and dances, showing not only their versatility, but marked ability in every way. As is always the case, Mr. Bronson will be seen as a modern fashion plate, while Miss Baldwin will also have some stunning gowns to adorn her pretty self. The act has a certain cachet of exclusiveness, and will be found among the best of the modern vaudeville offerings.

Matthews and Shane, two clever men will offer a tabloid fantasy, "A Night on the Bowery," with one as a dope fiend and the other as a typical East-side Hebrew—not a travesty, but an impersonation of worth, true to life. They have a lot of new patter, songs and dances to proffer, all their own creations.

Chief Caupólican, the Indian barytone, will make his bow here. The chief is of a South American tribe, known as the pale-faced Indians, and has a voice of superb quality, which has had the advantage of European training. He will be heard to advantage in the best songs of the day, as well as some classic selections. He also gives a talk about his people which is not only instructive but humorous.

Jones and Sylvester, both former members of "That Quartette," will proffer a comedy skit, "The Two Drummers," with plenty of scope for the same high-class work that made that organization famous.

Lew Hoffman, known as the hat fiend, will do some remarkable juggling with sky pieces. Bond and Benton will offer a new sketch, "His Gay Papa," and the Five Melody Maids, with Will J. Ward, will also remain.

Empress.

A new and screamingly funny comedy called "Fun in a Boarding House," will be the big headline attraction for the new week beginning Monday afternoon at the Empress theater, when an entirely new bill of six splendid features will occupy the stage of this popular-priced vaudeville house.

Two seasons ago Lew Fields produced "The Midnight Sons" and with it caused very much of a sensation by showing on the stage a setting which showed three floors of a New York boarding house—nine rooms in all—and this unusual feat is duplicated in "Fun in a Boarding House."

Something happens in every one of these nine rooms at the same time—the fun, for it is all fun, being of a constant and most riotous sort, in fact to watch "Fun in a Boarding House" and trying to keep track of all that is happening is very much like setting among thousands and trying to follow all of the interesting events taking place in a three-ring circus.

There is always the star boarder, the favored one, the hot-air artist, the "yap," the wise, analytical gentleman and a number of other strange and funny species of human beings in a New York boarding house, and every one of these is pictured in a most humorous way. Even boarding-house hash is not forgotten. The act requires the services of twenty-two clever comedians and will prove the biggest offerings that Sullivan and Considine have ever sent over their circuit.

The second feature of the new bill will be the famous comedians, Bowman Brothers, known to the vaudeville world as the Blue Grass Boys. These young men are two of the cleverest funmakers of the higher class on the vaudeville stage today and recently started their tour as featured members of the Orpheum show, but on account of unsatisfactory long jumps, etc., cancelled their engagement with this circuit to complete their trip over America in the Empress theaters.

Third in importance among the newcomers are Bob Archer and Mabel Belford, who have joined hands and produced a very funny skit called "The Janitor's Troubles."

And there will be another uncommonly attractive offering furnished by the master magician, Del Adelphia and his five assistants, who will offer a series of the most amazing new illusions of recent years. Del Adelphia has discarded all of the old "standby" tricks of the numerous wonder workers and presents a series of mysteries that are new and of his own origin.

Others on the new bill will be Julia Rooney, one of the famous Rooney family; Alvin and Kenny in "Fun on the Flying Rings," and the new comedy motion pictures.

Pantages.

Terpsichorean novelties such as have never been seen in Los Angeles before will be in order at Pantages for the week commencing Monday afternoon, when Edwin Ford and his five dancing beauties make their first appearance in what critics have classified as the greatest dancing act in vaudeville.

The appearance of Ford in the act assures its merit, for while with the Four Fords he was considered the most remarkable solo hard and soft shoe dancer on the stage. His coming with his own company will be welcome to local playgoers.

Many innovations in dancing will be given by Ford, and his support is admirable. The theatrical stagnation in the East left many well-known vaudeville performers unemployed. Many of these dancing stars are now appearing incognito and every one of Ford's quintette of terpsichorean artists has been featured in musical comedy and vaudeville productions. The act is handsomely mounted with three sets of special scenery and is in every respect the finest production of the Ford family.

Equal in importance with the Ford act is the great Heras Troupe of spectacular acrobats. The family was featured for five years with Ringling Brothers, astute circus owners, who keep no act that is not a feature. Pantages witnessed the act two years ago, and only now has been able to secure their signatures to a contract.

La Bergere, the French Posing Venus, and her superb hunting dogs in eleven classic subjects; Davis, Allen and Davis, singers and comedians; Jack Symonds, the tramp monologuist known as "The Man of Ease;" the Jourdane Trio of operatic vocalists, and the Animated Weekly, round out the attractive vaudeville programme.

Mason.

Week after next, opening Monday, July 14, the Mason will present Blanche Bates and her New York company, offering "The Witness for the Defence." This is a very strong play, wherein Miss Bates has one of the most powerful emotional roles in her career. She comes with her entire New York cast intact, and will be here, only one week.

Play, star and company are metropolitan in the last extreme, and the engagement promises to be one of the most notable of the Mason season. She will be here only one week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, and seats for the entire engagement will be placed on sale next Thursday morning.

Majestic.

One of the most notable attractions of the new season will be the appearance of the distinguished actor, John Mason, who will shortly come to the Majestic Theater in Augustus Thomas's latest and greatest success, "As a Man Thinks." It was in this play that Mr. Mason recently scored such a decided success in New York and all of the larger cities of the East, and he is now making a limited tour of the Pacific Coast under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert.

Mr. Mason was announced to appear earlier in the season at the Broadway playhouse, but owing to a change in routing his appearance was delayed.

Lyceum.

That Messrs. Cort and Morosco were right in believing that Los Angeles needed and would generously support a high-class motion picture theater devoted exclusively to the showing of feature films has been demonstrated since Friday afternoon, when the Lyceum Theater on Spring street, between Second and Third, opened its doors as the Los Angeles link of the Morosco-Cort circuit with the first pictures of "The Battle of Gettysburg."

With a popular scale of prices as the policy, reserved seats, a splendid orchestra, and in fact, every attractive feature to be found in the finest theater, the Lyceum has attracted capacity audiences to witness this remarkable film.

Just at this time "The Battle of Gettysburg" holds an added interest for the reason that the fiftieth anniversary of this bloody conflict is just now being celebrated on the field of Gettysburg, while it is also the first great war picture that has ever been produced.

In five reels of over one thousand feet each, many of the most interesting events leading up to the declaration of war, are most interesting depicted on the screen, while the auditor is then taken to the vicinity of Gettysburg, where preparations are in progress by both the Blues and the Grays for the greatest conflict in American history.

You see the Union generals in consultation over their maps planning what later resulted in their victory, while you see Gen. Lee and his sturdy warriors carefully planning their invasion into northern territory.

You see the thousands upon thousands of troops arrive at Gettysburg. You see clearly pictured the pick of both armies maneuvering for their positions and then you see the beginning of the struggle that lasted through the days of July 1, 2 and 3, 1863.

The pictures follow with great accuracy the thrilling events of the three days' battle down to Pickett's last determined and sensational charge and in this the director has demonstrated to a remarkable degree that there is almost nothing that cannot be pictured with the motion picture camera.

The "Battle of Gettysburg" films will be shown for this week only, being exhibited every afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, and every night at 8:15 o'clock, until next Saturday night, when the films will be taken to San Francisco.

Clune's.

One of the greatest Civil War motion-picture dramas which Los Angeles has ever seen will be shown this week when "Shenandoah," a monster three-reel Kalem production, made with hundreds of actors and supers, and at an expense of many thousand dollars, will be exhibited for the first three days of next week at Clune's Broadway.

It is especially appropriate as following Fourth of July week and will do much toward keeping up patriotism. There are any number of great scenes in this war drama. There is shown the wavering of the Federals, where Gen. Phil Sheridan gallops in from "twenty miles away," rallies the scattering forces, and snatches a victory out of the jaws of defeat.

This will be shown in connection with Clune's usually high-class bill of first-run pictures, including the famous Pathe weekly, with its views of recent happenings.

At Clune's Fifth-street some unusually big heart interest film dramas are pictured for next week. There will also be a number of clever musical specialties, and altogether the bill will be one of the best seen there for some time.

Tally's Broadway.

"The Forbidden Way," a gripping and thrilling melodrama of the underworld, will be the headliner at Tally's Broadway Theater for the coming three days. The criminal element of city life has supplied stories for many of the greatest dramatic successes. This powerful photoplay is a masterly presentation of scenes from the criminal haunts of a great city and the story throbs with strong sentiment and powerful pathos. Alice Joyce will appear in a Kalem drama and Charles Murray, the famous Biograph comedian, will supply most of the laughs in two funny comedies. The Tiger Lily, the wonderful animal feature, will be shown for the last time today.

Mozart.

It would be hard to imagine anything more interesting and diverting that is worth while than the captivating travelogue subjects, made available through the pictures having such a popular run, at the Mozart Theater. If you are interested in travel, history, or a bit of fairyland, these scenic photoplays will appeal to you, for they spread before you some of the most exquisite scenery, quaint costumes and the life and customs of these singular people.

Beginning with the matinee today the third programme of the series will be presented. Our journey will start with a jaunt through Ireland. Many choice scenes which will be pleasing to the observer are in this travel film. A view of the old Abbey, Bridge and Killarney, with a glimpse of other places, that are fresh and entertaining, will be in this picture.

In Indo-China some alluring sights are promised, along with an exciting buffalo hunt. Pictures of India will show some well-chosen glances of the natural landscape, as well as the customs of the Buddhists. Sensational logging in Maine is a film that is easily the best educational and industrial one of its kind; the blowing up of the dam and the wild rush of waters, loaded with logs, will prove very engaging. Scenes in the vale of the Andes are said to be, in very truth, restful in effect, and wonderful, indeed, the views of the turbulent, gigantic waves, which follow.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

AMERICA'S ENORMOUS YEARLY MUSICAL BILL.

Fate Often Decided Vocation of Intrumental as Well as Vocal Artists—Joseph Hofmann Engaged for Next Season—Lyric Club New Officers—People's Orchestra Concerts.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

Forty years ago there was in New York the Philharmonic Orchestra, led by Theodore Thomas.

Leopold Damrosch, father or Walter and Frank Damrosch, was then thinking of undertaking the formation of the Oratorio and Symphony societies. Outside of the successful enterprise of Col. Mapleson in presenting grand opera in the old Academy of Music, there existed practically no musical club or society, and only one grand opera company in the United States.

Concerts in Philadelphia and New York were largely due to the enterprise of piano manufacturers who imported foreign artists each winter, who appeared in Boston under the auspices of two young rivals, the Handel and the Haydn societies.

West of New York, both for opera and recitals, every city had to depend on the good will of the Eastern managers, who for many years played Boston for two weeks only each season.

Popular music was represented by brass bands.

Gilmore with his great military band was acclaimed throughout the Middle West. Bands from Paris, Berlin and Vienna were imported and were very successful.

In less than twenty years all this has been changed.

No less than five grand opera companies will enter the field this autumn and it is probable that they will be very successful, both from a financial and an artistic point of view.

Every city of the fifth class has a musical club, every one of the second and first a symphony society. Most of the great cosmopolitan centers have each from ten to eighty musical clubs or societies.

The musical activities of the present season have been in keeping with preceding years, increasing with each year.

The importance of the sums spent for music in all its forms, these last twelve months, is almost incredible. It exceeds the vast sums paid for postal service or for the army and navy of the United States.

From the highest authority in these matters we discover with no little surprise that we spend about $600,000,000 yearly for melody.

John C. Freund, editor of Musical America and the Music Trades, the recognized expert, who has for years collected his data and who presented them to the National Convention of Music Teachers' at Saratoga last week, created a sensation when he presented for the first time, our national bill of expense for music, exclusive of musical comedies.

The following list has just been made public and is attracting a tremendous amount of curiosity.

Opera—Italian, French, English	$ 8,000,000
Concerts—Symphonic, recitals by artists, ordinary concerts, women's clubs	25,000,000
Church—Music—Organts.	20,000,000
Choirs and music	20,000,000

Germany is recognized as the most musical nation in Europe, if we compare our expense for music with hers we find that she spends ten times more on her army and navy than on her music, while we are paying three times more for opera, concerts, musical instruments and training than for our army and navy.

Musical Vocations.

Fate seems to have chosen many a musician's vocation, often against his own choice and preference.

Sembrich, who was known as a good pianist, but much preferred the violin, finally acquired great renown as a vocalist. Harold Bauer, the little German-English pianist, made his public debut as a violinist. It is doubtful that any artist, who in recent years has so established himself in public favor, ever entered his profession in such a wholly incidental manner. Every member of the Bauer family was musical, each playing one instrument. The piano, to use Bauer's own expression, he "picked up" with little effort but determined to concentrate on the violin. His early career as a boy prodigy in England convinced him further that appearances on the Continent were all that was needed to make him one of the favorites of the musical world. Fate decreed otherwise in this instance as in many others. Well supplied with enthusiasm but with scarcely 800 francs, he left England in 1892 for Paris in search of engagements. Untiring effort failed to bring these, until he finally resigned himself for a season of teaching. A letter to Strakosch, the French impresario, brought him in touch later with the famous Polish pianist Paderewski. During that summer he spent his time playing piano concertos in private for the latter's practice. Finally Strakosch sent for him offering a tour with Mlle. Nikita as piano accompanist. Remonstrance on the part of Bauer was overcome by the reminder on the part of the impresario that the pecuniary advantage was great. Five months later he returned to Paris with a little sum saved, still determined to look for violin recital engagements. Through Strakosch again he was sent to Lamoureux, conductor of the orchestra. Paderewski having told Lamoureux that Bauer played the piano he was engaged to perform. Much to the surprise of the little artist he was engaged promptly as piano soloist with this great orchestra. The engagement was filled with complete success; others following as a matter of course.

The most important engagement the Boston Symphony Orchestra has made for the coming season is that of a first harpist who will succeed Heinrich Schuecker, whose tragic death last spring deprived the orchestra of one of its most valued members. The new artist is Alfred Holy of Vienna. Holy is generally regarded as the foremost harpist of Europe. For the past several years he has been first harpist in the Imperial Opera of Vienna and in the Vienna Philharmonie. Curiously enough, it was Dr. Muck who discovered him. When Dr. Muck was first conductor of the German Opera in Prague, on the eve of an important production of a Wagner opera his first harpist was taken ill and not having time to send to Vienna for one it seemed as if the performance would have to be postponed. One of his friends, an officer in one of the Bohemian regiments stationed there, told him that there was a young man serving in the band of the regiment who was a very good harpist. Dr. Muck had the young man, who was Holy, come to him and play for him and was so impressed with his remarkable talent that he engaged him on the spot. When Dr. Muck went to Berlin he took Holy with him where the latter stayed for several years until Gustav Mahler went to Vienna. Mahler made Holy an unprecedented offer to go to the Vienna Opera with him and there the distinguished harpist has since been.

Josef Hofmann.

Among the pianists who have made international reputations for themselves and managed to hold them in face of growing, keen competition, Josef Hofmann is probably the best example. Coming to this country as a child prodigy, he enjoyed a tour which many mature artists might have envied. His people recognizing the danger of prolonged "child prodigy" exploitation showed the good judgment of taking him home then and forcing his continuance in musical studies without public appearances for several years. Then came the second tour which proved an even greater triumph than the first, for when in those days had prodigies developed into mature artists before returning? As a performer, Hofmann is the delight of every musician; possessor of a phenomenal technique, he is never mechanical, but leaning more to the poetical interpretation; scholarly, but never pedantic, his authoritative renderings of the masterpieces of the piano remain in the minds of every listener. His return to America this season is being hailed with delight everywhere. He has not been on the Pacific Coast for nearly three years, so will be doubly welcome here.

Lyric Club's New Officers.

Following their usual custom the Women's Lyric Club elected their new officers last Tuesday. Mrs. Henry P. Flint will be the president for the coming season, Mrs. John W. Thayer, vice-president; Mrs. J. I. Moyse, secretary; Mrs. W. T. Wetmore, financial secretary; Mrs. John R. Matthews, treasurer; Mrs. John Percival and Mrs. Frank Collier, librarians. The directorate will be composed of Mesdames W. H. Jamison, Mrs. W. H. Whittier, Mrs. George Sloan. The Music Committee will be Miss Freida Peycke, Mrs. R. C. Wilson, Miss Isabelle Isgrig; Voice Committee, Mrs. G. J. Vieira, Mrs. George McIntyre, Mrs. Carl Johnson.

Needless to add, J. B. Poulin was duly re-elected musical director and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson, official accompanist.

Peoples' Orchestra.

To insure the success of next season, which begins September 21, the Peoples' Orchestra is about to inaugurate a new method of disposing of seats, so as to place the young organization on a business basis.

It is the desire of the management to eliminate the guarantee fund so generously subscribed for last year and to produce forty popular concerts on the receipts of season tickets.

Reservations for the entire season, assuring the same seat at each concert are now open for subscription with the secretary of the Peoples' Orchestra, Room 211, Blanchard building. Home, 10082.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

THAT the closing of the club year is coincident with the closing of schools and colleges throughout the country seems wonderfully appropriate when you pause to consider that the modern woman's club has come to be, to all intents and purposes, a popular woman's university, with extension courses adapted to the needs and the progress of women in general.

Time was when the woman's club was looked upon as a mere diversion, a place of entertainment and social enjoyment. But the woman's club of this year of our Lord, 1913, has progressed far beyond the mere social and entertaining features. The plan of definite department work, conducted under the instruction of paid experts in their particular lines was introduced on this Coast, I believe, by the Ebell Club, formed in Oakland in 1876 by Mrs. H. W. B. Strong of Los Angeles and Whittier, who was then a resident of the northern city. In 1894 the Los Angeles Ebell was organized and later an Ebell Club was formed at Long Beach, at Pomona, at Highland Park and numerous other cities and towns throughout the State.

Just the name—Ebell—stands for study and research, for the idea originated with Dr. Adrian Ebell, a distinguished German scholar, who realized that the average woman who was past her college days, and who perhaps had never had the chance of a college training, had a narrow and limited opportunity for keeping up with the strenuous and complex forms of modern life. So he conceived the idea of establishing an international academy, with headquarters in Berlin, and tributary chapters in all parts of the world, for the object of developing feminine mentality along serious and scientific lines.

The outcome was the series of Ebell clubs. Hence, you see, the very name —Ebell—always signifies work, not play, or social recreation. During the nine months of the year, beginning with October and ending with June—the same as the regular college semesters, you will observe, the Ebell departments are at work with the exception of the month of December, which is observed as a holiday vacation—also in line with college customs.

What Ebell Has Done.

During the past year I have attended pretty faithfully many of these departments and I feel that I have enjoyed a regular university extension course. Together with my fellow students of the art and travel department of Ebell I have journeyed through Germany under the personal leadership of a woman whose ancestors are natives of Germany and who has been connected with library research work for a period of twenty years, and has traveled extensively in the land of her forefathers. Her lectures have been richly illustrated by a splendid series of pictures and varied by the personal reminiscences of members of the department, many of whom have traveled extensively abroad.

I have also kept in touch with the department of drama, led by a woman who has made a specialty of the serious study of the drama. Together the members of this department have made a thorough study of Maeterlinck, and in the meantime have not neglected to keep pace with current productions of the American, English, French and German stage.

I have also studied civics under the leadership of experts who have taken up the problems of municipal and national subjects, dealing with them in a serious and scientific manner. Then there has been the department of social science where, under the leadership of two keen and broad-minded women, social and economic problems have been discussed in relation to good citizenship.

If one is not interested in any of these departments there is still scope for study in other subjects—the department of books offers reviews of current literature, beside the best work and biographies of famous writers of all time. The department of music has been under the direction of a leader whose services any college or university might be glad to secure and a systematic study of modern grand opera and symphony has been carried on. Then there has been the department of Shakespeare, of parliamentary law and of expression, each under the instruction of expert leaders—in all, nine separate and distinct departments of study, each with a large and enthusiastic membership, and each meeting on its particular day and hour in the different class rooms of the big clubhouse at Eighteenth and Figueroa streets, making of that building a veritable educational beehive with classes in session every day in the week with the exception of Saturday and Sunday, after the regular school plan.

Carrying out the comparison, the general club meeting on Monday afternoon of each week when the entire membership meets in the big auditorium to listen to the announcements of the study sections for the week and to be instructed and entertained by addresses from world-famous lecturers, or music recitals by artists of note, corresponds to the college or university general audience which occurs once a week in the chapel of the institution.

Following in Her Footsteps.

Now the above is simply a sample of what one club is doing, and its activities may be multiplied many times by the various other organizations that are following in the footsteps of Ebell in a more or less varied degree. For a number of years the Friday Morning Club had no special study departments. At first we met in a little hall on Broadway, a stone's throw from the Times Building, where we used to assemble once a week to listen to lectures; then we moved farther up Broadway into the clubhouse built by Mrs. Burdette somewhere in the vicinity of Eighth street, I believe, and finally over onto Figueroa street in the handsome structure now owned by the club. Gradually the section department idea has invaded this organization and now we have the drama committee, the art committee, the music committee, etc., each of which is in reality a department which meets once a month and at intervals supplies a public programme for the club.

Then there is the Cosmos Club which maintains regular sections in-southern composer and pianist.
study of Shakespeare; the Averill Club, founded by the late Mrs. Anna S. Averill, a gifted educator herself, which has always been a study club. This last year the members of this club have made a thorough study of South America, its history, national government, industries, commerce, its art and literature, its politics and its resources. Then there's the Ruskin Art Club, which has taken up an exawakened great interest on the part literature and history.

The above are quoted merely as examples of what the modern woman's club really stand for, and these are duplicated right here in Los Angeles and throughout Southern California by scores of smaller organizations scattered among the cities and towns and hamlets and even in the country places where women are wont to assemble together to discuss the topics which make for mental uplift and research.

To belong to a women's club in these days, my sisters, means something more than a mere open sesame to social privilege, for the woman's club of today is the modern woman's forum of thought, expression and education.

Summer School of Missions.

The fifth annual Interdenominational Summer School of Missions in which the women of ten of the leading evangelical churches of Los Angeles are interetted, as well as the Young Women's Christian Association with its 6000 members, will follow close on the heels of the great International Christian Endeavor convention, opening in the First Methodist Church, the very day after the convention closes on Monday, July 14, and continuing the balance of the week.

Sessions will be held each afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock and there will also be two morning sessions—on Tuesday and Thursday at 11 o'clock. The leader of the summer school will be Mrs. D. B. Wells of Chicago, who has conducted the school so successfully for the past two years. Her lectures will deal with both home and foreign missions from the two text books selected by the general council in Boston, which consists of one member from each denomination interested and which decides on the subjects to be presented from year to year and selects the writers of the books—one on foreign missions and one on home. This year the book on foreign missions is "The King's Business," by Mrs. Maude W. Raymond, and that on home missions is "New America," by Mrs. L. C. Barnes.

These summer schools, which have now been held for four successive seasons in Los Angeles, have always haustive study of French art and of church women and the fact that this session is to be immediately preceded by the International Christian Endeavor convention will in no wise decrease that interest, but, on the contrary, should but serve to turn fresh attention to mission study.

Glendale Club's Concert.

Musical and social Glendale was very much in evidence at the concert given by the music section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale at the Congregational Church, last Tuesday evening, introducing Prof. Roy Lamont Smith, a distinguished cluding that of music, French and the

This gifted southerner's compositions were sung by such well-known local vocalists as Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Shank, Mrs. Barbara McMillen Stone and violin composition by Julius Kranz. Each number called forth enthusiastic applause and the music was thoroughly enjoyed. Prof Smith's own rendition of his "The Meadow Lark" was especially beautiful and well executed.

Following the concert, the music section held a short reception in order that each one present might have an opportunity of meeting Prof. Smith, who has decided to make Los Angeles his home, and the others who so ably interpreted his compositions. Coffee, cake and punch were served. The concert was an invitation affair to the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club and is a sort of criterion of the things one may expect from the music section the coming year. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Charles Homer Temple.

A Clever Impersonator.

Miss Clara Iverson, who has recited so delightfully before several of the women's clubs during the past season, is a young woman of exceptional dramatic talent which, added to her charming personality, wins her audience instantly. I heard her recently give a cutting from Justin Huntley McCarthy's "If I Were King' and her impersonation of old King Louis in his senile and crafty cruelty was as real as was that of the distinctly different characters of Kipling's "Fuzzy Wuzzy" and the darky dialect recitation—all of which gave ample scope for her varied interpretative gifts.

Daughters of 1812.

Mrs. J. W. McLellan of No. 1617 Fuller avenue, Hollywood, entertained the board of the managers of the United States Daughters of 1812, at a luncheon last week. The national colors formed the decorations, being used both on the place cards, and in the flowers which were limited to red, white and blue blossoms. It was decided to hold the opening meeting of next year in October in the form of a luncheon at the Alexandria.

Missionaries of the Future.

"Are you a light bear or a jewel?" earnestly asked a 5-year-old of her little chum at the First Methodist Church last Monday.

It was a great occasion for the little folks for it marked the annual reception of the members of the juvenile societies which is under the fostering care of the women's missionary organizations. The "light bears," which the tiny toddler referred to, are known as the "Little Light Bearers," who represent the foreign missionary society, and the "Mother's Jewels" are those representative of the Home Missionary Society. Once a year these children assemble at the church in a joint gathering when they bring their mite boxes along, the combined amount of which runs up into a good many dollars, and the sums are turned over the secretaries to be used for the support of children's work on both home and foreign fields. They recite, and sing songs, and, after the programme is over, they are assembled around prettily decorated tables, and feasted with ice cream and cake, and altogether this juvenile missionary gathering is a very important event in the annals of the church children, and is always attended in large numbers by the mothers, aunts, sisters, and other interested grown-ups of the family.

One of the especially interesting features of the programme the other day was the recitation of a little Chinese boy—oh, yes, several nationalities are always represented and the part taken by the Chinese and Japanese children is always very fascinating because of its novelty. This little Doa Bok Jone was brought to this country last March by his father, who has been a resident of Los Angeles for many years, and was returning from a visit to China. The boy was at once placed in the Methodist mission and entered in the public schools and so rapidly has he progressed in these few weeks, that he stood before the audience at the children's reception and recited Longfellow's "The Village Blacksmith" in perfectly intelligible English.

Little Thomas Roy Pendell, the year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pendell, was made a life member of the Light Bearers on the payment of $10 by his grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Pendell. These life membership fees go toward the support of the children's ward in the new hospital at Tien Tsin, China.

Mrs. C. D. Dyson, superintendent of the primary department in the big First Methodist Sunday-school, had charge of the programme, as a whole and had so trained the little folks that the music and recitations were far above the average at children's entertainments. The two secretaries of these children's organizations are distinguished for their long service in these departments, Mrs. T. J. McCoy, having had charge of the work of the Mother's Jewels, for twenty years, and Miss Frances Freeman that of the Light Bearers for fifteen years.

George Anderson Cooke, just elected Chief Justice of the Illinois State Supreme Court, succeeding Frank A. Dunne, is, in point of service, the youngest Chief Justice in the history of the State. He was a member of the Illinois House of Representatives for four years, beginning in 1902.

The only monument which Col. George W. Goethals wants to commemorate his work on the Isthmus of Panama is a completed canal, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and working without a hitch. If there is anything like a triumphal entry ceremony arranged for the chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission, when, after the competion of the canal, he returns to this country, Col. Goethals will not be present if he learns of it in advance.

Rear-Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, who has just retired from active service, having reached the age limit, has been commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet since 1910. He was one of the officers high in command under Evans, Thomas and Sperry, during the memorable around-the-world voyage.

Col. Calvin D. Cowles, commanding the Fifth Infantry at Plattsburg, N. Y., has been placed on the retired list of the army by operation of law on account of age. During his forty years' service he served in several Indian campaigns, in the Spanish war, in the Philippine insurrection, and in the pacification of Cuba. During the Spanish war he served as lieutenant-colonel of the First North Carolina Volunteer Infantry.

J. M. Fitzgerald, head of the Western Maryland Railroad, and the youngest railroad president in this country, began as office boy for the Columbus, Sandusky and Hocking at the age of 17. After various experiences he went West, and put in a year in the engineering department of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf line. Then he turned eastward, to take charge of the Virginia and Southwestern, a seemingly hopeless proposition. Within fifteen months he had it on a paying basis.

CRANKS.

Determined to support himself and his seven children on his earnings as a common laborer, Enoch T. Evans, 51, of Scranton, Pa., has refused to claim two fortunes amounting to approximately $100,000, awaiting him in Wales, because he has never forgiven his father for depriving him of the pleasure of dancing when a boy. "If I lived all these years without it, I can get along the rest of my days," said Evans.

Although married 28 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. James McLane of Oil City, Pa., have just returned from their "wedding trip," at least that is what the husband classifies it. The Teachers' Insufficiency.

[New Orleans States:] The Sunday-school teacher had discoursed long and eloquently upon the wonders of heaven, the glories of the tropical foliage in the gardens and the angels with their beautiful white wings walking up and down the marble steps.

"Now, I want one of you little girls to ask a question about the heaven which I have described to you," he concluded.

There was a long pause. Finally, after a lot of coaxing, a little girl arose from her seat and asked:

"Please, sir, if the angels have wings, why do they walk up and down the steps?"

The teacher was considerably taken aback. In sheer desperation he turned to the boys of the class and invited them to answer the question.

Presently a small boy stood up with a grin on his face.

"I know, teacher."

"Well, my little man. Speak out so the class can hear you."

"I guess they were moultin'," came the instant reply.

sition is the record of William W. Cottingham, Superintendent of Schools at Easton, Pa., who heads the list kept by the Commissioner of Education. No other superintendent can equal this long term of service, but others have served for many years. James M. Greenwood of Kansas City, Mo., is retiring after thirty-nine years; Superintendent Glass of Lynchburg, Va., thirty-three years, and Superintendent Phillips of Birmingham, Ala., and Superintendent McClymonds of Oakland, Cal., twenty-nine years. William H. Maxwell, superintendent of New York City schools, has a record of more than a quarter of a century in a professional administrative position if his term in Brooklyn be included.

OVER THE SEA.

Mlle. Gauban du Mont has spent fourteen years exploring Alaska as a prospector for gold.

Mme. Ali Kuli Kahn, wife of the Persian Charge d'Affaires, is one of the latest converts at the national capital to the cause of woman suffrage.

The Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz is the only English Princess living abroad who is in receipt of an income from the English nation. At the time of her marriage, seventy years ago, Parliament granted her an income of $15,000 a year, so that to date she has drawn $1,050,000.

Prince d'Arenberg, for many years president of the Suez Canal Council, has resigned, but his connection will not be entirely severed, as he is to be made honorary president of the council of administration, and will also remain on the directorate.

Dr. S. Daneff, who headed the peace delegation at London prior to the close of the war with Turkey, has formed a new Bulgarian Cabinet, he himself taking the portfolios of Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs.

King Chowfa Maha Vajiravudh, the ruler of Siam, is credited with a total of 704 wives, according to a Paris newspaper, and he is in constant danger of having their number added to, for by an ancient Siamese custom he must espouse any young girl who offers herself in marriage.

Knud Rasmussen, the young Danish explorer, who has made the important discovery that the so-called Peary Channel at the northern end of Greenland does not exist, and that Peary Land is not an island, but a portion of Greenland, is a native of Greenland, the son of a Danish clergyman, and a pure-blooded Eskimo. From infancy the explorer has spoken Eskimo, and has devoted much study to the language philologically, so that he knows it better, perhaps, than any other person. As a youth he undertook voyages in Scandinavia, the Faroe Islands and Iceland.

Dr. Wilhelm Bode of the Berlin Museum, whose Rembrandt book may be called one of the weighty studies of the Dutch master, is gathering materials for two volumes on Frans Hals, which the Berlin Photographic Company is to bring out, to include every known example of this painter in any part of the world of which it may be possible to get a photograph of the right sort. In fact, a German photographic expert is coming to America for the express purpose of making negatives of such paintings, and there will be a sort of "catalogue raisonne" to accompany them, as well as a study of Hals by Dr. Bode.

THE AVENGING SCREW.

How the Memory of a Horrible Crime Relentlessly Hounded “Fresh Water” McCarthy to His Death.

“FRESH WATER” M'CARTHY was skipper of the bark Clarion. I was second mate and “Old Man” Benson was first officer. It was as snug a berth as ever I have occupied and as well paying. McCarthy came by his nickname of “Fresh Water” because he was a teetotaler. On “plum duff” days he wouldn't even allow the Chinese cook to put brandy in the sauce. There was never a drop of liquor on his ship, which was sometimes a bit uncomfortable, but, on the whole, a very good thing for me. Temperance was not my middle name in my youth.

Men in general were not favorably impressed by McCarthy. I think it was principally because of his abstemiousness, but I had also heard it whispered that he was a man with a past, a man whom none really knew. The Kanakas feared him with a wholesome fear. They attributed a sort of supernatural intelligence to him and seemed to fear his mental powers or wrath more than they did the physical man. This seemed to be the attitude of most men toward him. I always had the feeling that there was a hint of the uncanny about him, although, as I say, I suppose it was because he would not drink.

On the other hand, those who had been long associated with him invariably loved him. That is a strange term to describe the mutual feeling of men of the type who terrorized the south seas in the older sailing days, yet it was love that some men felt for “Fresh Water” McCarthy. I was prejudiced against him when I booked on the Clarion because of what other men had said, but before we had been two months at sea I felt a strange, longing sort of affection for the stern, iron-like old man who treated me so kindly and who taught me so much that I did not know about the sea.

Perhaps the most potent factor in attracting me to him was a feeling of sympathy which I could not subdue. It seemed to me that he was continually bearing a great and crushing burden. His eyes had a faraway look, somehow suggesting that he was haunted by a memory, a memory of things which weighed upon his soul. Once feeling that the man was laboring upon some great sorrow, one could not help being drawn toward McCarthy for the way in which he bore it. He cast about himself a feeling of enormous, uncrushable strength. In spirit he seemed a giant.

When, after I had sailed under McCarthy for almost half a year, there were hints of this spirit breaking, I was drawn all the closer to him. I noticed suddenly that he seemed to be staggering under the weight which I had long since taken for granted was upon him. Once in a while I caught his shoulders drooping, head sunk forward. Although he did not know that anyone saw, he would suddenly rouse himself, shake his great body like a dog, and stand erect.

“A little out of condition,” I thought, and tried to forget the matter. Yet I was not quite satisfied with this explanation.

One night “Old Man” Benson beckoned me to the quarterdeck.

“You've noticed the skipper?” he queried in a manner which showed he knew the answer.

“Yes,” I said.

“I thought so,” he replied. “He thinks a great deal of you, young man. He says if I should ever become captain of this bark he wants me to make you first mate. But that's not what I called you to talk about. You like him, I think?”

“I do,” I said. “I can't help it, and I can't help feeling sorry for him. I don't know why. He seems to be staggering under something.”

“He is,” said Benson. “And I'll tell you about it, soon. Men who know him well always feel that way. I guess it's one reason they are drawn to him—the way he bears up. There's few that know what I'm going to tell you, but I want your help. McCarthy musn't know you suspect.

“In his younger days the skipper had not earned the title of ‘Fresh Water.’ Rum was his closest companion. He'd take grog till they had to dump him into his bunk and then he'd howl for more until he fell asleep. Before his head had cleared after the carouse he'd be ready for more.

“When he was a young man he fell in with a halfbreed called ‘Kanaka Charley.’ Charley was a bird of the same feather. Their drinking bouts were classic in the islands.

“Well, from a trader he picked up dying in an open boat McCarthy learned of the location of a pearl fishery which had never been worked. He had maps and all and he and ‘Kanaka Charley’ got a schooner—stole it no doubt—and with a Kanaka crew started out to find the island and the pearls.

“One morning when McCarthy went to look for his map and papers, they were not to be found. He kept them in his cabin in a sea chest, and the chest was always locked. Someone must have had a key that fitted it, for it was not broken and the lock was in perfect condition. McCarthy was half drunk at the time, and before he set out to find the man who had stolen the papers he drank himself into a fury. On deck he found one of the crew scrubbing some of ‘Kanaka Charley's’ clothes. When the man saw McCarthy he knew what to expect, for he saw that he was in an abusive mood. He jumped to his feet and fled, but McCarthy did not follow him. As the man had lifted the jacket he was washing a bit of metal dropped from one of the pockets. McCarthy pounced on it as though it had been some deadly live thing.

“It was a key—not quite like the one which he had for his chest, but he went below and tried it. It unlocked the chest easily. To McCarthy's mind there was no doubt ‘Kanaka Charley’ had robbed him. By the same token he was sure that his partner would next attempt to take his life.

“Roaring like a madman he went to Charley's cabin and kicked in the door. The half-breed sat up in his bunk blinking stupidly. He had been drinking, too, but, having fallen asleep, his wits were dulled. McCarthy had him where he wanted him. Before Charley could rub the sleep out of his eyes McCarthy smashed him in the mouth, and, covering him with two pistols, demanded his papers.

“The half-breed wiped the blood from his lips, cursed like a fiend and denied that he knew anything about the papers.

“ ‘All right,’ said the skipper. ‘I'll help you to remember.’ He marched Charley on deck and called some of the crew to him. McCarthy, being a white man, the Kanakas feared him more than they did Charley, who was half their own race. The half-breed was too stupefied to offer much resistance, and while the skipper stood by with his guns, they propped his one-time partner against the mast and passed leather strips about his body, his arms and his legs. Then McCarthy himself, to make things even more certain, drove screws through the leather and into the mast, which left no possibility that the half-breed could untie the knots should be get his hands loose.

“When Charley had sobered up a bit McCarthy demanded to know where his papers were. The half-breed cursed him by all the gods he knew, but always declared that he had not taken the papers, that he knew nothing of where they were. McCarthy had the ship searched, went over every inch of it himself. There was not a sign of his papers to be found nor was there another key forthcoming which would open the sea chest.

“By the end of the second day ‘Kanaka Charley,’ having had no food, was in a state of exhaustion and would have crumpled to the deck except for the leather strips which held him. McCarthy guarded him day and night, threatening, promising, begging him to tell what he had done with the papers. When the half-breed was conscious he denied all knowledge of them.

“All the time McCarthy was roaring, raving drunk. Charley begged him to shoot him, but the man refused. On the night of the third day he went below for something. From his cabin he heard the report of a pistol and rushed on deck. No one was in sight except ‘Kanaka Charley,’ still bound to the mast, but the way his head hung limp over one shoulder and the pastiness of his face told the story.

“McCarthy rushed to him and shook the limp body. He slashed the leathern thongs and what had been ‘Kanaka Charley’ sloughed to the deck. McCarthy bent over him, screamed curses at him, demanded the secret of the papers, but the half-breed's lips were white and his tongue was still.

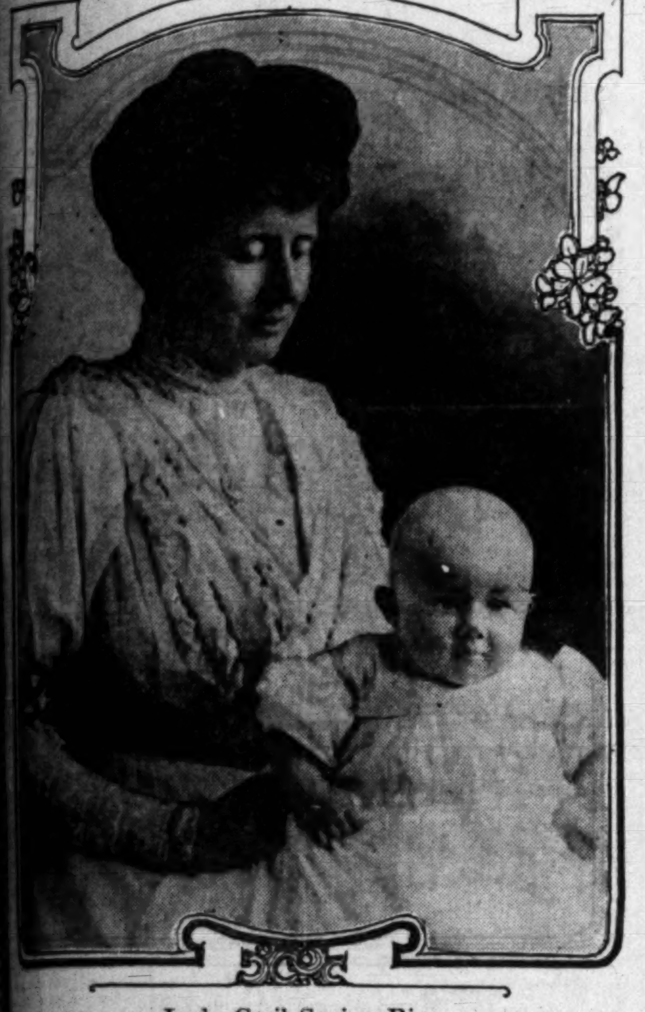
LADY CECIL SPRING RICE.

Wife of the British Ambassador, Who is Presiding Over the Summer Embassy in Dublin, New Hampshire.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]



Lady Cecil Spring Rice.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The capital city is beginning to feel conscious of its 113 years of written history. It can now talk of traditions and precedents with the dignity of age and experience. In the British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice may be found a successful diplomat who took his first faltering steps towards statescraft here with a special envoy, Sir Julian Pauncefote as his chief. Prior to that the annals go back to another Spring Rice who served as secretary here in the early part of the nineteenth century. Lady Spring Rice enjoys the unique distinction of being a native Washingtonian, while at the same time to the last degree British without any kinship with the younger English-speaking nation. She was born here during her parents' residence and there remain old inhabitants who still recall the little girl of [illegible] as she was when her father was removed to another capital.

In Sir Cecil and Lady Spring Rice may be found another example of the liberal-minded democratic representation of His Britannic Majesty made familiar in Mr. and Mrs. James Bryce. It is entirely with the leveling process so apparent everywhere that Great Britain hitherto aloof and caste-ridden is represented here by a man who knows this country as his own and who has always manifested a sincere admiration for republicanism in the best interpretation of the word. Lady Spring Rice offers delightful possibilities to Washington generally rather than to the inner circle wherein the former Britishers have revolved.

Washington has not yet had the pleasure of welcoming this new latest addition to the ambassadorial set, for she went direct to Dublin, N. H., from the steamer. She has not been well this past year, and her husband was solicitous lest the excitement attendant on her arrival at the new station might prove too fatiguing. Sir Cecil, who has just returned from a brief sojourn in the summer home, gives an excellent account of her progress towards health and her pleasure at being once again in the land of her birth.

As the daughter of a diplomatist and statesman whose name is international, Sir Francis, or more familiarly known Frank Lascelles, Lady Spring Rice is really what is so vaguely known as a cosmopolite. One of the chief joys, says her husband, was to discover how many old friends are residing in Washington, both in the diplomatic corps and in American official life. Sir Cecil was promoted from the legation at Stockholm to the Embassy here and the same procedure marked the transfer of the present Ambassador from Austria-Hungary, M. Constantin Dumba. It happens that this is the fourth post at which Sir Cecil and M. Dumba have been together and, of course, they have become close friends, almost brothers, and the same cordial ties unite their wives and children. Lady Spring Rice comes of a race to whom athletics are one of the essentials, and she will feel a keen interest in meeting the American participants of the Olympian races, every one of whom she met personally last year in Stockholm. She also knows some of the Cecil Rhodes scholars at Oxford, and will be interested to meet them on their native soil. Of the corps serving in Washington, Lady Cecil has known the Belgian Minister and his American wife, Mme. Havenith, the latter formerly Miss Helen Foulke of this city. She knew the Swiss Minister when he was in Tokio, and the Minister from the Netherlands, Mr. Loudon, and his wife, an American, born Miss Eustis, of the well-known Eustis family, who also came to Washington after residing for nearly a year in Japan. Of the officials close to the British Ambassador are Senator and Mrs. Lodge very, and they have also a close friendship with the former President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Indeed, a bit of extremely interesting diplomatic gossip is that when Germany sent to Washington a close friend of the Roosevelts, Baron Speck von Sternburg, the Minister of Foreign Affairs hesitated for a time between the selection of Sir Cecil Spring Rice and Mr. Bryce, and finally selected the latter mainly because of his greater experience.

Sir Cecil is endeavoring to carry out some of the commissions of Lady Rice in the arrangement of the embassy. The British government furnished the home of its envoy but at present it looks quite bare, stripped of the private possessions of the Bryces and lacking those of the new family.

"We shall soon get everything looking home-like," said the Ambassador, "one part particularly and that is the nursery. A nursery, you know is a British institution as essential to the home as a kitchen, and we consider much more important. Our little ones have led a nomadic existence, living seldom more than four or five years in the same home. But everywhere we had our nursery with the same furnishings and so they at least had a permanent home and something to remember of their childhood in England. the nursery has served all the elder members and it is a very congenial spot for family reunions, especially when the children are small. The elders, the cats, dogs and small pets gather in the twilight hour and have a jolly time before it is the hour to put the youngsters in their nest. It is some years now since the British Embassy here had a nursery, but there are many rooms, especially in the third floor, suitable for such a purpose."

Lady Spring Rice is a fine type of the progressive British matron, clinging to her own traditions but taking a little of the best things from the various lands in which her tent has been pitched. One can imagine her nursery, containing everything which will remind the little ones of their real home, a great, wide mansion in Surrey, and yet having all the devices for sanitation and comfort which the modern world offers. Lady Michael Herbert was the last chatelaine of the British Embassy who had youngsters, and she retained the same room which had served the daughters of Lord Pauncefote as a study room and studio. These Misses Pauncefote were beyond a genuine nursery when they came to Washington, but they had with them a staid British governess and their desks were set in prim fashion across the wide, sunny room which makes the southwest corner of the third floor of the British Embassy. Here these ladies, now heads of families themselves, used to practice riding on a small velocipede before daring to essay their use in the public streets, and one of the curios of the old attic of the Embassy is a small model of this favorite form of locomotion probably belonging to Miss Lilian or Miss Aubrey Pauncefote. Lady Herbert, who was a New Yorker by birth, delighted in the Kate Greenaway decorations, but all this will give place to the charming marine and rural landscape dotted with fish, birds, squirrels and nature studies, suggestive of instruction, which is the mode for nurseries now. Two small dogs which have accompanied the youngsters on all their travels will be installed in due season in the Washington home.

British diplomatists who reach the supreme rank of Ambassador have always distinguished careers, for the service is progressive and in the main dependent more on merit than on political power. Sir Cecil Spring Rice represents even more than the average Ambassador or Minister sent from London. That he and Lady Spring Rice are democratic in their tendencies rather than exclusive, argues well that life will continue in the pleasant ways instituted by the Bryces and that for the first time. Before them the British representatives were in a way governed by the blue book of Washington society and they preferred the resident set to the official world. According to the gossips, this was the cause of Sir Mortimer Durand's rather conspicuous failure to please President Roosevelt. Having lived in almost every capital of the civilized world, Sir Cecil and Lady Spring Rice propose to follow the customs here, rather than to insist on the observance of their national habits. Then they know so much about American traditions and are rather sympathetic that necessarily they will fit in. Sir Cecil has followed the regular lines for diplomatic primacy. He took his degree at Oxford with Balliol as his particular collegue, and after a preparation at Eton. He entered the Foreign Office early in his career, immediately after taking the grand tour incumbent on the English gentleman's son after finishing college. He has served two powerful Prime Ministers as confidential secretary, first the Earl of Granville and later the Earl of Rosebery. A cordial friendship exists between the Ambassador and his former chief, the most liberal leader of British affairs since Gladstone, Lord Rosebery. Having selected the diplomatic service in preference to remaining in the Downing-street offices, Sir Cecil served for a brief time in Brussels and then came to Washington. He remained here for several years and it was at this time that he knew Mr. Roosevelt, then the Civil Service Commissioner. With a few years at Tokio, another interim in Berlin, this one a most important post in that his chief at the German capital was Sir Francis Lascelles. Here he met his wife for the first time to know her, for the families belonging to the old noblesse were on intimate terms. The marriage took place in Berlin from the splendid home of the British Embassy there and was witnessed by the great world of two capitals, Berlin and London.

This nuptial event was of more import than the usual union even of such high personages as an Ambassador's daughter and his titled first secretary. For Lady Lascelles had died shortly after leaving Washington, and when her only child was little more than three. Sir Francis has never recovered from this bereavement and his little daughter became his constant companion and when she was still in her teens she was installed a chatelaine of her father's stately home. In Berlin she made her formal debut and was a great favorite with the British Princess Royal, and the Empress Frederick. Her marriage awakened keen sympathy of the entire court for not only was she a charming and tactful hostess but her aunt, Lady Cavendish, who had taken a mother's place, was one of the most beautiful and accomplished women in Berlin.

Shortly after the marriage Sir Cecil was appointed Charge d'Affaires in Constantinople and later at Teheran, Persia. He remained for some years in the far-famed capital of Persia and after an interim of serving in St. Petersburg and two years at the Foreign Office in London he returned to Persia to remain three years longer. In 1908 he and Lady Spring Rice went to Stockholm, where they have resided continuously until last winter when Sir Cecil went to London to prepare for his higher mission and Lady Spring Rice and her two children, a boy called Anthony and a small girl, Betty, went to Sir Francis Lascelles and later to the Riveiria, Sir Cecil arrived at his post a few days after Mr. and Mrs. Bryce had sailed for China, the former to be present at the first session of the popular legislative body elected by the Chinese republic. Lady Spring Rice arrived the latter part of May and went direct to Dublin where she will spend the summer quietly with her children coming to Washington early in October. The Ambassador is on the wing, owing to the tariff debates in Congress and he does not anticipate a lengthy vacation until Congress adjourns.

Dublin, N. H., where the lion and the unicorn floats from a flag staq on high holidays, is within easy motoring distance from Cornish where Mrs. Wilson and her daughter are passing some quiet days waiting for the head of the family to lay aside public cares and sink back for the nonce into private life. One of the pleasant duties which Lady Spring Rice performed was to make a call of courtesy on the First Lady and the Misses Wilson and she took her little ones to present them also. A delightful afternoon with tea and cakes marked this altogether informal meeting. Another enjoyable break was the arrival of Mme. Dumba in the summer quarters of the Austro-Hungarian embassy in Manchester. Sir Cecil and M. Dumba are inseparable companions and whenever possible pit their skill against each other in cribbage. The long cool evenings at Manchester and at Dublin furnish abundant opportunity for this pastime. Still another pleasant feature of life in Dublin is that near by Sir Cecil and Lady Spring Rice find some old friends and companions in St. Petersburg, the daughter of Ethan Allen Hitchcock, who was Ambassador from the United States during the same junction of time in which Sir Cecil was first secretary in the Russian capital.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Charles Hefner of Lexington, Ky., 94 years old, is classed as the oldest railroad man in the world. He was water boy in 1828, when Charles Carroll of Carrollton laid the cornerstone of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. He worked for the company when cars were run from Ellicotts Mills to Baltimore by horse power, and was employed as fireman when the company began running engines by steam. He remained in the railroad service until 1858 when he resigned to engage in other work.

It is estimated that Mrs. Susan Eaton of Madison, Me., who celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday last week, has made more than 500 quilts.

In addition to being the oldest barber in Maine, John M. Todd, 92 years old, of Portland, has the distinction of being the oldest best man at a wedding for a number of years. He acted as best man at the wedding of John Foster Pearson of Boston and Miss Grace Evelyn Arris of Portland, who were married recently.

John B. Woodbill is another aged Pennsylvanian who doesn't know the taste of liquor or tobacco and has always been a regular churchgoer. He's over 90 now, he walks without a cane, and last week he hoed eight rows of strawberries.

One hundred and eight years of life have wreathed up from the pipe of Maria Tom, an ancient among the gipsy tribes of Georgia. If the pipe escapes breaking, she can see no obstacle to indefinite life. She is engaged now upon smoking herself into as many years as the prophet lived.

A peasant who lives near Posen, East Prussia, can fairly claim to be the oldest woman in the world. Her name is Hedwig Strawna, and she is now 118 years old. She lives in the village of Dormowo, not so very far from the Russian frontier, and she says she would like to live another hundred years.

DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.

Enid, beloved:

You really can be catty at times, can't you? Fancy you being despicable enough to tell Fernley all the flippant things I said about him that evening! Well, you were responsible for a shameless flirtation, m'amselle; I never crowded so much practice into one day before.

Of course, I blushed when the brute laughingly quoted me, and he looked so mercilessly roguish that I could not for a moment cheat myself into thinking it a coincidence. It was a long time before I could muster enough courage to handle the situation with finesse, but I had on my new white cloth suit and that helped a little. He is an accomplished beggar, isn't he? Knows every last trick of the trade. I should say it would be a real triumph to make him fall hopelessly, miserably in love with one. I suppose none but the most accomplished siren would come through without getting her fingers burnt—and yet he is not exactly a good-looking man, is he?

I wonder if personal appearance is as important as we are wont to think it. With men I am sure knowing how to wear their clothes is far more important than a good-looking face. Some really quite nice men look awful in their best clothes, don't they? I shall never forget how disappointed I was when I first saw the handsome N. M. in evening dress. He looks so thoroughly well bred and easy in his golf clothes, but in evening dress he verges perilously near the second-rate. There is an awkwardness about him that reminds me irresistibly of the pirate converted to civilization in Shaw's "Capt. Brassbound's Conversion."

Apropos, you knew about the mixed foursome episode at the Country Club, didn't you? Mrs. C., who is thoroughly jolly and mischievous, had a whim to amuse herself with the handsome M., and has frequently annexed him for golf recently. The dear man really is rather modest and shy when it comes to that sort of thing, I believe. At all events, he must have scented danger ahead, unless, of course, his sense of humor is keener than appears on the surface. But it was too, too funny. For when they played in the mixed foursomes on Sunday, behold Mrs. M., the nurse, and three children all lined up to watch the drive-off! You know, Mrs. M. goes out very little and is rather reserved. Believes that woman's place is in the home and all that sort of thing. She was very sweet and smiled deprecatingly when she told us that dear N. had insisted upon them all running down to the club for a short time that day, although she had protested that children were a little out of place there!

The joke was entirely against Mrs. C., and I think no one enjoyed it more than she did. I saw her having a sly cigarette in the dressing-room afterwards, no doubt to soothe her perturbed feelings.

While on these flirtatious subjects I must tell you about a little joke on that spoiled batchelor, F. M. Just before they went to Europe he had been paying little Mrs. J. marked attentions, and she had deliberately encouraged him, because she said J. had been neglecting her for golf. And you know she has a twin sister, who resembles her closely and could easily be mistaken for her if one had not seen them together for a time. At all events, F. M. spied Mrs. J. and her mother climbing the stairs from the grill at the Alexandria after lunch and rushed to their assistance with much unctuous concern, whispering to Mrs. J. how delighted he was to see her home again, etc.! Of course, it was not Mrs. J., but as he had never met the twin sister he was gloriously unaware. She jumped to the situation at once and never gave it away for a long time—and she has been amusing herself by telling the story all round, doubtless embroidered, to the utter consternation of Mrs. J. and F. M. I must say J. himself takes it all in good part—I expect the conceited beggar knows he is sublimely secure in little Mrs. J.'s affections, and feels he can afford to run some risks. They do say he is teasing F. M. more than anyone else, and is making life quite a burden for the gay philanderer.

Juliet and Mrs. S. gave a jolly garden luncheon on Wednesday for all the girls; it really was charming. I don't think people give half enough garden parties in California. They are much more fashionable in England, where they have no climate to speak of, but have learned to make the very most of what they have. We had a letter from Lady H. last week, telling us all about the royal garden party at Windsor. There is to be another at Buckingham Palace this month, and she says if we will go over it would be no great difficulty to get us an invitation. It sounds perfectly thrilling, but the pater says we must wait for the fall.

That pretty little French widow and her handsome son are still being lionized, and her clothes continue to hold us in wonder. You never saw such clever designs, so soft and becoming, so striking, and yet not in the least bizarre. We all call her pretty, because the tout en semble is so perfect, but, as a matter of cold fact, she isn't pretty at all. But she has an interesting, intelligent face that sparkles when she is animated—and, above all, she has learned to dress herself. Never by any chance does she wear anything unsuitable. It consoles me muchly, for I am not exactly a beauty myself, but I do flatter myself I have an intelligent expression of face at all events. And evidently I can pass muster if I ignore such fashions as do not suit my style.

Clothes and temperament really are more important to general attractiveness than physical beauty, aren't they? There is Constance, for instance, a superb beauty, but, oh, so deadly lacking in interest! While Anthony, who is quite plain, but all temperament, and has an original little way of wearing her clothes, is one of the most popular girls in town with both sexes.

Well, beloved, we are off to the mountains next week, but shall put in a week or so at Catalina later in the month. The S.'s are going to Balboa, where so many nice people have built houses during the last three years. It is rapidly becoming quite a fashionable center; I must say I just love the canoeing on the inland sea.

Here ends my budget of news, which you certainly did not deserve, you minx!

Your affectionate BETTY.

Mrs. Lillian Stuart tells the Missouri Senate that clothes are responsible for the shallow life of the day with its scandals and divorces, but she predicted that in the future people would wear fewer clothes, with corresponding improvement morally and physically.

The house was abloom with masses of spring blossoms. In the hall and dining-room yellow Scotch broom was utilized, while centering the small tables was the yellow coreopsis, the Scotch broom banking the fire-place and sideboard. In the Louis IV drawing-room a color scheme of pink was carried out by centering the tables with pink sweet peas, arranged in a flat basket, and placed around the room were tall vases filled with pink roses and fluffy bows of pink tulle. In the library, which is in oriental colorings, red was the predominating color, sweet peas embellishing the tables, with large baskets of deep red carnations, the handles tied with red tulle, arranged in the room. Change of Management Sale of Garments

Every Spring and Summer Suit, Coat and Dress Has Had Its Original Price Slashed In Two, and Some Even Less

—Jacoby's Garment Department, Third Floor—

Mr. Arthur J. Kollins, our new buyer of ready-to-wear garments will leave for New York in about ten days to select his next season's stock.
—In planning this extraordinary sale with the Advertising Manager, Mr. Kollins had the following to say: "I am going to leave in about ten days for New York, and before I go I must sell every spring and summer dress, coat and suit in my stock. I have spent the last four days examining every garment. I have slashed and reduced the prices in two, and on some even less; I am taking an enormous loss, but I must get rid of every garment. I have divided the stock into five lots and these phenomenally low prices that I am quoting, I may never be able to offer again.
—Now here are the items, and don't be stingy with space."

—"Why!—Just look at the values in this advertisement—they will tell you the reason—If you need Rugs you shouldn't fail to be at Bullock's bright and early Monday morning"—nor should any one who needs a rug of any size, or any kind—

It's a Great New York Purchase and an Extraordinary Opportunity

—There are certain times when certain manufacturers of good rugs find it necessary, advantageous and wise to sell a large volume of rugs quickly at very low prices. Such transactions frequently provide a large sum of money that can be conveniently used in manufacturing activities; reduce stock to a wonderful extent with gratifying speed; and work general benefit to the manufacturers concerned.

At the same time that they bring to those merchants who are fortunate enough to be given the privilege of purchase

Savings that in a reasonably large order will figure into thousands of dollars over figures that obtain regularly.

—Such an event is responsible for this—one of the greatest offerings of good rugs that Bullock's has been able to announce—and this means much, particularly to those who have been acquainted with previous Bullock's sales of rugs and the opportunities they have presented—

The savings that we were able to make in this large purchase are passed on to buyers of the Southwest in equally large economies.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

(From The Guide to Beauty.)

These days the face and neck need special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the beating sun, are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolized wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Tan, freckles, blotches and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve one ounce powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this during the heat of the day or before going out for theater or social affair. It is a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle eraser.—[Advertisement.

Owes Her Life to Eckman's Alterative

Eckman's Alterative is being used with success in the treatment of of Tuberculosis in all parts of the country. Persons who have taken it, improved, gained weight, exhausting night sweats stopped, fever diminished, and many recovered. If you are interested to know more about it, we will put you in touch with some who are now well. You can investigate and judge for yourself. Read of Mrs. Govert's recovery:

"Griffith, Ind.

"Gentlemen: About September 16, 1908, my mother-in-law was taken sick with Catarrhal Pneumonia, which developed into Lung Trouble. In January, when Rev. Wm. Berg of St. Michael's Church, at Schererville, Ind., prepared for her death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alterative, and see if it would not give her some relief. The attending physician declared she had Consumption and was beyond all medical aid. So I immediately had Rev. Wm. Berg to send for a bottle. Practically without hope for recovery, I insisted that she try the Alterative, which she did. I am glad to say that she soon began to improve. Now, she works as hard as ever, weighs twenty pounds heavier than she ever did before she took sick, and is in good health."

(Affidavit) JOS. GRIMMER.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Investigate all Claims

Claims are easily made but hard to prove. The success of De Miracle has not been attained by merely making claims but by fulfilling them, which is proven by the fact that De Miracle is the only depilatory that has ever been indorsed by reputable physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

Only Depilatory of Proven Merit

De Miracle has stood the test of time, having been sold for over eleven years, therefore it is the only depilatory of proven merit. Consequently, the only one you can use with absolute safety. The mere fact that questionable depilatories are short-lived should alone be sufficient warning to avoid their use.

De Miracle

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Only Guaranteed Hair Remover

Others advertise "Guaranteed," but give no guarantee. De Miracle is the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package. Avoid permanent disfigurement by refusing substitutes offered by dishonest dealers merely for a few cents more profit. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. A MOST enjoyable studio recital was given last Wednesday afternoon by the piano pupils of Miss Octavia Hudson's Graded School of Music. A most interested audience of mothers and friends listened to a programme given by Luora and Ruth Wallace, Mildred Goudge, Charlotte Skinner, Russel Walter and Joe Hudson. The programme included piano solos, four-hand and six-hand pieces, many of which were preceded by interesting sketches written by Miss Hudson. Another interesting part was the accompanying done by several of the pupils for class songs and solos sung by Miss Hudson. All were delighted with the work done by each one, and especially with the admirable technique.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Farmer and family of Ramona Park left Saturday for Fallbrook, San Diego county. Mrs. Farmer and the children will probably be away for about two months, enjoying their summer vacation in that delightful place.

One of the most important social events of the past week, and one which is of great interest to the school circles especially, occurred last evening at the Woman's Clubhouse, when the annual banquet was given and enjoyed by the alumni of the Alhambra High School. The dinner was in charge of the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church, and the tables were beautifully appointed, and a most delicious menu served. The affair was in charge of the officers of the year, who were: Fred S. Overton, president; Lynn Emett, vice-president; William Elliott, secretary, and Miss Mabel Drake, corresponding secretary. The guests were of course the graduates of 1913, numbering forty-three, which fact alone made this year's function the "best ever."

Mrs. C. E. Overton has as her house guests for the summer her mother and sister, Mrs. Stryker and Miss Grace Stryker, of New York City, who arrived this afternoon on the Salt Lake. They will enjoy many trips while they are here, among them two weeks spent at San Diego.

One of the most important social events of the past weeks, and surely one of the happiest affairs to be given by the Music Study Club this year occurred last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Guy Williams. A year ago occurred the weddings of the two "club brides," Mrs. Lulu Travesi Haney and Mrs. Florence Kneset Hornby, and the delightful affair last Friday evening was in their honor.

HOW CAMILLE DE VERLAC BECAME FAMOUS FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

Free Prescription That Can Be Prepared at Home.

Camille re Verlac, famous for the beauty of her hands and arms, in a recent interview, says: "If every woman knew about the prescription that has caused all this talk about my hands and arms they could make their hands and arms fully as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity to give my receipe free to the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance." When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered: "Certainly, only too glad to have you do it." Turning to a desk, she wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to me. Here it is: "Go to any drug store, get a one-ounce bottle of Kulux compound. Pour the entire contents into a two-ounce bottle, add quarter ounce witch hazel, then fill with water. Apply night and morning. This prescription gives the skin a velvety softness and whiteness and removes such as freckles, tan, sun spots, roughness and redness. A single application works a marvelous transformation." It can be applied to the neck and shoulders with equally gratifying results. It is absolutely harmless and will positively not stimulate or promote a growth of hair. It is deliciously cool and soothing, and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off.—Advertisement.

Dalgleish, to Glenn Harvey of Warrenton, Va. Over fifty relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. O. W. Reinins of the Methodist Church. The playing of Lohengrin's wedding march by Mrs. John Bradford announced the approach of the bride and groom, whose only attendant was Master Gerald Swinney, nephew of the bride, who bore the ring in a beautiful white calla lily. The decorations throughout the house and large verandas were in pink and white. In the archway, above the altar provided for the marriage services, a huge white bell was suspended. The bride, charming in her wedding gown of white satin, wore her bridal veil caught back with lilies of the valley and carried a shower of the same flowers. SAY GAMBLING IS KILLING GOLF.

Spread of Betting Craze Is Worrying England.

Plan to Drive Tunnel Under Channel Revived.

Emigration to the Colonies Shows Falling Off.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 5.—The spread of gambling among the English people, both men and women, is causing serious and growing concern. No measures yet have been devised to stop the habit, which rapidly is becoming more and more of a menace. On all big races practically everybody, from the newsboy on the street to the peer in his motor, has something on his favorite horse, and even on the everyday race an immense amount in the aggregate is wagered. Latterly it has been disclosed that women working in offices and restaurants in the city have become as inveterate gamblers as the men and boys. Nowadays both men and women, during the afternoon hours, are distracted from their work by their anxiety over the results of the races, and employers complain in vain.

The House of Commons, with a view of curbing this increase in the betting habit, passed a law prohibiting commission agents from accepting money on a bet, but this was easily evaded by the agents carrying wagers on a credit system, settling once a week. As the system works today any boy with a shilling to bet on a horse can go to almost any newspaper seller and get his money down. Another measure to overcome this condition was met by opposition from the workingman, who claimed for himself the same privileges and opportunities accorded his wealthy neighbor, who can wager as freely as he likes by either going to the track or telephoning his commission agent.

The complaint is made also that gambling is spoiling golf. At most of the big clubs today members will not play unless assured of a good side bet on the result. It started with half a dollar a round, but at some clubs a game is seldom played for less than $25, $50 or even $100 a round. The professional, too, who gets his fee for taking a novice around, now wants a wager on the result. Even if he gives the novice all he deserves, the professional generally can win.

TUNNEL UNDER CHANNEL.

The proposal to drive a tunnel under the English Channel between England and France, which for years was opposed by military men on the ground that it would destroy the isolation of England, is now being taken up seriously with a better chance of going through than ever before.

The advance in flying made in recent years has already virtually taken away the advantage of isolation, but even more than this, the good relations now existing between England and France have overcome the opposition to the scheme. The government is being urged to take the matter up seriously; people who cross the channel frequently, favor the plan and the railways, who have to keep up costly steamers for the channel service, are not opposed to the tunnel idea, for they know that with the abolition of the much-dreaded channel crossing by sea, passenger traffic would increase immensely.

FOR VOTING MACHINE.

The President of the Austrian Chamber of Deputies has decided to make a trial of an electric voting machine for use in the House.

Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk, one marked "pro" and the other "contra." On the wall opposite the president's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets, numbered 1 to 516. These tablets are normally dark, but when a vote is taken each shows either a white light, for "pro," or a red light for "contra." Each member has a number corresponding to one on the board, and can therefore personally check the accuracy of his vote. An automatic apparatus counts the vote, and the totals are shown on another indicator. If names are required, they are shown on the glass tablets in either white or red letters. In case of a secret vote, the glass tablet indicator is switched off, and only the counting apparatus remains active.

THROWS FLOUR AT ASQUITH.

The recent attack on Prime Minister Asquith in the House of Commons, when a young man associated with the suffragettes threw a bag of flour at him, has again drawn attention to the awkward situation of the House in dealing with such interruptions.

The House of Commons can summon to the bar and examine and cross-examine those who offend against its rules, but any proceedings of this kind must have the formalities of a trial and would involve the right to deliver to the House a speech in defence. In the view of the government, a defensive address thus delivered would be too big an advertisement for the cause, so any action along this line has been avoided. Of course, Mr. Asquith could take out a summons for assault, but as he would then have to appear as a witness in a police court and would be subject to cross-examination, there is no possibility of his taking this step. The outcome, especially if there appears any danger of a repetition of the disorder, is likely to be the closing of the stranger's gallery, as was done last year.

The government, some years ago, gave the House an opportunity of increasing its powers to deal with such offenders, but probably for fear that it might interfere with demonstrations by members themselves, the proposal was voted down.

LOSS IN EMIGRATION.

There has been a remarkable falling off in emigration from Great Britain to the Australian colonies during the present year, according to the steamship companies concerned in this traffic. It is put down to the present high level of wages and the continued trade boom which give men employment in England. Despite this, however, Canada continues to get a very large number of emigrants from England and Scotland, so there are probably other causes for the decrease in the Australian figures.

This loss in traffic has been felt rather seriously by the steamship lines running to the South Seas. Last year there was a tremendous demand for passages to Australia and New Zealand, and to meet this trade the steamship companies increased the accommodations on each vessel and also put on new steamers. Today the ships are running very light, even on reduced schedules.

FOR POETRY OF CHILD LIFE.

Berlin Fairyland Fountain Carries Replicas of All Favorite Heroes of Juveniles.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, July 5.—The dedication of a "Fairyland Fountain" in a public park of Berlin was one of the municipality's contributions toward celebrating the quarto-centennial of the Emperor's reign.

The original design for this fountain was finished and shown at an art exhibition twelve years ago. After having been approved by the police authorities, the design came back to the City Hall with the information that the Emperor declined to pass it. His criticism was that the figures representing the famous characters in fairy stories were made mere details in the general architectural scheme so that the children, for whom the fountain was intended, could scarcely recognize their story book favorites. His Majesty recommended that this "grown-up" allegorical design be rejected, the fairy heroes and heroines be brought together in groups, and above all he advised the municipal officials to secure the services of some sculptor who had shown his ability to do work in a way that appealed to children.

The Emperor's interference caused much unfriendly criticism in the newspapers, and the city fathers argued that he had exceeded his authority. Nevertheless, they appointed a committee to consider his suggestions. The services of a Munich sculptor were secured, and after several years a new design was approved by both the Emperor and the city.

The fountain has been erected, and now Berlin children are revelling in the wonderful playground where they may see the heroes of their story books. The figures are placed in groups around two basins, the larger of which covers nearly half an acre. Red Riding Hood is there, and so is the wolf. Here also is Jack-in-Luck and his Pig, Puss-in-Boots, Cinderella and her slipper, Sleeping Beauty, and all the rest of the old-time favorites.

The whole conception is a happy one, the poetry of child life is fittingly embodied in lasting stone amid beautiful surroundings, and it is agreed on all sides that much credit, for the final success of this beautiful idea, is due Emperor William for his rejection of the first designs.

SHOW ART FOR CHILDREN.

Paris Is Holding an Exhibition to Stimulate Love of Youngsters for the Beautiful.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, July 5.—"Art for the Child" is the title of an interesting little exhibition now open in Paris. The object is to brighten the surroundings and to train the sense of beauty of the child, and numbers of delightful toys designed with this end in view are displayed. M. Leo Claretie, one of the principal organizers of the exhibition, says: "If art is to be instilled into the masses it must be done in infancy, and a surviving tendency must be created before daily labor begins to diminish leisure."

Many attractive and interesting things are on view, but it is noticeable that no dolls' houses are displayed. Instead, modern boys and girls are to have their own little bungalows in the garden. These tiny summer houses shut out all intruding adults by their low roofs, the eaves of which are only three feet from the ground, and they have their privacy still further preserved by white fences twenty inches high running all around them.

Berlin Medical Societies Refuse to Test Serum Until It Is Placed at Disposal of Hospitals.

Title for Chiropodists.

[New York Tribune:] The members of the first class to be graduated from the School of Chiropody of New York, who received their diplomas on Tuesday evening, were also the first to receive the title "M. Cp.," created recently by the board of regents. In speaking of it the present of the faculty said: "'M. C.' would have been shorter and more euphonious, but that combination of letters is so often used to express 'Member of Congress' that it could not be considered. 'M. Ch.' was also suggested and dropped because it had already been appropriated to express 'Master of Chemistry,' and 'M. Cp.' was finally agreed upon as being the best abbreviation for the new title Master of Chiropody."

WOMAN'S SOCIAL TRIUMPH MAKES LONDON JEALOUS.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] London society is hopelessly divided at the present time in a feud involving the social prominence of Countess Pappenheim, whose recent dinner dance for her daughter at the Ritz, was one of the most successful of the season.

The Countess is remembered as Miss Edith Wheeler of Philadelphia and was a great beauty of thirty years ago at the time of her marriage to Count Maximilian Pappenheim, a member of a noble Austrian house. Since her arrival in London with her beautiful daughter, the Countess has been entertaining lavishly and leaders in the scoial set have been consumed with jealousy at the success of the stately and witty American hostess.

Years of residence at the court of Vienna have in no way dimmed her love for her native country and Americans who have hitherto been neglected by the English smart world, have been welcome guests at her salons.

The Countess is a great lover of the country and her presence in London during the summer has been chiefly on account of the Countess Pauline, who inherits the beauty and magnetic qualities of her mother, and is one of the most popular debutantes in society.

The Countess's recent departure for Brighton has in no way diminished the feeling of envy of her proclivities as hostess and there is considerable speculation as to her intentions during this fall.

French Pretender Sidesteps Wife's Divorce Suit.

Tuberculosis Not Hereditary, Says Paris Scientist.

German Savant Plans Trip to Explore Borneo.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, July 5.—The pretender to the throne of France, Prince Philippe of Orleans, against whom his wife is bringing an action in the Brussels Court, has started on a pleasure trip around the world, leaving his lawyers to take care of his interests. The trial in Belgium is expected to provide many sidelights on the private life of royalty.

The Duke declares the Duchess has no right whatever to the $16,000 yearly alimony which she demands, nor any claim to the repayment of $35,200, which she says she spent on his behalf. The whereabouts of jewels valued at $1,000,000 also is in dispute, but there is reason to believe the Duchess has them. The Duke declares three of his confidential men were entrusted with the delicate mission of evading various bands of international thieves and restoring the jewels to their owner. The journey was surrounded with the utmost secrecy. Special trains were chartered for the occasion and carried the Duke's three men, traveling as notabilities. They guarded night and day an enormous box filled with diamonds, pearls and other precious stones, and finally made delivery to the Duke's wife.

The Duke of Orleans, grandson of Louis Philippe of France, is now forty-four years old. He has led an adventurous existence, finding opportunities for his love of excitement in the capitals of Europe, on a trip to the antarctic regions, and even in France itself. Disregarding a decree of banishment against him, the Duke once succeeded in re-entering France and getting himself enrolled in the French army. The French Republican government, however, did not appreciate the Duke's patriotism and feared the popularity for the royalist cause which might result from this exhibition of it. As soon as the facts were known the government had Philippe arrested and sent him to the prison of Clairvaux. The Duke was not treated as harshly as other prisoners, and the republic seemed willing to do all it could to make willing to do all it could to make his stay in jail pleasant. The government event sent a well known singer to Clairvaux to entertain the Duke. The Duke was pleased at this delicate attention on the part of the republic and invited his songstress to sing to him again. After this the intervals between the singer's visits became of shorter and shorter duration, until finally the couple escaped and eloped to Ostend.

The estrangement between the Duke and Duchess of Orleans dates back to about 1906, and had for one of its causes the friendship of the Duke for a young Parisian girl, with whom Philippe became acquainted about that time. It was the Duke's custom, when away on one of his numerous voyages, to correspond with this young woman by cypher telegrams. The exchange of this sentimental correspondence, of which the French government was fully informed by its political police, was a source for several months of much amusement to certain French officials, for all the Duke's messages were opened and translated before being delivered.

The Duchess of Orleans, before her marriage in 1896, was Archduchess Marie Dorothea Amelia of Austria. She is a daughter of Archduke Joseph, who is a cousin of the present Emperor of Austria, Francis Joseph.

FACTS ON TUBERCULOSIS.

The general belief that tuberculosis is hereditary is declared to be erroneous by Dr. Calmette, director of the Lille Pasteur Institute. The doctor has submitted statistics to the Paris Faculty of Sciences, compiled from the examination of 4000 subjects, which he believes prove conclusively that the real cause of tuberculosis is infection, and continued reinfection, coming after birth.

Of all the children less than one year of age which Dr. Calmette examined, only 9 per cent. were found to be contaminated with tuberculosis. After that age the percentage increased rapidly. Between 1 and 2 years of age 22 per cent. of the subjects proved contaminated; between 2 and 5, 53 per cent.; between 5 and 15, 90 per cent.; and 91 per cent. to 97 per cent. over 15 years of age.

The reason tuberculosis is more prevalent in cities, says Dr. Calmette, is because the danger of repeated reinfection is greater. He estimates that 91 per cent. of the inhabitants of Paris carry tuberculosis bacilli in their blood, and although they cannot really be called consumptive, yet these people are all capable of spreading infection.

TO EXPLORE BORNEO.

Dr. Carl Lumholtz, well known in America on account of his studies among the Mexican Indians, is equipping an expedition to explore the unknown interior of Dutch New Guinea.

With seventy or eighty Dyaks from Borneo to act as carriers, the expedition will start its travels in New Guinea next December. The party will follow the Diogel River into the interior as far as it is navigable, and at the head of navigation will establish a base of supplies. Dr. Lumholtz is counting on his Dyaks rendering valuable service. They will build canoes for the river journey, and when the point is reached where even canoes cannot proceed further, they will be used to clear a path through the dense forest. In the highlands of the interior Dr. Lumholtz expects to find savage tribes which have never even seen a white man. He believes this region to be rich in rare animals and gorgeous unknown birds, among the latter being a new variety of the bird of paradise. A botanist and geologist will be attached to the expedition.

The new country will be mapped by the photogrammetric method, which has been used lately with highly satisfactory results in Spitsbergen.

Billion-Dollar Claim Grows Out of Alleged Theft.

France Is Asked to Repay Heirs of John Thierry.

Efficacy of Typhoid Serum Proved by an Accident.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

PARIS, July 5. — [Special Dispatch.] The sensation of the moment here is the extraordinary claim for $1,000,000,000 made in all seriousness in the French Chamber of Deputies by M. Georges Berry, one of the representatives of the capital, on behalf of seventy-four descendants of one John Thierry, who died more than a hundred years ago after weathering the stormy days of the great revolution.

Berry makes the astounding charge that Napoleon the Great embezzled the fortune of Thierry, and, true or false, the story now being told in Paris will give students of Napoleonics more to think of than the alleged revelations of De Bourienne which, in their time, caused such wrangling the wide world over. It is asserted that while the ambitious young Bonaparte was contemplating the Siene, one day, half in the mind to commit suicide owing to the ingratitude with which the Directory had received his first victorious campaign in Italy, a "moucher," or criminal of the streets, took him to one side and told him where a fortune was to be picked up by a man of coolness and daring. The fortune was at the house of Thierry, then an old man. This was in 1797, before the coup by which Napoleon saved the Directory to mount on top of it in his own good time. According to Berry, Napleon used the "moucher's" information, gathered a few of his comrades of Lodi and the other Italian battles, and proceeded to Thierry's place, seizing the money and plate of the royalist and with this fortune gathered around him the nucleus of the brigade with which he quelled the revolt against the government for the time being. The claim is for the principal and accumulated interest.

NEW TYPHOID SERUM.

Quite by accident an eminent French professor has apparently proved the efficacy of an anti-typhoid serum advocated by his rival. Just a year ago Prof. Metchnikoff, head of the Pasteur Institute, submitted to the Academie des Science, a new anti-typhoid serum prepared from living typhoid bacilli, and asserted that not only had he made successful experiments with his serum on chimpanzees, but that some forty-four humans had been inoculated with success. Prof. Vincent of the Val de Grace Military Hospital at the time admitted that the ideal anti-typhoid method would be to inoculate with live typhoid bacilli, but declared that no such bacilli had been prepared weak enough to obviate the danger of infection.

A patient under Dr. Thiroloix at the Hospital de la Pitie, who had been vaccinated with Dr. Vincent's anti-typhoid serum a month ago, however, swallowed in error a glass bearing cultures of ultra-virulent typhoid bacilli. The nurse was distracted, believing that the patient would die. Nothing happened to him, however, and after being under close examination for several weeks he is now certified as being completely well. Fortified by this convincing proof of the safety of the remedy, Dr. Vincent, having obtained the sanction of another patient, administered to him several injections of typhoid germs in about two thousand million microbes at intervals of eight days. In three weeks the patient showed not the slightest sign of reaction and his temperature did not even rise.

Some weeks ago Moroccan tribesmen attacked a French factory, and carried off Eleomore Lloret. El Haddin's harem being presumably sufficiently well stocked, the fair captive was handed over by him to Mohammed Cheguit, the Rogul of Taza, who made her his first favorite. To keep the whole affair in the lightsome tradition of comic opera, the High Commissioner opened negotiations for the lady's ransom, first with El Haddin and later with her lord and master, the Rogul of Taza.

El Haddin expressed himself willing to surrender the captive for $450 and a magazine pistol, but the gallant Rogul, in spite of the fact that his tribesmen, under threat of rebellion, called upon him to banish the infidel charmer, refused to surrender her, save at the price of a golden Louis for every hair of her head. On these terms Eleomore is likely to remain the queen of his harem.

FORBIDS VELVET TROUSERS.

M. Guichard, the chief of the French Scotland Yard, has issued an order to his men, explaining that it is not necessary for them, when in plain clothes, to wear velvet trousers or a slouch hat in order to pass among apaches. At the same time, the order says, detectives must always have with them a soft cap and a scarf, which are quite sufficient as a disguise.

NEW THOUGHT KISS.

Divorce Asked Because the Wife Prefers to Imagine the Senation of Being Kissed.

[Omaha Bee:] That his wife refuses to kiss him because she has learned from new thought lectures to experience the sensation of a pair of lips being pressed upon her own "without the presence of himself or anyone else" is the answer made by James G. White, retired Wyoming sheep raiser and merchant, to Mrs. Grace White's suit for separate maintenance. He asks the courts to give him a divorce.

The new thought kiss is described as being attained by means of "a certain mental condition brought about by and through the teachings of the cult." Mr. White says Mrs. White has told him of its advantages.

Mr. and Mrs. White were married in December, 1904. White sets forth in his answer that he regrets that he has no children. He is 50 years old and his wife is fifteen years younger. He says that when he married Mrs. White he had $50,000, but that her extravagance has been a contributing factor to the decrease of his fortune.

White also alleges that his wife is easily caused to fly into a rage. According to his assertion, she told him that she had "taken up" with the new thought cult, that she had become much interested in its teachings as explained by lecturers and that she preferred the new thought kiss to the genuine.

Wife of the inventor of wireless telegraphy. She is the daughter of an Irish peer and is devoted to outdoor life, but also of domestic turn of mind and much devoted to her baby daughter.

LONDON, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Guglielmo Marconi, wife of the inventor of wireless telegraphy, is an Irish woman and before her marriage about seven years ago, was Miss Beatrice O'Brien, one of the seven daughters and thirteen children of the fourteenth Baron Inchique, deceased. She led a simple happy girlhood in Ireland and was devoted to outdoor life, though receiving a thorough education. Her home now is Villa Griffone, Bologna.

The marriage of a British peer's daughter to an Italian was a rare event and caused quite a stir. Beatrice O'Brien was a typical Irish beauty, and the fact that the bridegroom's own mother was a daughter of Erin, made the romance more pleasing.

Health.

FIND COPPER IN RAW CELERY.

Department of Agriculture Issues a Warning.

Use of Spray Solution Is Found Deleterious.

Consumers Urged to Employ Care in Preparing It.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Department of Agriculture, acting on the complaint of Dr. W. C. Woodward, Health Officer of the District of Columbia, and the health officers of other States, has found by careful analysis that a great deal of table celery which came to market during the last season contained slight amounts of copper in the form of dried Bordeaux mixture (lime and copper sulphate,) which farmers have to use to spray celery plants to prevent the destruction of the crop by blight. Celery not sprayed with Bordeaux mixture during its growth, according to the government specialists, is liable to reach the market in a state of partial decay.

The use of salts of copper in food products was decided by the referee board to be deleterious to health. Under food inspection decisions Nos. 148 and 149, the importation of canned fruits and canned vegetables greened with copper has been stopped. This is parallel to the laws of France, where the use of copper vessels is forbidden in packing food products.

PROOF IS OBTAINED.

The proof of the presence of copper in raw celery was obtained by analysis of samples of celery offered for sale in the markets of the District of Columbia and other cities. Analysis of four different samples of celery showed that before washing the edible part of the outside stalks contained from 9.1 to 29.2 parts of copper per million, or less than one-sixteenth to one-half grain of copper per two and one-fourth pounds of celery. The copper in the inside or heart of stalks was much smaller in amount, and ranged from 3.3 to 10.3 parts per million. In the leaves of the celery, however, which are the parts of the plant especially sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, there were found from 157.6 to 288.4 parts of copper per million parts. The chemists found that most of the copper in the inner and outer stalks disappeared on washing. After washing by hand or with a brush there was only from 3.9 to 9 parts per million in the outside stalks, and from 1.4 to 3 parts per million in the inside stalks or heart. These quantities are infinitesimal, and mean that a person would have to eat from nine to eighteen pounds of celery daily to reach the amount of copper which, if daily consumed, would, according to the experts, have any direct effect on the health.

AIM TO STOP IT.

As soon as the presence of copper on celery was determined investigations were at once begun to find its source, and to determine ways of avoiding it. The copper, it was found, resulted from improper methods of using Bordeaux mixture on the part of celery growers. At the same time it was found that the use of Bordeaux mixture, according to th investigations of the Bureau of Plan Industry, is absolutely essential t the growing of celery in many sections of the country, especially i Florida. The department, however found that the spraying apparatu used by many celery growers does no operate at a sufficiently high pressur to make a fine spray or mist. As result of this faulty apparatus, th Bordeaux mixture is applied in number of fine streams instead of mist, and these instead of merely settling on the leaves and killing the insects, run down between the stalk As a result the mixture accumulat at the base of the plant, and is no washed out by the rain. This sometimes gives a green appearance t celery, which causes many people t think the color results from Pari green, whereas the green tint is simply a copper-stained lime.

SUGGEST NEW APPARATUS.

The Department of Agriculture ha issued a circular requesting that a spraying of celery plants with Bordeaux mixture be done with efficien apparatus working under high pressure—100 pounds or more. Sprayin should be stopped when the leaves ar covered with fine drops ,and befor these begin to run down the stalk and accumulate in the base of th plant.

The Department of Agriculture a the same time has issued a warnin to consumers to break bunches o celery open and wash and scrub th stalks thoroughly before they ar eaten. It also has warned the publi against eating the leaves of celer upon which the dried Bordeaux mixture clings. According to the chemical experts who made the analysis, careful washing of celery would remove practically all of the coppe resulting from dried Bordeaux mixture, or reduce the amount presen to such a small quantity as to be entirely negligible.

[Christian Herald:] Seated majestically on rising ground on th southeast shore of the gulf, Smyrn seems as one looks from its wharve as though built on the banks of great inland lake. Berlin.

KAISER ENJOYS PRESS CARTOONS.

Berlin Newspapers No Longer Fear His Displeasure.

German Lieutenant Gets Six Months for Marrying.

Empire's Machinery Trade Shows Big Increase.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO [illegible] TIMES.]

BERLIN, July 5.—The impression generally prevailing in Germany that Emperor William becomes incensed every time he sees himsel caricatured, is quite erroneous. It is in the class of popular misconceptions concerning the German Emperor, and has no foundation in fact. On the contrary, Emperor William finds much amusement in these caricatures, and he has made an extensive collection of them to which he is constantly adding. He makes selections from foreign papers as well as German, and has many American cartoons of himself properly indexed and classified. The signatures of the best American caricaturists are about as familiar to him as they are to most American newspaper readers.

The Emperor began this collection by acquiring a book of caricatures on himself by a Frenchman named Carteret. The sale of this volume in Germany was prohibited by the authorities immediately it appeared, but the Emperor, hearing of this restriction, sent for a copy, looked it over and then ordered the prohibition removed. Carteret's sketches are the nucleus of his collection.

Up to the time of this incident the German comic press, more out of fear than reverence, had avoided all direct representation of the Emperor, but after the Carteret episode German caricaturists became bolder. In 1905 Kladderadatsch astonished its readers by publishing a caricature of His Majesty as a cuirassier, the face consisting of an interrogation mark in which the features of the Emperor were plainly discernible. Since then the German press has added many specimens to the imperial collection, many of them by no means complimentary to the royal subject.

INCREASE IN COMMERCE.

Germany has made prodigious strides in commerce and industry since 1888, and much statistical information showing these increases has been published in connection with the celebration of Emperor William's quarter century on the throne. It is now claimed that Germany is ahead of England as a producer of merchandise.

In the last twenty-five years Germany's imports have risen from $818,000,000 to $2,541,000,000, and her exports from $798,000,000 to $2,146,000,000. This foreign business affected shipping as follows: Tonnage movement in 1888, 42,000,000 tons; in 1912, 137,000,000 tons. Coal, including lignite, was produced in 1888 to the extent of 81,000,000 tons; in 1912 the figures showed 259,000,000 tons. Crude iron produced in 1888, 4,300,000 tons; in 1912, 17,800,000 tons. Imports of raw cotton show equally interesting figures; 913,000 bales in 1888, as against 2,276,000 bales last year. Germany's great electrical industry has almost been created during the past twenty-five years, and the leading electrical manufacturing company of the country has increased its capital strength more than twentyfold since 1888.

THE MACHINERY TRADE.

The general machinery trade has been revolutionized, its product enormously increased, and the efficiency of all the leading industries of the country has been multiplied several times over by the introduction in the past twenty-five years of improved machinery. While the efficiency of the individual workman has been greatly enhanced by machinery, the number of workingmen and women also has been largely increased, as is evident from a gain of about 19,000,000 in the population of the empire since 1888.

HIGH RENT IN BERLIN.

Rentals on apartments and houses n the principal cities of Germany are ising faster than incomes, and as a esult the percentage of house owners s steadily decreasing. A hundred ears ago 75 per cent. of all Berliners wned their own homes; now only 12 er cent. do so. The average number f persons dwelling in one house in Berlin is seventy-seven, as against ight in London. Of all Germany's mportant cities, only Luebeck and Bremen still cling to the one-family house. Everywhere else the apartment-house has become the rule.

In 1868 residents of Hamburg with ncomes from $225 to $300 a year, paid 0 per cent. of the total for rent; hey now pay more than 25 per cent. The proportion of rent to income has isen in Breslau to 34 per cent. among persons with incomes of $1000. It s not at all uncommon to find persons who pay more than a third of heir entire income for rent alone, nd in some cases the percentage eaches 40. It is doubtful if any ther nation in the world pays such high percentage of its income for housing. A Berlin authority estimates t 32.4 the average percentage paid or rent by those inhabitants of choeneberg, a devision of Berlin, whose incomes do not exceed $300 year.

SIX WEEKS FOR MARRYING.

The pay of a German lieutenant is ot sufficient to support a family, and he army regulations, as is generally he case in European countries, for-id an officer's marriage without his uperiors' consent. This permission is iven only when a bride with a tipulated minimum dowry is found. ormer Lieut. Hermann Bauer, of uessedorf, while still in active service ut at a time when his application o be permitted to resign had been anded in, married without the army uthorities' consent. He has just been entenced to six weeks' imprisonent in a fortress.

When German justice makes a mistake, it pays for it. Johann Beyer ecame involved in a famous perry case eighteen years ago, was conicted and served four years in prisn. He protested his innocence, and nally in 1911, had the case reopened, and was acquitted. The proincial Court at Dortmund has now ranted him the sum of $5200, with a ension of $475 a year until his sixtyfth year, as recompense for his unust incarceration.

ITALIAN ROYAL PRINCESS IS BARRED FROM THRONE.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Princess Yolande of Italy is 12 years old, having been born June 1, 1901. Her full name is Yolande Margherita Milena Elizabetta Roma Marie.

She is the eldest child of the King and Queen of Italy. The Princess has two younger sisters and one younger brother. She is exceedingly bright.

Three years ago the Czar of Russia paid a visit to the King of Italy and presented Yolande with a pony. The Czar was greatly pleased with Yolande and enjoyed greatly her quaint sayings and playfully dignified ways. Yolande is her parents' idol, but she never will wear the crown of the kingdom, as the existing laws prohibit the ascension of females.

Queen Elena, the Princess's mother, is considered one of the most beautiful and accomplished of European royal personages. She was Princess of Montenegro when she became the bride of King Victor Emmanuel. The Queen is said to be a model mother and devoted to her children.

BOY KING OF UGANDA PLAYS GOLF IN LONDON.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Daudi Cwa, the boy King of Uganda, is now on a visit to London, which the authorities point out is unofficial. Uganda is an English protectorate. The King, who is 17 years old, is of far different type from his father, the late King Mwanga, who died in exile as a result of the part which he took in the Mohammedan rebellion in his kingdom in 1898.

The new King has adopted European manners and can read, write and speak English fluently. He can play a good game of golf, having learned the game on the links at Kampala, near where his palace is situated. As Daudi is not yet of age, he has no voice in the native council or Lukiko, the regents acting on his behalf, but next year he will take over the reins of government and will, it is believed, make a capable ruler. The King is tall, with brilliant teeth and chocolate complexion.

ROYAL CHILDREN LIVE IN OPEN.

Little Italian Princesses Romp With Brother.

Girls Are Dressed Simply in White Sailor Suits.

Call Mother the Handsomest Queen in All Europe.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, July 5.—Whatever the future may hold of sorrow or joy for the royal children of Italy, the son and three small daughters of King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena will be able to look back upon an exceptionally happy childhood.

The Quirinal Palace in Rome, where the children live, has its own shaded gardens, but lest these should not suffice the King has bought a villa close to the city to serve as an open playground for the youngsters. This villa is on the ancient Via Salaria. The children are often taken out to it in motor cars, and spend long afternoons at play with their ponies and other pets, exactly as though they were in the real country.

When spring comes the little Prince, Umberto, aged 9, and his sisters, Yolanda, Mafalda and Giovanna, respectively 12, 11 and 6 years old, go down to their father's hunting lodge of Castel Porziano, about fifteen miles from Rome, where a scented wood of pine trees borders the Mediterranean, and where, dressed in simple and practical clothes, they live in the open air, bathing and climbing trees till they become as brown as berries and as hardy as the children of the peasants around them. Later on in the summer they go to the seashore at San Rossore, near Pisa, and later still to the fine country Castle of Racconigi, in Piedmont, which has always been the summer residence of the Carignano branch of the House of Savoy.

It used to be the fashion for Italian children of the better class to dress elaborately, like miniature editions of their parents, but Queen Helena, realizing how much happier is the life of boys and girls who have not to care for their clothes, has set the fashion for simplicity by always dressing her children in loose and comfortable "sailor suits." Thus arrayed the royal youngsters enjoy without restraint the luxuries of digging, gardening and paddling in the sea.

The eldest of the family, Princess Yolanda, is a handsome girl, and always looks well in her white serge suits with broad collars, but she is rather precocious, as are many Italian girls, and already shows a truly feminine interest in the matters of dress. It is a great joy to her to be allowed to assist in selecting her mother's millinery, and she chooses hats for the Queen on a most lavish scale, never allowing herself to be trammeled by considerations of expense. Yolanda admires her beautiful mother intensely, and she was present on a public occasion recently when someone remarked to her that the Queen was looking particularly well. The little girl answered:

"My mother is the very handsomest Queen in Europe." After a short pause she added: "And I am going to be exactly like her."

The resemblance between mother and daughter is most striking.

SIMPLE LIFE IN BURMA.

No Rents, No Landlords, No Moving Vans and New Home Locations Are Easily Secured.

[Dallas News:] Life is simple in Burma. In a country that is underpopulated and that contains vast areas of unoccupied land fit for cultivation, the people need not submit to oppression, as many Oriental nations must. Migration is always a possible means of relief.

Every man is his own carpenter. He puts together his house of bamboo and planks cut by his own hands. He knows how to take it down. He has no need to send for contractors or furniture vans. There are the carts and the plow cattle in his sheds. He has talked things over with his wife, who is a capable and sensible woman.

One morning they get up, and instead of going to his field or his fishing or whatever it may be, he takes his tools, and before sunset, the wife helping, the house is down, and together with the simple household goods, is stowed away in the cart. The children find a place there, too; or if they are old enough, they run along beside their mother. If the local magistrate is so blind to his own interests as to oppress people, there is a wiser man a few leagues away who is ready to welcome them. For what is the good of land without men to live on it?

But suppose the worst comes to the worst, and the man in power is a fiend, with whom neither property nor life nor honor is safe; even then there is the great forest in which life, although hard, is a real pleasure to a man; and given a good leader, the oppressed may soon change places with the oppressor.

New Use for Buttermilk.

[Philadelphia North American:] A discovery which should be hailed with delight by painters has been made by Walter S. Camper of near Bowers. Campers discovery is that linseed oil is a thing of the past in mixing paint if there is plenty of buttermilk available. Camper was painting his house when he found that there was no linseed oil for mixing the paint.

The cans of paint had been left out in the yard near a mischievous child. Camper went back to the paint and discovered that it worked all right. Investigation showed that the child had emptied a pitcher of buttermilk into the paint, and that it had completed the mixing as well as linseed oil.

Poverty and True Love.

[Exchange:] Homer Folks, secretary of the State Charities Aid Association of New York, said of eugenics the other day:

"The love match is a good thing for eugenics. By this I mean that is better for a pretty girl to marry a brave, handsome youth for love—true love—than it is for her to marry an elderly millionaire for his money.

"Mercenary people like to sneer at love in a cottage and bread and cheese and kisses and all that sort of thing. But these sneers are false. For—"

Here Folks smiled.

"For," he added, "when poverty comes in at the door love flies out and gets a good job."

GARDENS OF CHELSEA.

The Paradise of Gardeners. Rearing of the First Red Geranium and the Famous Apothecaries' Garden.

[London Chronicle:] Chelsea, which is again to steal from the inner temple the Royal Horticultural Society's show, is more than any other London suburb the paradise of gardeners. One of these, who lived in the Kings road in 1837, is credited in a book on popular delusions with pricing a single tulip in his catalogue at 200 guineas—"a remnant, perhaps of the tulip mania which two centuries before had ruined half of the merchants of Holland and threatened to prove as disastrous as the South Sea bubble." The first red geranium grown on English soil was reared in the garden of a Mr. Davis in 1822. Even then Chelsea could be pictured thus:

When the sweet-breathing spring
unfolds the buds,
Love flies the dusty town for shady woods;
Then Chelsea's meads oerhear perfid-
ious vows,
And the press'd grass defrauds the grazing cows.

But the most famous garden in Chelsea is Hans Sloane's physic garden, given by him in 1721 to the Apothecaries' Company. Now the Royal Botanic, it still carries out its original purpose of "manifesting the power, wisdom and goodness of God in creation, and that the apprentices might learn to distinguish good and useful plants from hurtful ones." When the garden was first made it stood surrounded by fields, but by the middle of the last century it had only one open space to look out upon—the riverside!

GRAY HAIR

How Your Hair May Be Darkened and Kept So.

Remarkable Method — Free Dollar Box.

Gray hair is believed by most people to be evidence of weakening in physical and mental power.

Those who have gray hair and must rely upon employers or others are often compelled to fight this prejudice. It is particularly hard for the man with gray hair who is thrown upon his own resources by business failure or mercantile changes and who must seek a new position.

Prejudice Against Gray Hair.

The gray-haired person soon realizes that younger-appearing men are chosen for positions, although he may know some thus selected who are really older than he is.

Among women, doesn't the one who possesses hair of the natural dark or dark-brown shade (rather than gray, white or bleached) meet with the highest favor?

As a matter of fact, gray hair usually has nothing whatever to do with loss of physical or mental vitality. It is caused by a disorder of the pigmentary glands in the hair follicles, due to such causes as a shock, fever, wearing of heavy hats, neglect in caring for the hair, etc.

Don't Paint Your Hair.

Most gray-haired persons make the mistake of relying upon what are commonly sold as hair stains, dyes, dyeing combs, etc. It would be quite as sensible to use ink or stove polish, for these cheap and nasty dyes deceive nobody except those who use them. The color is unnatural, and everybody easily knows what has been done. The hair has been merely painted. These dyes soon begin to wash off, usually discoloring the skin, clothing, pillows, etc., and ugly streaks of strange shades cover the hair.

Restoration of Color.

At last what we are confident is the best hair darkening method has been evolved, which has its object not merely in restoring the hair to the natural shade of youthful days, but in developing a luxuriant, silky, strong, beautiful growth.

The hair roots and glands are reached scientifically, and the best possible results are attained. This new Method is directed at causing the hair to darken gradually, so that the appearance is that of improving health and vigor.

Box and Book Free.

An illustrated, very interesting book will be sent absolutely free. It has information about restoring the hair to natural color, overcoming baldness, lasting removal of dandruff, how to stop hair from falling out, etc.

A VETERAN JOURNALIST'S REMINISCENCES OF WAR HEROES

BY MAJ. BEN C. TRUMAN.

Now that all the army commanders on both sides of the Civil War have passed away, and also nearly all the statesmen of that day, the compilers of history are examining the records, and the few remaining newspaper correspondents of the days of that strife are occasionally presenting their observations and opinions, some of which they were too patriotic and considerate to publish while the great leaders who fought to the best of their ability were still alive.

With the exception of the glorious Thomas, all of the army commanders upon the Union side committed greater or lesser blunders, although many of them became illustrious before the end, while a number of the most distinguished commanders became overwhelmed with adverse circumstances—conspicuously Rosecrans and Buell, who did the country eminent service at times and who deserved better than they secured at the hands of their countrymen; for, undoubtedly, Buell saved Grant's army from destruction at Shiloh and turned Bragg back from his threatened invasion of Louisville and Cincinnati. As to the service of Gen. Rosecrans, aside from his successes at various points in 1861-2, his victory at Stone River December 31, 1862, and January 1-2, 1863, freed Middle Tennessee almost entirely of a large rebel army, while his subsequent operations from Murfreesboro to Stevenson were of incalculable account to our commanders further west and in the East.

Buell's withdrawal from about Chattanooga to the Ohio River staggered the authorities at Washington and angered Andrew Johnson so acutely that he pronounced Buell a traitor and forced his removal from active service. The fact is, the plans of Bragg in detail became known to Buell, showing that an evasion of the latter's army and an invasion of the North was intended. Hence the forced marches of Buell, so widely criticised as a retreat, to place his army between Bragg and the North. The hasty organization against Kirby Smith to delay his advance on Cincinnati and the rapid movement to Louisville were the steps which really defeated Bragg, whose designs were frustrated by Buell's marching, and he was driven from Kentucky by the battle of Perryville. This was really a fight in retreat for Bragg, and only a portion of the Union army became engaged. The real battle, Stone River, resulting from Bragg's advance north of the Tennessee, occurred near Murfreesboro. For this campaign Gen. Rosecrans was placed in command. He received from his predecessor an army in excellent organization and good heart. Buell was the victim of circumstances, and he was not understood in time. All added light thrown on the history of this army shows that his fame—although he is dead—should be henceforth an increasing one.

The Tullohoma campaign, which was the movement after Stone River for the possession of Tennessee, the campaign for the capture of Chattanooga, and the subsequent battles about Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge reflect credit on all concerned. The Tullohoma campaign, for which, in connection with Chickamauga, Gen. Rosecrans received so much ignorant censure, shows it to have been what those who carried it on and participated in it have always known it to have been, namely, one of the most brilliant and successful of the strategic victories of the war; for Rosecrans, with an army of 60,000 effective men, compelled Bragg, with an army of 44,000 effective men, to fall back further and form better natural positions in nine days, with a loss of less than 600 men killed, wounded and missing, than the united armies under Sherman were able to compel the same army, with but slight additional strength under Gen. Joe Johnston, to fall back, in four months of active field campaigning, with a very much larger relative loss. The proportion of the forces of the opposing armies during the Tullohoma campaign was far nearer equal than that on the Atlantic campaign, while the natural and military obstacles to be overcome were largely the greater in the former.

To those who still live and remember this campaign Gen. Rosecrans needs no vindication. All such freely render him credit and high praise. Those who, from want of knowledge, are doubtful will find that their doubts have no foundation as they carefully examine the records.

But what is known as Gen. Rosecrans's Chattanooga campaign was the most harmful to his career, and especially as the great Thomas did undoubtedly save the Army of the Cumberland from destruction. But the campaign, as conceived by Rosecrans and executed by his splendid army, which fought and won the bloodiest battle of the war at Chickamauga as the price of Chattanooga, has never appeared a mystery, nor the battle anything but an essential victory to all unprejudiced military minds. As generally received the story of Chickamauga is that Rosecrans, having occupied Chattanooga marched out to attack Bragg, was defeated and routed at Chickamauga and driven back into Chattanooga.

The truth is that Chattanooga was never in possession of the Army of the Cumberland in a military sense until after the battle of Chickamauga, which Rosecrans fought in the rear of the town for its possession. At the opening of the movement Bragg occupied Chattanooga, on the South bank of the Tennessee, and had strongly fortified it. Rosecrans made a feint of crossing above the town, and crossed thirty miles below. Scaling two very difficult mountain ranges, he came down into the valley some fifteen or twenty miles in rear of Chattanooga. Bragg evacuated the place and retired to Lafayette, behind Pigeon Mountains. Rosecrans started to occupy Chattanooga. He was delayed two days by McCook (who held his right) failing to move promptly in concentration on the rest of the army. Meantime Bragg was reinforced by Longstreet from Virginia, and felt strong enough to try to reoccupy Chattanooga. The heads of the two armies, each marching for the town, met at Chickamauga, on a field from seven to ten miles outside of the city, and a two days' battle ensued. By the breaking of the Union army on the morning of the second day only five brigades were cut off from the general line. The rest of the army remained intact and fought the battle through. The Army of the Cumberland could have continued on the field at the close of the fight, but the passes in Missionary Ridge, which controlled Chattanooga, were in its rear. If Gen. Thomas had not occupied them that night, the Confederates might have done so, and thus secured Chattanooga. By leaving the field, which was of no consequence to either side, and taking fast hold of the prize for which the field was fought, the Army of the Cumberland obtained the objective of its campaign, and held it to the close of the war. And this is the measure of the victory. The solid services of Gen. George H. Thomas and of two of his great division generals—"Jim" Steedman and Gordon Granger—took on additional glorious light. Indeed, Chickamauga is rightfully regarded as his chief glory. But he was equally great at the storming of Missionary Ridge and at Nashville. In short, he was always great, and always successful, from Mill Spring to Nashville; but as the "Rock of Chickamauga" he will ever be best known to all even outside of the Army of the Cumberland.

As I have said before, after the great leaders upon both sides have been dead for years and generations of writers have examined carefully and unimpassionedly into all the details of campaigns and contests as presented by army officers and by war correspondents from both sections, there will be as true histories of the Civil War as can be written; and if the writers do their duty, as they undoubtedly will, there will be some surprising things said concerning the Atlanta campaign. The country at large will always honor Sherman, who may be termed the military genius of the war. But it may come out some time that the grizzly old hero entertained so much prejudice against the Army of the Cumberland and two of its greatest fighters—Thomas and Hooker—and so much more regard for the Army of the Tennessee than for any other army, that the victory which gave us Atlanta cost the country tens of thousands of lives and a hundred millions of dollars more than it should.

The true historian may yet tell the world that "Joe Johnston's army might have been captured at Resaca had Sherman listened to Thomas and Hooker and other general officers of the Army of the Cumberland. Thomas begged Sherman at least to let Hooker, with his Twentieth Corps, move according to his (Thomas's) plan.

"We can capture the whole army," said Thomas.

"I can do that with the Army of the Tennessee," replied Sherman; "besides, I am not fond of Hooker. He isn't to be relied on, and thinks too much of Fighting Joe."

The Army of the Tennessee had its hands too full to carry out what Sherman had hoped; the Army of the Cumberland became engaged when it was too late, and the gamecock of the Southern Army got away, leaving more Federal than Confederate dead and wounded on the field.

At Kenesaw Mountain Sherman was besought to make a flank movement rather than attack in front. But he banged away until he had lost several thousand men, and would have been thrashed to pieces if he hadn't had more than two to one of the rebels, got badly defeated, and then executed the movement as urged by Thomas, Hooker, King, Carlin, Schofield, Wood, Dick Johnson, and Jeff C. Davis.

The Army of the Cumberland laid off and listened to the tremendous cannonade and clash of small arms and rebel yell all day upon the 22d of July, when McPherson was killed and 16,000 soldiers of the Army of the Tennessee placed hors du combat, and was not called upon to participate. In company with Gen. John M. King I called upon Thomas late in the afternoon, and he said:

"There is something terrible going on over there on the left, and I am expecting orders every minute. I am afraid, by the sound, that the Army of the Tennessee is getting the worst of it."

In the evening we called on Hooker, who had just returned from a "reconnoissance" with his aid, "Reddy" Stetson, youngest son of Stetson of the Astor House, and the first thing Hooker said was:

"Old Tecumseh has had hell on our left all day. He wanted to take Atlanta without our help, and has lost McPherson and 8000 or 10,000 men, so I hear. I am senior officer and the command should come to me. But the old lunatic probably will give it to Logan or Howard. He will never forgive me for my success on the 20th (the brilliant battle of Peach Tree Creek.) Well, I can stand it if he can. I was sent out here to fight, but he does not seem to require my services. I forced the rebels on the 20th, and we hurled them back on Atlanta without a gun being fired by the army of the Tennessee. I haven't seen Sherman since. He must be terribly disgusted with me. The only way to take Atlanta is to move upon it with every available man and gun, or flank it."

Sherman lost nearly 17,000 men on the 22nd, and shortly afterward flanked the stronghold and captured it without great loss. Still, we succeeded, and who knows but that it might have been worse, after all? The world has not produced many illustrious warriors who have not been severely criticised. Success is the thing in battle, and he is the greatest general who wins the most fights. Yet where would have been Grant at Shiloh without Buell? Where would have been Meade at Gettysburg without Hancock? And where would have been Rosecrans at Chickamauga without Thomas?—the general who won the first good fight in the West at Mill Spring, Kentucky, and who wound up things in that department by annihilating Hood's army near Nashville three years afterward—the only time an army was actually annihilated during the war.

Another blunder and a most wanton destruction of life was Sherman's unsuccessful assault on Kenesaw Mountain. In my summary for the New York Times of the campaign which ended at Atlanta in August, 1864, I severely criticised the battle of Atlanta, in which we lost McPherson and nearly 17,000 men, and also the assault on Kenesaw, which resulted in a needless slaughter. In response to the latter I received a letter from Col. Dayton, Sherman's chief of staff, which contained the following paragraph:

"For the assault on Kenesaw most excellent reasons may be given, reasons which ought to be conclusive and not the oft-quoted ones, that it was necessary to show that our troops could fight as well as maneuver, but that the weather (as you know) was so bad that supplies could not be transported to any distance from the railroad; maneuvers, of the character subsequently adopted with success, were not possible at that time, and the only alternative was to do nothing until the weather cleared and the roads improved, or to assault. There was a fair chance to carry some point in the enemy's line. If the assault had succeeded it would have been a decisive event. But as a failure the venture was at least justified on sound military principles, as our maneuvers were resumed as soon as the weather permitted. They were, in short, the very reasons which have always justified an assault before entering upon a siege, and they were perfectly applicable to this case."

But Dayton was totally wrong. Assaults on fortified positions like those at Kenesaw, Spottsylvania and Cold Harbor were rank folly. For had they or other of their kind succeeded, the defensive army, having line of retreat, suffers less assaulting army, while, if as they generally will, the worse.

The assault on Kenesaw, if done before—he has made poety a part of life. This latest of Masefield's long narrative poems is a tragedy of love in rural England. And in spite of all its brutality of phrase, its sordidness of theme, and its frankness of diction, this poem has a grim and tremendous power, and many of its passages are marked with the sheerest beauty.

Alas, that I can say no sweet words in behalf of William Watson's new volume, "The Muse in Exile." Watson has written himself out. In his younger days he was indeed a poet to listen to. But in his later work the old fire has gone, the old passion has chilled.

It is difficult to think of Ibsen as a poet, but that he was a poet of a high order is proved by a recent volume called "Lyrics and Poems from Ibsen." These verses are translated by Fyddell Edmund Garrett, and contain an introduction by Philip H. Wicksteed. The book contains songs from the dramas, the scene of Ase's death from "Peer Gynt," and a revised version of "Brand."

The Irish movement will not down. The latest manifestation of it is a volume of one-acters by Lady Gregory. It is called "New Comedies."

Herbert Kaufman, that eminent platitudinarian, is in our midst with a volume modestly entitled "Poems." Kaufman is a great uplifter, but what a poet—what a poet! Would that I might quote some inspiring lyric, some Keatsian couplet, some luscious, melodious Swinburnian rhyme. But I cannot. I cannot. But you will find in this book poems on hope, ambition, courage, failure, etc., and you will find a touching poem entitled "Five Dollars a Week," in which a poor little shop girl loses her virtue through what the Socialists called economic pressure. Then there is a poem called "I Have Piped and Ye Did Not Dance." It is the sad story of a cold man and a passionate woman. But let us not escape "The Wolf of the Night." Here is the second stanza. I give it to you for what it is worth and pass on:

"Yon she goes.
Now she slows
And peers in a face
Hoping grace.
How God cried
When her soul died
In its pride
For a whim
Of some him
Who lied!
What a life."

Now for "The Yellow Jacket." This play, written by George C. Hazelton and J. Harry Benrimo, was one of the marked successes of the past theatrical season in New York. It is an imitation, or rather an adaptation of the Chinese method of play-writing. The story itself deals with the theme of maternal self-sacrifice and the successful efforts of an heir to recover his place. It is not the theme so much as the handling which made this play a success. It loses much in book form because the story itself is trite, and it was the method of producing it which made it a success.

BIOGRAPHICAL BOOKS.

FROM poetry to biography. The most important biographical publication of the year is "The Life and Letters of John Paul Jones," by Anna de Koven. It is really the first authentic history of this great naval hero that we have had. Up to a few years ago we thought A. C. Buell's "Paul Jones, Founder of the American Navy," was authoritative. But that bubble was pricked, and Mr. Buell became one with Dr. Cook and Ananias. It was Mrs. De Koven herself who exposed the charlatanism of Buell's book, and her present biographical work is the result of the accumulation of significant new material and years of study and research. Mrs. De Koven is perhaps the greatest living authority on John Paul Jones, and her book will probably be the last of its kind ever written. It is in two volumes.

"Clara Schumann," by Berthold Litzmann, is a translation and abridgment from the fourth German edition. This biography of one of Germany's famous musicians, sister of Robert Schumann, is based on material found in diaries and letters.

The six women in Alice Kemp-Welch's book, "Of Six Mediaeval Women," are Roswitha the Nun, Marie de France, Mechthild of Mogdeburg, Mahant, Countess of Artois, Christine de Pisan and Agnes Sorel. There is added a note on Mediaeval Gardens.

"The Story of Don Juan of Austria," by Padre Luis Colona, translated from the Spanish by Lady Moreton, deals with one of the most romantic figures of sixteenth century Spain.

The volume on Gen. Meade is a biography of the hero of Gettysburg based mainly on letters written to his family and intimate friends. The book is entitled "The Life and Letters of Gen. Meade."

The most important historical work is "The Windham Papers," which contains an introduction by the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Rosebery. These two volumes give us the life and correspondence of the Rt. Hon. William Windham, 1750-1810, a member of Pitt's first Cabinet and the ministry of "all the talents," together with hitherto unpublished letters from George III and other contemporaries.

Guerilla fighters have had too little press notice. Quibble all you like with their ethics, you must admit they are romantic. It is, therefore, good to come across a book like Percy Cross Standing's "Guerilla Leaders of the World." The author has missed much of the romance in this form of warfare, but he has given us some interesting studies as he follows the fortunes of famous guerilla fighters in many countries—Bolivar, Garibaldi, Diaz, "Sitting Bull" and others.

BOOK NEWS.

J. B. Lipincott Company will publish Hall Caine's "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" about August 25. Klaw & Erlanger, who have secured the dramatic rights, will produce the play in New York about September 25.

Harper & Bros. have recently put to press for reprinting "The Day of Their Wedding," by William Dean Howells; "The Land and the Book," by William H. Thomson, and "Perlycross," by Richard D. Blackmore.

The John Lane Company has just published "Myles Calthorpe, I.D.B.," by F. E. Mills Young, author of "Grit Lawless," "Chip," etc. When Myles Calthorpe undergoes the rigor of the laws against illicit diamond buying and becomes branded and I.D.B.—letters which in South Africa ruin a man's career—he suffers silently for the sake of a woman, whose brother is the real culprit. The time comes for her to make amends and she is confronted with a problem, for injustice has left its mark upon the man and he has sought some poor measure of consolation elsewhere.

Rachel Hayward,
Author of "The Hippodrome."

The John Lane Company has recently published "The Distant Drum," by Dudley Sturrock. This novel reveals a recent New York scandal in a new light. The central male figure is an aviator, and a feature of the novel is the description of an aeroplane flight and disaster from the viewpoints both of spectators and airman. The author himself is an aviator of note. The setting of the story is Long Island and the smart restaurants and fashionable haunts of New York.

The George H. Doran Company has just published "The Old Adam," by Arnold Bennett. In this story American readers will find many traces of the author's recent tour in the United States. He describes a house in the Five Towns fitted up by an Englishman along the lines of American comfort. As a matter of fact this is exactly what Mr. Bennett has done for himself in a new house which he has purchased near Colchester.

"The Old Adam" is the story of an Englishman who is at heart an American. He was an American to the extent of letting his women folk manage him, until at last he discovered that domesticity was robbing him of his daring. At 43 the Old Adam in him revives, and he starts out into the world to be spectacular. Mr. Bennett's hero gets out of the rut largely by the aid of an American. The story includes a visit to New York in which the hero sums up his impressions in a breath. It ends with the return of the husband to the Five Towns, a conqueror.

The J. B. Lippincott Co. issued late last month "James Hurd," by R. C. Prowse, author of "Voysey." The root idea of this story is the blindness and crudity of our moral code, though, the author says, it is no defense of his hero's unusual action, but a study in ideas.

L. C. Page & Co. have recently issued four new editions for travel lovers, as follows: "Old Edinburgh," by Frederick W. Watkeys, M.D.; "Rome," by Walter Taylor Field; "Romantic Ireland," by M. F. and B. McMansfield; "Umbrian Cities of Italy," by J. W. and A. M. Cruickshank. These books, previously published in two volume sets, are now issued each two volumes printed and bound as one volume, with featherweight paper.

The Macmillan Company has just published "A History of Transportation in the Eastern Cotton Belt to 1860," by Ulrich Bonnell Phillips, professor of history in the University of Michigan. Beginning with a consideration of transportation in the ante-
"The Adventurous Simplicissimus"
Prof. Phillips takes up in turn the following topics: "The South Carolina-Georgia Lowlands to the End of the Eighteenth Century," "The Uplands Prior to the Railroad Era," "The Building of the Charleston and Hamburg Railroad, the Charleston and Cincinnati Project, and the Reorganized South Carolina Railroad Company," "The Georgia Railroad and Banking Company," "The Central of Georgia Railroad System," "The Western and Atlantic—a State-Owned Railroad, and "Minor Roads and Later Projects."

The Putnams have just printed new impressions of the following books: "The Knave of Diamonds," by Ethel M. Dell; "Little Thank You," by Mrs. T. P. O'Connor; "Patchwork Comedy," by Humfrey Jordan; "The Leavenworth Case," by Anna Katherine Green; "The Cruikshank Fairy Book;" "Five Thousand Facts and Fancies," by W. H. P. Phyfe; "The Woman Movement," by Ellen Key.

The Putnams published late last month a volume entitled "The New Agrarianism," by Charles W. Dahlinger. In it the author presents a survey of a great many tendencies in public life, and offers a solution for much present discontent. The book is an appeal, as the author points out, "from the too-general concurrence, in the widely-expressed verdict, which confuses evils apparent in the conduct of political, economic and sociological matters, into fundamental errors in the structure of government, and in those public and private institutions which control the industry and commerce of the country." The author offers suggestions regarding the agricultural methods and land reforms of several European countries and indicates the direction in which lies the improvement of American agriculture. Suggestions also are offered for the more economic and effective administration of farms.

A third volume has been added to Sven Hedin's "Trans-Himalaya: Discoveries and Adventures in Thibet." This contains chapters on the country surrounding the source of the Indus, on the highlands of Western Tibet, on the Sutleg Valley and on other regions never before trodden by the foot of white man.

Four books from the pen of E. Phillips Oppenheim were given to the public last month, but his publishers, Little Brown & Co., explain that these are the authorized American editions of Mr. Oppenheim's earlier work, issued by arrangement with the English publishers, and are not new books. The titles are "The Survivor," "The World's Great Snare," "Those Other Days" and "For the Queen."

In a new book published by the Yale University Press, entitled "The Judiciary and the People," the Hon. Frederick N. Judson, LL.D., discusses the development of judicial power in the United States, the specific grounds of complaint, and suggested remedies.

The J. B. Lippincott Company issued last month "Everyday Phrases Explained," a new collection of curious words and phrases in popular use giving their meanings and origins.

"The Adventurour Simplicissimus" is a hero of the Thirty Years' War whose history, as told by Hans von Grimmelshausen, a German author of the seventeenth century, has remained until now practically inaccessible to English readers. However, a translation is now about to be issued by E. P. Dutton & Co.

The story opens with the brutal sack by marauding troopers of the farmhouse which had been the hero's earliest home. He escapes to the forest and receives there something approaching education in the manners of the high world which his only friend, a hermit, had left behind. Thence he makes his way to Hanau, is made a page to the Governor, becomes a soldier, has endless adventures, including two unsatisfactory marriages, discovers himself to be of noble birth, and finally in his turn retires to end his life as a holy hermit. The book takes its reader into every grade of society and displays the full-blooded life of the time.

The Putnams have just published a volume entitled "The Psychology of Revolution," by Gustave Le Bon, author of "The Crowd." It is a scientific inquiry into the psychology of revolution. The author shows how the mind of the masses, the collective mind, is moved through a leader, and how always the momentum goes far beyond the desire of the leader, how force, once let loose, cannot be controlled, but passes inevitably into anarchy.

The John C. Winston Company has sent to press for a fourth large edition "Sylvia," by Upton Sinclair. "A Living Legacy," by Ruth Underwood, is in its third edition, and "Written in the Sand," by Mme. G. R. Duval, and "The Mystery of 31, New Inn," by R. Austin Freeman, are both in their second editions.

Louis Joseph Vance has been living in France and England during the past winter, where he has completed a new novel of New York theatrical life entitled "Joan Thursday," which his publishers, Little, Brown & Co., will bring out in the autumn.

After a successful season the two companies playing the dramatized version of "Little Women," have been withdrawn until autumn, when both will be sent out again by William A. Brady, who purchased the dramatic rights without ever having read Miss Alcott's book.

WITH THE AUTHORS.

"At last a critic has discovered that I am not a Westerner," writes Miss Lockhart to her publishers. "I received a letter from a woman in Norfolk, (forwarded through you) advising me to go West of the Mississippi and not get material from moving picture shows and that she was in Mexico once and they were not at all like the people in 'The Lady Doc' and I should be ashamed of myself to try to write Western novels when I had never been there." This will surprise and amuse Miss Lockhart's friends, as it is well known that she was born in the West and has lived there all her life, coming East only for an occasional visit. That the natives of Wyoming, at least appreciate Miss Lockhart's work is shown by the following paragraph which the local barber inserted in a Cody paper: "If 'The Lady Doc' raised your hair go to Taylor the Barber and get it slicked down."

G. A. Birmingham is the author of half a dozen Irish novels. The Rev. O. Hanny, for that is his real name, started his literary career with a serious book on the State of Ireland called "The Seething Pot." This volume was followed by "Spanish Gold," and his other lighter works, including "The Red Hand of Ulster," which dealt with the probable results of the passing of the Home Rule Bill. Mr. Birmingham's new book is an account of how Dr. Whitty, who did everything "J. J." didn't dare do, stirred up his village.

From farming in Canada, mining in the Rainy River gold fields and running a hotel, to the writing of novels like "Pan's Garden" and "The Human Chord" would seem to be a long jump, and yet such has been the career of Algernon Blackwood, whose latest story "A Prisoner in Fairyland," has just been published. Born in 1869, second son of the late Sir Arthur Blackwood and the Duchess of Manchester, he was educated at Wellington College and the University of Edinburgh. Following the completion of his studies he engaged in such persuits as have been indicated. Ultimately he came to New York city, joining the staff of the New York Sun and later the Times in an editorial capacity. It was probably here that he got his training for the writing to which, since 1906, he has devoted all his time.

A. S. M. Hutchinson, the author of "The Happy Warrior," is resigning his position as editor of the London Daily Graphic to devote his entire time to literary work.

Just recently Mr. and Mrs. Williamson have been upon the chocolate-colored waters of the Nile, wending their way to far Kharoum, and, in view of a hasty visit paid to Berlin before their departure to the East, there can be little doubt as to the scene of their next romance.

In a recent interview Ellen Glasgow was asked: "Suppose, Miss Glasgow, you had to name the prime requisite for the solution of this whole woman question, what would you call it, summed up in a word?"

"I'd need two words," she replied without hesitation—"economic independence." That's the prime requisite. Women will really never get anywhere without that. It's the crux of the whole matter. Given that, the rest follows."

Itwas explained in the interview that the economic independence of woman does not mean an interference with the home. Suffrage, Miss Glasgow explained, was only a step. In regard to this movement she said:

"It's being contemporaneously developed. Suffrage, after all, is just a symbol. An evidence of liberty. Getting the vote is the next step; it's the thing to do today; it's another means of attaining the end, which is full self-development and responsible acceptance of life. But there will be no stopping with suffrage."

Frederick A. Ober, the American authority on bird life and one of the founders of the explorers' club, has recently died in his home at Hackensack. All his life he traveled widely. He used to say that the book which had formed his character and given him his tendencies was Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe." As a boy it was one of his dreams that when he became a man he would rediscover Crusoe's island. This dream was realized in his early twenties. He was marooned on the island and studied the wild life with Defoe's account of what happened to Crusoe as a commentary. His experiences are recorded in a book he wrote for boys entitled, "Crusoe's Island," a companion to "Robinson Crusoe."

Dr. Henry Van Dyke has been appointed by President Wilson to be United States Minister to the Netherlands. Dr. Van Dyke is the author of "The Spirit of America," a volume of lectures which he delivered at the University of Paris.

Lord Avebury, better known perhaps as Sir John Lubbock, died May 28 at the age of 79 years. He was not only an author, but a banker and a scientist. Among his best known books are "Peace and Happiness," "Pleasures of Life," and "The Use of Life."

As the sub-heading for the first of a series of articles in the Bookman, under the title of "Little Pictures of O. Henry," Arthur W. Page uses a quotation from O. Henry's own words. Though O. Henry did not refer to himself, they apparently will apply. The paragraph is as follows:

"The hero of the story will be a man born and 'raised' in a somnolent little Southern town. His education is about a common school, but he learns afterward from reading and from life. I'm going to try to give him a style in narrative and speech—the best I've got in the shop."

Later in his article Mr. Page quotes one of O. Henry's own letters, hitherto unpublished, as follows:

"I was born and raised in 'No'th Ca'lina' and at 18 went to Texas and ran wild on the prairies. Wild, yet but not so wild. Can't get to loving New Yorkers. Live all alone in a great big two rooms on quiet old Irving place, three doors from Wash. Irving's old home. Kind of lonesome. Was thinking lately (since the April moon commenced to shine) how I'd like to be down South, where I could happen over to Miss Ethel's or Miss Sallie's and sit on the porch—not on a chair—on the edge of the porch, and lay my straw hat on the steps and lay my head back against the honeysuckle on the post—and just talk. And Miss Ethel would go in directly (they say presently up here) and bring out the guitar. She would complain that the E string was broken, but no one would believe her; and pretty soon all of us would be singing the 'Swanee River' and 'In the Evening by the Moonlight' and—oh, gol darn it, what's the use of wishing."

The June exodus to foreign parts included the author of "The House of Thane," Elizabeth Dejeans, who has been spending the winter in New York. She is preparing to journey westward for a three months stay in Japan, though October, she says, will bring her back to New York. Mrs. Dejeans is an experienced traveler. Her father, Capt. L. L. Janes, was an army officer, so she began her journeyings early. She had the unique privilege of a girlhood spent in the interior of Japan, entirely among the Japanese, and she still speaks the language with facility. She has also lived in China and India, and knows England almost as well as her own country.

Asked if the background of her next novel would be [illegible] subject matter of an international character, like so many of our American-European novels, Mrs. Dejeans was noncommittal. Her answer was "It would be something of a temptation to a novelist, wouldn't it?"

Mrs. Dejeans has lived for a number of years in California, and knows its oil-camps, its desert town-sites, orange groves, and Pacific Newports.

Edwin C. Martin, the author of the just published book "Our Own Weather," and his wife, Mrs. Martha Evans Martin, whose book "The Ways of the Planets," was published a few months ago, have left town for their country home in New Jersey. Mrs. Martin is interested in flowers and birds as well as in planets and stars, and all about her garden she has placed bird-houses which tempt a number of plumaged visitors of different varieties.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY IN FICTION.

THAT an author writes himself into his work goes without saying; of an authoress this is even more true. Some novels pique one's curiosity to disentangle the invented element from the autobiographic. Particularly is this the case in "The Hippodrome," by Rachel Hayward.

Here is the story as Miss Hayward tells it:

An Irish girl drifts into Spain to become a bareback rider in the hippodrome at Barcelona. Ignorant of Spanish ways, she is befriended by another exile, who is an anarchist. He calls her Fatalite, because of her brooding loveliness, and employs her as the messenger of his dangerous band of plotters. Not until he falls in love with her does he realize how far he has made her the prey of his associates; by that time escape is impossible. Meanwhile, she has become queen of the hippodrome, captivating men's hearts with her fatal beauty. The love story of this strange woman, hedged in by suspicious revolutionaries, reaches the heroic. One is always conscious of the sun-dazzled Catalonian city, with its eager happiness and careless cruelty. Through its streets moves Fatalite, challenging the passion of on-lookers, approaching the sacrifice of her destiny. She is a Carmen of the circus, alarming the imagination and captivating the affections.

One cannot but suspect that many of the scenes and passages in this book are recorded memories. The writing is too visual to be entirely imaginative. Here, as a commentary on her fictionized biography, is Miss Hayward's own story:

Born in London of mixed foreign parentage, she began to write at 16. Originally intended for the opera, she was forced to give up her ambition by ill health. For a time she lived at a country rectory in Sussex, and there she commenced "The Hippodrome;" that was five years ago. There also she met the anarchist, who became the hero of her novel. Her book is full of glaring contrasts—almost theatric in their intensity—but surely no contrast could be greater than this girl of non-English descent, dreaming her dreams in the quiet country rectory with an anarchist for her companion.

The next step in her unusual career was a workman's cottage in a slum of Roubaix, a little town in the north of France, which is famed as a hotbed of anarchy. Here she was sucked into the whirlpool of revolutionary plot and propaganda—through girlish curiosity and without consideration, as was Fatalite, the heroine of "The Hippodrome." Isolated from her English guardians, with revolutionaries as her only companions, she lived the life of these enemies of society and translated their secret papers for them. More fortunate than Fatalite, she contrived to escape their clutches and went to Lyons, where she tried to support herself by giving lessons in English. Then she found it advisable to change her hiding place and served for a season at a tea shop in Nice.

Ultimately, having completed "The Hippodrome" under the influence of these environments, she returned to London to attempt to get it published.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

The detective of fiction is a person with an uncanny instinct for lucky guessing. The detective of real life, while the results he obtains occasion no less surprise, owes his success to a cultivated talent for taking pains. For instance, when McManigal was arrested in connection with the Los Angeles Times outrage, he was so certain of his own cleverness that he believed the police could have nothing against him. He was difficult to persuade until a Burns detective shook his confidence by saying: "Why I even know where you bought the shoes you've got on." McManigal laughed and asked where he had bought them. He received the prompt reply: "At 117 State street, Chicago. They are Walk-over shoes and you bought them on the evening of April 8." To the guilty man such intimate knowledge of his ways of life sounded like clairvoyance. William J. Burns in "The Masked War," gives a complete history of how suen results are obtained.

Willa Sibert Cather's new novel "O Pioneers!" published last month by the Houghton-Mifflin Company, will be published in London by Heinemann & Co.

Having delayed his sailing to receive the degree of Master of Arts conferred upon him by Columbia University, Henry Sydnor Harrison, author of "Queed" and "V. V.'s Eyes," left for Europe on the Adriatic June 19.

The publishers of Jeffery Farnol's new novel, "The Amateur Gentleman," announce the printing of a second edition—160th thousand, within three months after publication. Five years ago the author was endeavoring to obtain a literary foothold in New York, and was compelled to devote his days to painting stage scenery to support his family.

Rowland Thomas, whose short story, "Fagin," won the first prize of $5000 from 30,000 competing manuscripts in the Collier short-story contest in 1905, has written a new book with an oriental setting, which his publishers, Little, Brown & Co., will issue in the autumn.

The following grimly humorous story told by K. Waliszewski in his book "Paul I, Son of Catherine the Great," is one which throws a new light on that unhappy monarch's character:

"The final syllable (kij) of the word paraporchtchikij (cornets) was in a certain report carried over from one page to another. The Emperor took it for a proper name and, moved by a caprice he gave orders that Ensign Kij should be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He saw an expression of embarrassment and disappointment on the faces of the staff, who did not dare to explain his error, so the next day he promoted the lieutenant of the day before to the rank of captain and some days later to that of colonel, demanding that the officer should be presented to him at once. There was consternation everywhere; the offices were turned upside down in the search of the imaginary Kij. A subaltern of the name, or something like it, was found in one of the regiments quartered on the Don" He was sent for, but Paul grew impatient, and in the end he had to be told that Kij had been carried off suddenly by a stroke. 'That is a pity,' observed the Czar; 'he was a good soldier.'"

Owing to the fact that there is no copyright treaty between the United States and Russia, Henryk Sienkiewicz, the Polish novelist, will receive no share in the successful filming of "Quo Vadis."

Winston Churchill, author of "The Inside of the Cup," is at present on his ranch in Santa Barbara. Harlakenden House, his Cornish, N. H. home, is to be occupied this summer by President Wilson and his family.

A feature of the New Standard Dictionary will appeal to all interested in sports, games and physical culture. The terms in each game or sport are edited by representative men. For instance, Walter J. Travis edited the terms in golf; Dr. Emanuel Lasker those in chess; William Muldoon, those in wrestling and physical culture. Wherever a game requires a diagram, as of a court or field to enable the players to ascertain how these should be made or mapped out, illustrative diagrams with dimensions supplement the definitions. Other definitions showing the positions of opponents are also supplied. Thus, the different holds in jiu-jitsu and in wrestling, the different positions in boxing, fencing, swimming, and setting-up are illustrated.

Archibald Colquhoun, author of "China in Transformation," has called attention to the Asiatic immigration question as it affects Canada. In 1906, he says, the large Japanese immigration into British Columbia was the cause of anti-Asiatic riots. A Canadian minister was sent to Tokio and Japan intimated that she would not "insist upon the complete enjoyments of the rights and priveleges" to which her position, by the treaty of 1894, still entitled her. In the new edition of "China in Transformation," brought up to date, Mr. Colquhoun has noted that "any attempt to differentiate between Chinese and Japanese in international intercourse can only be temporarily successful."

According to the last two volumes of John Bigelow's autobiography, "Retrospections of an Active Life," grafting in high places was as common in 1877 as it is supposed to be at the present time. Bigelow's letters and diary reveal some startling State secrets, which have been creating comment since the publication of volumes IV and V of the work, but no statement has created more sensation than the one in which Samuel J. Tilden is quoted as saying that a Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who was a member of the Electoral Commission of 1877, offered to sell the Presidency for $200,000.

One of the points about Bigelow's statements, which lends importance, historically, is the fact that many State secrets are given with names, dates, and other definite particulars.

Mme. Marguerite Steinheil's book, "My Memoirs," contains many interesting sketches of the artists and men of letters who were madame's friends and admirers. Here is one of Zola. Madame writes:

"Zola lacked in conversation what he lacked in his writing, delicacy, refinement, lightness. He was heavy, ponderous and rather aggressive.

I teased him one day: 'How is the chase after human documents going on?' I asked.

" 'Quite well, madame. I hunt my quarry everywhere, and all day long. Human documents, slices of life, searching character studies, that is all there is in literature.'

" 'But what of the writer's personality? Is that of no account whatever?'

" 'It shouldn't be. I try to eliminate my personality from by books. . . .'

" 'And don't you succeed?' I asked.

" 'I have the misfortune of being possessed of a temperament which I cannot altogether get rid of, alas,' came the pompous reply.

"Another time, after rereading 'La Terre,' I told him 'You are a pessimist, M. Zola! You see only one side of life, the ugly and animal side, and but one kind of people, the bad kind. And to cap it all, you exaggerate. You believe yourself a realist, but as a matter of fact, you are an idealist . . . with an ugly ideal!' "

Found the Error.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] Things educational were being discussed, when a public school anecdote was injected into the conversation by Congressman Henry A. Barnhardt of Indiana.

A teacher went to the blackboard one morning and wrote: "The toast was drank in silence."

"Now then, children," said she, "I want you to point out to me the mistake in that sentence."

The youngsters were very thoughtful for a moment and then the face of Johnny Smith beautifully brightened and his hand went up.

"I know where the mistake is, Miss Mary," said he, on being recognized by the teacher.

"All right, Johnny," responded Miss Mary, "you may tell us how the sentence should read."

"It should read," was the proud rejoinder of Johnny. "The toast was ate in silence."

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.
STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 29 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environments, about children, relatives; when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc.; also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED work must not be classed with other readers. Do not waste money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE also gives expert PALM READINGS with each astrological reading.

DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States." Readings given by MAIL also.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND reading has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE solicited.

PERSONAL—
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.
PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill-luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

WANTED—FARM LAND SALESMAN. I AM ABOUT to place upon the market 6500 acres of choice agricultural land in the Valley of Southern California. This land is in the Perris-Hemet-Lakeview Valley, and is as fine a deciduous fruit, alfalfa and general farming proposition as lies outdoors. I am going to offer the first 1500 acres for $200 an acre and in offering this, I am going to select the best land in the entire property. This subdivision will make one of the best and easiest sellers that was ever offered in this country. Land in the Valley of Southern California at $200 an acre with a good water right, will be a thing of the past in two years. Consequently, this land not only offers exceptional opportunity to buy a real farm land value, but it offers the unusual opportunity for making a large profit on your investment. It is going to be an easy seller, but I will only consider men who have had thorough experience in selling farm land and men whose previous experience has proven that they are successful. I am going to pay big commission to the right man, but will not employ anybody who has not made a success of this branch of the work. I could spend the entire next week interviewing applicants for this work, but I do not intend to do so. I can judge from a man's letter whether he is qualified to join me in this big undertaking. I am therefore going to ask you to write me, giving me the names of your three last employers, the length of time that you were with them and the amount of business you did for them, and also your reason for leaving. I am going to pay out $150,000 in commissions in the next two years on this property, and I want to do it with just as few salesmen as I can. I will show you the man who knows his business, where he can make more money in the next year working on this property, than in any farm land subdivision in California; but, as I said before, you must know your business, and if you expect to come and sit behind a roll-top desk and have me introduce prospects to you, you are just the man that I am NOT looking for. If you are the high-grade man that I am looking for, you will understand this advertisement thoroughly and will apply accordingly. Understand, I will not interview any salesman, until I have first received his letter. This property will be ready for the market in about two weeks. Remember, it is one of those cases where you leave Los Angeles, show the property and return the same day, and offer a man a fine piece of land at San Joaquin Valley prices.

631 S. Spring st.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

CHASED A MOTH TO DEATH.

Hotel Aroused by an Excited Foreigner Who Called for Help and Said the Insect Bit His Clothes.

[New York Times:] Just before midnight Tuesday, the clerk at an uptown hotel who answered the office telephone, almost dropped the receiver of the instrument when his ear was saluted by an agonized shriek of "Come! help! quick! much quick!"

Controlling himself with an effort, the clerk, who had a mental picture of the occupant of 493 struggling in the grasp of a murderer, or at least a burglar, demanded what was the matter.

"Help! come quick!" was the reply, and the clerk, with pale face, his first suspicion apparently confirmed, collected a porter and two bellboys, and made for the fourth floor as quickly as the elevator could carry him. At the door of 493 he found an excited group, composed of a floor waiter, two chambermaids and a page who had just been sent up on an errand. From the closed door came the sound of blows, followed by the scurry of feet.

At a knock the sounds inside ceased and the door was flung open, disclosing a foreign gentleman arrayed in one-half of a suit of pajamas and a pair of bedroom his right hand Otherwise there that the room

"Where is it?" the "What is it? you?"

"Yes, that is it," "What you call him? I open my door away he flies out, then I get the towel but he escapes."

It took about half hotel to find the moth yond troubling sisted that it would move out.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The statistics of material progress for the past six months in this city reveal a state of prosperity unprecedented even here, where prosperity is an old story. The cold figures represent facts that are more eloquent than any other possible exposition of the city's advance could be. They prove by actual demonstration that the well-being of Los Angeles is something not to be questioned even by the most skeptical. They presage a still greater prosperity to come when the completion of the Panama Canal and other assured factors for accelerated progress shall have contributed to speed the city onward to its glorious destiny.

In building activity, in bank clearings, in bank deposits, in postoffice, customs and internal revenue receipts and in the statistics that betoken growth in population, Los Angeles has taken great strides in the past half year, beating all previous records for like periods by substantial margins. The monthly average especially looms to advantage in all these phases of progress, showing the utter foolishness of any alarm that may be felt on account of the recent temporary lull in real estate and general activities. This slackness, apparent through contrast with the record-eclipsing activity immediately preceding it, rather than real, has not served to materially lower the wonderful average for the year to date. Furthermore the money-tightness of the past few weeks is already showing signs of lessening. The situation presents not the slightest occasion for uneasiness.

Higher Mathematics.

Statistics are often regarded as dry reading, but there is nothing dull and uninteresting about the progress totals for Los Angeles to one with property interests in this city or vicinity. To such an individual the staggering numbers that betoken this city's hurtling advance are thrilling and highly satisfying. The thoughtful man will find the following array of figures anything but prosaic:

The knowledge that Los Angeles is building new structures of various kinds at the rate of 1460 a month is calculated to excite the calmest citizen when it is considered that no other place in the country, not even New York City, is approaching this record. In all, 8757 permits were issued for new buildings in this city between January 1 and July 1. These improvements represent an aggregate cost of $18,008,790, an amount practically equal to the building outlay during the whole of the boom year, 1906. Even with the slight falling off in permits for the month of June, there have been granted during the first six months of 1913, exactly 1113 more permits than were taken out during the first half of 1912. The gain in valuation is $3,294,516. The calendar year of 1913 will, it is almost certain, boast close to 18,000 permits and $40,000,000 valuation.

All previous fiscal year records were broken during the annual period closing on June 30 by an enormous margin. From June 30, 1912, to June 30, 1913, the Chief Inspector of Buildings issued 17,269 permits for new structures to cost in the aggregate $33,843,823. This was a gain of 2666 permits and of $7,681,937 in valuation over the preceding fiscal year.

Bank Resources.

The banks of Los Angeles had aggregate resources of $219,007,346 on June 30, with deposits of $184,921,547 and loans and investments totalling $161,629,121. Bank clearings for the first half of the year showed an aggregate of $632,518,799. These various totals tell the story of the city's progress almost as convincingly as do the building records. The gain in bank resources over a year ago is $19,041,938; in deposits, $16,238,955 and in loans and investments, $18,840,867. The increase in clearings amounts to $67,710,642.

The postoffice receipts for June were $20,000 in excess of those for June, 1912, and the fiscal year gain was $202,356. The increase for the fiscal year in customs receipts was $26,801 and in internal revenue receipts, $78,887.

The compilers of the city directory recently announced as the result of their annual canvass of the city that the population of Los Angeles had grown to approximately 485,000, or an increase of more than 64,000 over the previous year. During the fiscal year just ended the vital records show that there were 7817 births in the city, a gain of more than 1000 over the preceding fiscal period. There was also a great increase in the number of marriages.

Easy Deduction.

To these statistics might be added others galore. The records of real estate transfers tell eloquently not only of the gain in this form of activity, but of the constant advance in property valuation. The reports of the assessors are convincing evidences of constant progress. Columns could be given over to shipping and industrial reports and to the statistics of business. All bear out the facts already made so apparent.

So much for the "fact" of it. This column wouldn't be living up to its caption if no "comment" were to be introduced. That part of it, however, would seem almost superfluous. It appears to the writer that the simplest kind of reasoning would suggest to the reader of the above statistical information the advisability of buying Los Angeles real estate.

Buy intelligently, buy with your eyes open, buy only after a thorough investigation, but buy! Furthermore, buy now! Get the benefit of the prosperity that is yet to come! Don't waste any time wondering whether values are going to keep on increasing! Buy Los Angeles real estate! That's the only comment that could be deduced from a careful consideration of facts like those presented above.

BIG CONTRACT LET.

Million-dollar Merchants National Bank Building at Sixth and Spring to be Rushed to Completion.

The general contract for the construction of the twelve-story steel frame banking and office building to be built by the Merchants Fireproof Building Company at the northeast corner of Sixth and Spring streets, was awarded during the past week to the C. J. Kubach Company. The foundations for the structure are already in and the steel superstructure has been started. W. C. Curlett & Son are the architects.

The building will be 120x155 feet in size and will contain forty-one offices on each of the eleven upper stories. The entire first floor and basement will be occupied by the Merchants National Bank. The structure will cost in excess of $1,000,000. The first published perspective of the building appeared exclusively in The Times several months ago.

OLD ENGLISH TYPE.

Handsome Brick Residence of Local Physician Nearing Completion in Wilshire District.

The section of the Wilshire district lying between Sixth street and Wilshire boulevard is rapidly being filled up with beautiful homes. One place which will add to the atractiveness of this vicinity is now nearing completion at No. 610 South Serrano street. The house, which is two and one-half stories in height, was designed and is being erected by the Milwaukee Building Company for Dr. Lyman B. Stookey.

The type of architecture is Old English. The house is of solid brick construction, being faced with selected dark blue brick, laid with a deep raked joint. The garage is in keeping and is built to house three machines, as well as to provide sleeping quarters for the help.

An interesting detail of the exterior is the treatment of the bay windows in half timber and cement plaster effect. By this plan the monotony of the plain brick walls is relieved.

The first floor rooms are finished in quarter-sawed oak, those of the second story being in white enamel. On the third floor is located the study and billiard room. The house adjoins immediately a cement plastered residence designed and just completed by the Milwaukee Building Company for William H. Kennedy.

BUYS SHOW PLACE.

Eastern Capitalist Pays Record Figure for Highly Developed Citrus Grove Property in Rialto District.

The largest realty deal made in the Whittier section in years was the sale during the past week of the Rancho Venturilla, the beautiful home of Dr. J. Allen Osmun, president of the Whittier National Bank, to A. Judson Wells, a wealthy resident of Buffalo, N. Y. The consideration involved in the transaction is not announced, but it is understood to represent a record figure per acre in this vicinity.

The property comprises 117 acres, a large part of which is in citrus fruits, and is one of the show places of the Rivera district. Dr. Osmun spent at least ten years in bringing the place to its present high state of improvement.

The three-story brick building at Nos. 631 to 635 South Main street has been leased by Mrs. C. Edgar to Edward Germain for a period of fifteen years. The total rental consideration is given at $300,000. The first store of the building contains three stores, one of which is now occupied by the Edward Germain Wine Company. The upper floors are given over to hotel purposes.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Redondo and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services, if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

Our REFERENCES are PEOPLE for whom we HAVE BUILT, who FREELY indorse us.

We make liberal building loans.

I LOVE YOU
ARLINGTON SQUARE.

Popular Song—Sung With Fervor
By all Fortunate Purchasers.

Where the southwest
Excels in her glory;
Where the lots are
The choicest to view;
It is there I would go—
For the price is so low—
And the terms are so easy too;
Where improvements are up
To the instant;
And you don't have to wait
For a thing;
Where the car lines are four
Almost at your door;
Best in Southern California!

$750 and up—$25 cash.

Get one of these lots before it is too late. Near two grammar schools. Convenient to Manual Arts High School and Exposition Park. Such streets as Arlington with its lovely bungalow homes and Santa Barbara, the wide shaded boulevard, distinguish the neighborhood.

Seeing is believing. Go with me and see; or take "Vermont and Georgia" cars on Third or Hill streets marked "Santa Barbara and Arlington" and ride to end of line; or take "Hawthorne" cars south on Spring street, get off at Second avenue and see Mr. Clay at tract office.

NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS.

"THE IDEAL"

ORANGE AND LEMON LAND SUBDIVISION.

WITHIN SUBURBAN DISTANCE OF LOS ANGELES.

UNPLANTED TRACTS AND YOUNG GROVES

OF 5 TO 50 ACRES.

Mr. Land Buyer: The difference in the price of "proven" citrus lands in a high-class district, and which are in a subdivision, where the improvements are a reality and not a promise, as against "so-called" cheap lands in an inaccessible section where the conditions necessary for success are doubtful, is a small item when you consider the difference in the marketable value of your grove at the producing age and the difference in the quantity and quality of fruit produced and in the net profits therefrom. The difference in production from a grove in a district where the soil, water, climatic and drainage conditions are the best and from a grove in a cheaper district, will pay for the land purchased in the high-class district from one year's crop and your grove could be sold for one-third to one-half more money.

North Whittier Heights is the "cream" of orange and lemon land subdivisions. It has the soil, water and climatic conditions necessary for success and it is located within suburban distance of Los Angeles in one of the celebrated citrus districts of the State. It is both a high-class investment and a most desirable location for a country home.

It will pay you to investigate this proposition at once. Now is the time to secure a choice location. Call at our office for full information or, better still, let us take you out in our auto to see the property. Descriptive folder and map of Southern California free. Easy terms if desired.

The finest equipped dairy and stock ranch in Southern California; 250 acres fine level sandy loam, 20 miles from Los Angeles, 10 miles from Santa Ana, on the Pacific Electric Railway; station on the land; 80 acres in splendid alfalfa, balance in corn, hay and general crop; good pumping plant, sufficient to irrigate the whole tract; improved with house, cottage, bunkhouse, three large barns, and sundry outbuildings; there are 10 head of horses, all necessary tools, etc.; over 200 head high-grade Holstein and Jersey cows; the place is clearing about $1500 per month on the milk alone. This property can be bought for $500 per acre, which, in our judgment, is considerably below market value, compared with surrounding land values. A small amount of cash will handle this deal, and it will pay for itself. The place is being sold to settle an estate, as the widow cannot conduct the business; would accept as part payment $15,000 to $20,000 in city property, and some cash; easy terms on balance. This is a great opportunity for some active dairy man to take hold and make a fortune.

FOR SALE—
ALFALFA, $15 PER TON.
TWO TONS TO THE CUTTING PER ACRE.
SIX TO SEVEN CUTTINGS PER YEAR.

Get your pencil out and see if this is a good deal—for you and your money. I offer for quick sale 80 acres in the Perris Valley, 40 acres in alfalfa, a fine young stand—the present cutting will yield 60 tons, subsequent cuttings should yield two tons to the acre. The water conditions on this place are extraordinary. Two wells, water level, forty-two feet, 25 H. P. G. E. motor-driven plant, pumping, close to a hundred inches, but wells, connected up with a larger pump, will yield 150 inches. The present plant is sufficient for the entire 80 acres; 40 acres unseeded can be leveled and seeded for $15 to $20 per acre, cement pipe line the entire length of the eighty—absolutely no hardpan nor alkali. It will take just $2500 down to move onto this place—then in six months you will have to pay $4000—the balance to suit. The price is very low, less than $250 per acre for the entire eighty. This ranch with the forty seeded will be worth $350 per acre before one year. We sold a forty near it for $350, last week. Good reasons for selling. The whole deal is straight as a string. Come down, wire or write me and I will meet you at the train. J. L. GREENLEAF, Perris, Cal.

One of the best stock ranches in California; well improved; running water all the year round in many places, besides two large streams on the ranch. Has been used as a sheep ranch. FOR SALE—
2000 ACRES AT $32.50.

In Los Angeles county; only 40 miles from Los Angeles and 3 miles from railroad station, directly on new State road, you can buy all or part of an old 2000-acre ranch; mostly choice land at practically your own price; considerable of it is level and sub-irrigated; many hundreds of acres now under cultivation. House, barns, sheds, corrals, implements, machinery, etc. Lots of shade. Abundant water can be had to irrigate this land and there are several shallow wells in which the water now stands a few feet from the surface, so pumping can be done very cheaply,—or can doubtless get artesian wells by going deeper. Hundreds of acres of this land are as good as any in California for growing lemons, figs, olives, apricots and other fruits, and other portions are suitable for growing alfalfa. Don't judge this land by the price—as that's the only thing wrong. Investigate. Belongs to a very old man and must be sold within 30 days—that's why the price is $32.50 per acre; yes, that's it—t-h-i-r-t-y t-w-o f-i-f-t-y—not $325.

GOVERNMENT DAND—

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YUMA?
She's all right.
We got the water,
We got the soil,
We got the fellows
That do the toil.
What's the matter with Yuma?
She's all right.

That is our Fourth of July National song, and it tells the complete story. The Yuma Valley is absolutely the equal if not the superior to the famous Imperial Valley of California. On the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad I can furnish seven 160-acre locations on government land within two miles of the railroad and within one mile of the Gila River, where abundance of water for irrigation can be secured at from 16 to 20 feet lift. There is no other body of government land today for entry anywhere in the United States that is the equal of this land, and I know what I am talking about. "Seeing is believing." Come and talk with me at the Hollenbeck Hotel, Los Angeles, Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of this week. I am the oldest established government land locater today locating Arizona land. FOR EXCHANGE—1000 ACRES OF ALFALFA IN Turlock, right at Turlock, on the State highway and railroad. About one-half of this property is in a high state of cultivation and has extensive improvements. Two of the main ditches of the Turlock irrigation system run through the property. Every portion of the entire tract is under irrigation, and a large portion of it is sub-irrigated. The entire tract is checked and under ditch. The annual income is between $25,000 and $35,000. This property can be subdivided and sold in small parcels at a very handsome profit, in view to its close proximity to the city, railroad, etc. Owing to ill health, the owner is desirous of exchanging this entire property for city income property. This is a legitimate proposition, and only conservative, clean-cut propositions will be entertained. The price, $170,000, is very low for the entire tract. The property is clear. GEORGE W. "AUTOMATIC MERCHANDISING."

Selling merchandise through the medium of automatic machines is not a passing fancy, but a reality, with an earning capacity far beyond the fondest hopes. Dealing in confections in which there is 100 per cent. profit or better, with operating expenses reduced to a minimum is the first inducement we have to offer investors. Secondly: Chewing gum and candy of recognized standard make is always in great demand.

1000 to 1500 of our machines located in this city, selling an average of 4 5-cent packages per day per machine will net you better than 100 per cent. on your investment.

We have at present about 700 completed machines ready to install, with about 1500 more over half completed. Must raise a little more money with which to complete machines, therefore will offer a small allotment of stock at ground floor price in order to get our business on a dividend basis. Our tangible assets will aggregate about $20,000, with only 6 stockholders.

If you will investigate this you will agree with us that this is an exceptional opportunity for the small investor to realize large returns on his money in a short time.

We can use one young man's services with an investment of $1000. This stock has never been advertised before and will probably never appear again. Proper courtesies to brokers.

Local Stock Market Activities

By Jno. O. Knight.

Some improvements in the investment demand for local securities was noted during the week. The bond list particularly made a showing of firmness and transactions in such issues as Los Angeles Railway 5's, Pacific Electric 5's, Home Telephone first 5's, Union Oil and Producers Transportation 5's were on a larger scale than for some time past. Small purchases by the investor of moderate means have been increasing, and there have been more than the usual number of transactions in one, two and three share lots of bank stocks as well as odd lots of other securities.

It is hardly probable the market will show any radical change within the next few weeks, but all indications at present point unquestionably toward improvement. The best grade of stocks are now selling too low, due solely to temporary conditions, and as fast as these conditions are removed prices are bound to find a higher level. Money invested now in good securities is pretty certain to show a handsome profit within the next twelve or even six months.

In the oil list, some impetus was given trading in Associated by a report that the Shell Petroleum interests are negotiating for control of that important company. Sales were made at $39.00, a gain of $3.00 per share over recent quotations. Amalgamated held firm around $85.00, and Union remained about steady at from $75.50 to $76.00. General Petroleum was quoted at from $20.00 to $22.00.

Producers Transportation bonds selling at 88 to 89 yield practically 7 per cent. on the investment.

The assay estimate of the week's production by the Tom Reed Gold Mining Company was reported at $23,500.

Stockholders of the Title Insurance & Trust Company are to vote on a proposition to increase the capital of the company from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

The regular monthly payment of $12,000 by the General Petroleum Company to maintain its option on the Stewart's holdings of Union Oil issues was promptly met on the first inst.

Among the home building stocks probably the most active during the week was "Home Makers" which sold up to 14½. Commonwealth was steady at from 24 to 25, Gibraltar sold at 10½ and Mason Opera House Home Builders was quoted around $2.35. Southern California Home Builders ranged around 20 to 21 and San Diego Construction Company was offered at 95.

Jimmy's Impressions of the Impressionists.

Jimmie, holding down the humble job of delivery boy, and having a liberal street education, considers himself an authority on many subjects, and a connoisseur of no mediocre rank on matters of art, being a regular patron of the Comic Sunday Supplement. Evidently he has been keeping pace with the discussion on the new school of impressionists, and when he had some spare time, he unbosomed himself to Harrigan, the freight elevator operator.

"Say, Harrigan, I don't fall fer this talk about the fuchurists in art wot are callin' deirselves Cubists. I seen some pitchers the other day w'en I had to take some stuff down to the Morrison art store, and, say, yer oughter seen de bunch o' swell guys and deir lady fr'en's dat wuz just throwin' fits and enjoyin' themselves somethin' awful, over a couple o' paintin's on exhibition. Mebby they wuz just puttin' up a bluff on that art stuff, and wasn't enjoyin' theirselves as much as they pretended to be, but them highbrows is game, and always willin' to suffer in a noble cause, as de Fort' of July spielers says."

Harrigan interrupted him at this point and inquired: "Chimmie, how do youse spell thot Cubists wurrd?" "C-u-b-i-s-t-s," promptly and impressively came the letters from the lips of the impromptu lecturer. "W'y, Chimmie, I t'ought that wuz somethin' about the Chicago Cubs, an' I lived twenty years in that little old town, and I sure was some rooter fer thot club on de West Side. D'ye know, Chimmie, I was jist wurrkin' up some enthoosiasm about them Cubists, and I t'ought I might jine 'em, if they was some new bunch of boosters fer de pennant, and de doos wasn't too high."

"Aw, Harrigan, yer pipe's out so long it's cold. Youse's bugs on de Big League and if annything spells within a mile of Pirates er Cubs youse grabs it fer somethin' on baseball: w'y don't yuh change yer drinks once in a while, Harrigan? Now, dis Cubist stuff is a noo kin' of art wot is breakin' out on some people, and I guess it's a mighty lucky thing fer them they's gettin' it out of their system. If it ever strikes in, like the measles does sometimes, the Holy Virgin help 'em." Harrigan furtively crossed himself.

"Well, as I was a-sayin', I don't fall fer these fucherists, an' I hope if that kind of pitchers is goin' to be fashionable, it'll be so far in the fuchure that I'll be in the sweet bye and bye. Say, Harrigan, listen: d'ose pitchers I'm tellin' yez about, down at Morrison's, 's copies of paintin's some artist guys in Noo York put up on exhibition in that town, and believe me, they's somethin' fierce. I dunno how anny artist fellow can paint screams like that and stay on the water-wagon; looks ter me 's if he'd fell off, back in the 80's. One of 'em wuz called, 'Nude Descendin' a Staircase,' an' honest, Harrigan, it looked more like a cross-section of a house that'd been shot up with dynamite, and that feller Anthony Comstock, the gink wot tried, but all in vain, as de poet says, ter keep Noo York modest, would have put his O.K. on that pitcher widout battin' an eye. If yez wants ter stay sober a whole week, Harrigan, jist take a race down ter Morrison's and ask 'em to show yer them art treasures."

Harrigan began to show some interest at this point, and asked the art critic, "Wot was the other pitcher like; yez said they wuz two."

"You'd need only wan for the pious purpose I mentioned, Harrigan, but I'll tell yez about the other'n'. It had a name on it, "The Violin," but part of the title waz missin'—leastways I didn't see it. It should a-said, "Puzzle—Find the Fiddle." Great smokes, man, the feller that sprung that on Noo York must ha' been a sign painter who'd been out the night before to a stag at Schwartzenmeister's, and they must a-had some sure rough-house rag-time music that stuck in the solid masonry above his neck. That violin couldn't never lull no cryin' child to sleep, never in a thousand years, Harrigan, take 't from me."

"Do youse think the disease is spreadin', Chimmie?"

"Search me," said non-committal James.

The Value of the Banks.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In this age of young business men but few realize the weighty tasks assigned the national banks, when spoken into existence by the immortal Abraham Lincoln and his wise advisers, fifty years ago.

No less a mission than saving, or restoring the union by furnishing the sinews of war, by buying the government's bonds and thus creating a demand for them abroad, was the primal and most patriotic service enjoined upon them and most gloriously did they execute the trust.

Those were dark days back in 1863. All gold coin had been hid away, the banks of the country were issuing notes under the different States, different laws, much of this currency not worth the paper it was printed upon; the government issuing bonds bearing 7 3-10 per cent., but unable to find purchasers for them, England sympathizing with the South, how was the government, now apparently in its death throe, to establish its credit, at home and abroad, to enable it to raise money to provide for the expenses of nearly 500,000 men in the field and accompanying vast war expenses.

Millions of dollars were subscribed by the banks for these bonds, and immediately London, Paris, Berlin and other foreign cities wanted them, the government took advantage of the situation and redeemed the 7 3-10 per cent. bonds with 6 per cents., then redeemed the 6 per cents. with 5 per cents, then the 5 per cents. with 4 1-2 per cents, the 4 1-2 per cents. with 3 per cents, and finally the 3 per cents with 2 per cents., which are at par, while English 3 per cents are sold at a discount. It is plain to any student of economy that the national banks were a powerful factor in saving the Union, and are the sole cause of our high credit today, and were the national banks destroyed our government bonds would fall way below par at once.

The second great mission of the national banks was to furnish the country with a uniform stable currency superior to the notes of the government itself, for while the latter is only a promise to pay, the national banks put up a $100 bond to secure $90 of their notes. Nothing could be more secure, no man has ever lost one dollar on national bank notes though through panic or stress of circumstances the bank may have failed.

The third great mission of the national banks was to give the country a wise, conservative, well-regulated banking system in place of the wildcat system that preceded it.

The national banks have been eminently successful in all three of these missions, and are today doing better service than ever before in a business way, while their profits on circulation which originally was large, is now practically eliminated, because of the low rate of interest on government bonds.

The national bank act was the wisest business legislation ever enacted by Congress and it should not be greatly changed. An amendment permitting the banks to deposit 50 per cent. in government bonds to secure circulation, and 50 per cent. in State, county, school and municipal bonds, would give sufficient profit in circulation to cause the greater portion of the banks to take out currency to the full amount of their capital, which would increase our national bank circulation from $750,000,000 to $1,050,000,000. This increase of $200,000,000 of the best currency on earth would greatly stimulate business, would add to the profits of the bank and the amendment would do for our State, county, school and municipal bonds what the national bank act did for our government bonds fifty years ago.

"Hold fast to that which is good."

A. L. Dennis, being duly sworn, declares that he is and has been for twelve years Superintendent of Circulation of the Los Angeles Times; that the above detailed statement of circulation for the month of June, 1913, is correct, and shows the circulation of The Times for each day of the month named.

A. L. DENNIS,
Superintendent of Circulation, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of June, 1913.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,
Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issues. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper in Southern California.

How Our Sea Commerce Grows.

FROM MILLIONS TO TENS OF MILLIONS.

Events Shaping Rapidly to Bring to Speedy Realization Predictions of Mighty World Port for Los Angeles—Government Order for Surveys to Be Followed by Visit of Department Heads from Washington.

IMPORTANT EVENTS that substantially justify the belief that Los Angeles harbor will soon become one of the world's most important ports of call have followed one upon the other rapidly during the past few days. At no time has the prediction of seaport greatness been so material, definite and near at hand as now when the great steamship companies of the world are crystallizing their plans to bring a big volume of business here from all quarters of the globe and preparations to take care of the business when it comes are being effectively and rapidly made.

Before the great Panama waterway has been opened the traffic has increased many fold. The time is near at hand when the seaport business of this city will be increasing from millions to tens of millions and the port of Los Angeles will be talked of in every part of the world where men go in ships.

Day before yesterday the Mormon Island wharf, 1600 feet long, in the inner harbor was completed and the Board of Harbor Commissioners was asked to accept it. The work of building freight sheds and laying railroad tracks on this wharf will be undertaken at once. The Mormon Island wharf is the first Los Angeles municipal wharf to be completed and marks an important stage in the development of the harbor.

Although it had before turned down the request of this city, the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors at Washington has just announced that the request for surveys of the harbor channel will be granted. The board will at once order a survey of the channel in the outer harbor at a depth of thirty-five feet, the channel connecting the inner and outer harbors to a depth of thirty-five feet and a width of 750 feet, and for the enlargement of the channel between the Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors. The ordering of the survey practically commits the government to undertake the necessary dredging work at a cost of something less than $500,000. Because of the contour of the channel and natural conditions, it is believed that the channel width will be made 1000 feet instead of 750 feet.

Recent developments indicate that this port will be selected as the location for a United States government oil station, which will result in bringing here a great and valuable oil traffic. The big pipe line companies have established storage plants within convenient distance, three of the largest oil companies in the world having recently decided to increase their reservoirs. Here vessels can be loaded quickly and conveniently while lying in thirty-seven feet of water. Not another port in the world has equal facilities for fuel loading.

Secretary of War Garrison and Gen. Wood, chief of staff, are coming to California soon, and will inspect the harbor and its possibilities. Secretary of the Navy Daniels will be here the latter part of this month, and intends to spend considerable time inspecting the harbor. The attention of all these officials will be called to the need of more adequate space for forts. This question was brought up recently by the board of engineers at Washington, and it is possible that an adequate programme of fortification will be undertaken and carried through within the next few years.

The field work of the government survey is practically all done now, and the completion of the survey can be accomplished at very little cost. The survey will determine the probable cost of the dredging work and the question of making the necessary appropriation will then be put before Congress. The money can hardly be available before July of next year.

WIDE, STRAIGHT CHANNEL.

Although the government order specifies 750 feet as the width of the channel, the local Harbor Commissioners believe 1000 feet will ultimately be adopted because of the advisability of securing a straight channel and the existing curve opposite Fifth street.

When the channel work is finished the Salt Lake Railroad will abandon its present frontage and move back. This will not reduce the area of its holdings. The city may have to move to wharves, and will do the bulkheading southeast of Terminal Island. An effort will be made to make the same arrangement with the Salt Lake as was made with the Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric, and make a common terminal on both sides of the channel, so all cars of every road can enter either terminal.

When the municipal pier in the outer harbor is completed the city will have 2600 feet of wharfage immediately available, and can add another 2600 feet at short notice. The Mormon Island wharf is 1600 feet long and the Water-street wharf is 650 feet long. The latter will be completed in about thirty days.

In addition to the $750,000 voted at the recent bond election, the Harbor Commission has $92,000 remaining from former appropriations. Just how this money will be used has not been definitely settled. The programme will depend largely on future

WHARF AT WILMINGTON.

One step that will almost certainly be taken will be to build a wharf on the east side of the Wilmington slip. This will be 1200 feet long and will cost about $80,000. A freight shed on this wharf will cost about $60,000 more. It is possible that a bonded warehouse will be built by the city on this wharf. The Harbor Commission considers the plan favorably, because it is apparent that such a warehouse would be a source of considerable profit.

Tracks must be laid along the rear of the Mormon Island and Water-street wharves, and this work will probably be undertaken soon. Another probable undertaking will be the bulkheading of the east side of the west basin. There is a water depth there now of twenty feet, and the channel is 200 feet wide. If this improvement is made it will make available for the city a strip of land 500 feet wide and 2400 feet wide located to make it the finest kind of industrial property. This part of the harbor work depends partly upon the result of litigation now pending, and in which the city appears to have a good chance of success.

The pile driving for the big municipal concrete pier in the outer harbor will be completed by the first of next year, and the entire wharf, including the freight sheds, but not the warehouses, will be ready for use by March 1 next. The big pier is a scene of great activity now. The piles are being driven into solid soil to a depth of twenty-two feet, and the molds are being made for the concrete superstructure. The concrete will be placed on the clustered piles in such a manner that the entire floor and cross beams will be one solid concrete structure without a joint. The wharf when completed will be practically one great piece molded together.

WHEN CANAL IS OPENED.

Some idea of the outlook for business at the port can be gained by the apparently conflicting opinions of the men who will help to bring the business here and those who must take care of it when it comes. Representatives of big steamship companies who have been working for two years to prepare for the changed conditions when the canal is completed, and who are in a position to know what kind of business is scheduled for the port of Los Angeles, say the increase will be tremendous, and they fear the facilities will be inadequate to cope with the magnitude of the new commerce.

Harbor Commissioner Woodman says he realizes that the opening of the canal and the natural growth of Los Angeles as a trade center will increase the harbor traffic hundreds of per cent., but he emphatically asserts that Los Angeles will be ready for every ton of freight and every passenger that can be brought here.

As soon as the Mormon Island and Water-street wharves show any sign of congestion another wharf can be built along the Wilmington slip in three months to take care of extra traffic in the inner harbor. If the 2600 feet of water frontage on the municipal concrete wharf in the outer harbor becomes inadequate another 2600 feet can be added. The filling is all done, and the addition could be made if the emergency demands in nine months or less.

Los Angeles harbor now has about four miles of wharf frontage. A mile and a half more can be quickly added. Five and a half miles of wharf frontage will place this harbor at the head of all ports on the Pacific Coast.

The Harbor Commissioners believe that government appropriations, within reason, can be secured for whatever work is needed in developing the harbor. The willingness of the taxpayers of this city to spend their own money in developing the harbor, they believe, will be one of the strongest arguments that can be used with the Washington officials. Los Angeles has voted $5,500,000 in bonds, an amount nearly equal in size to the total government expenditures. There is hardly a municipality in the country which has appropriated anywhere near as much for its own development as the government has spent.

HOW SEA COMMERCE GROWS.

The growth of business at the port in the past ten years has been so great, and the prospects for future increase so definite that the government can hardly fail to recognize the necessity for additional work here.

Of all the immigration to the entire Pacific Coast region in the last decade nearly 20 per cent. came to Los Angeles county. Statistics show also that 37 per cent. of the growth of California in the same period was in the vicinity of Los Angeles harbor. The city of Los Angeles is the largest city of the Pacific Coast of the two Americas.

In the ten years ending June 30, 1913, the commerce of Los Angeles harbor, exclusive of oil and lumber, increased 2281 per cent. The great growth of the city thus far has been largely without taking advantage of water commerce and its port facilities. The traffic has been, and still is, chiefly by rail, but the city's business interests are now turning to the sea as a means of commerce.

Lumber traffic has increased threefold in ten years. Traffic in oil through the harbor has grown from practically nothing ten years ago to more than 1,000,000 barrels in 1912, and a prospect that this will be doubled in 1914. The tonnage of general merchandise has shown a tremendous gain in spite of the fact that a considerable portion of this traffic has been coming through the port of San Diego.

The natural advantages for establishing industries of various kinds are soon to be taken advantage of. Leading business men believe that the industrial development of the territory immediately tributary to Los Angeles harbor is in its infancy and within a few years that factor alone will largely increase the demands for port facilities.

The influences of the Panama Canal on the harbor shipping can hardly be overestimated. Los Angeles is the first large city on the Pacific Coast that vessels will reach after coming through the canal. Every ship bound to and from San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, British Columbia or Alaska must pass its door. The Great Circle route between Panama and the Orient line lies just a few miles outside the port.

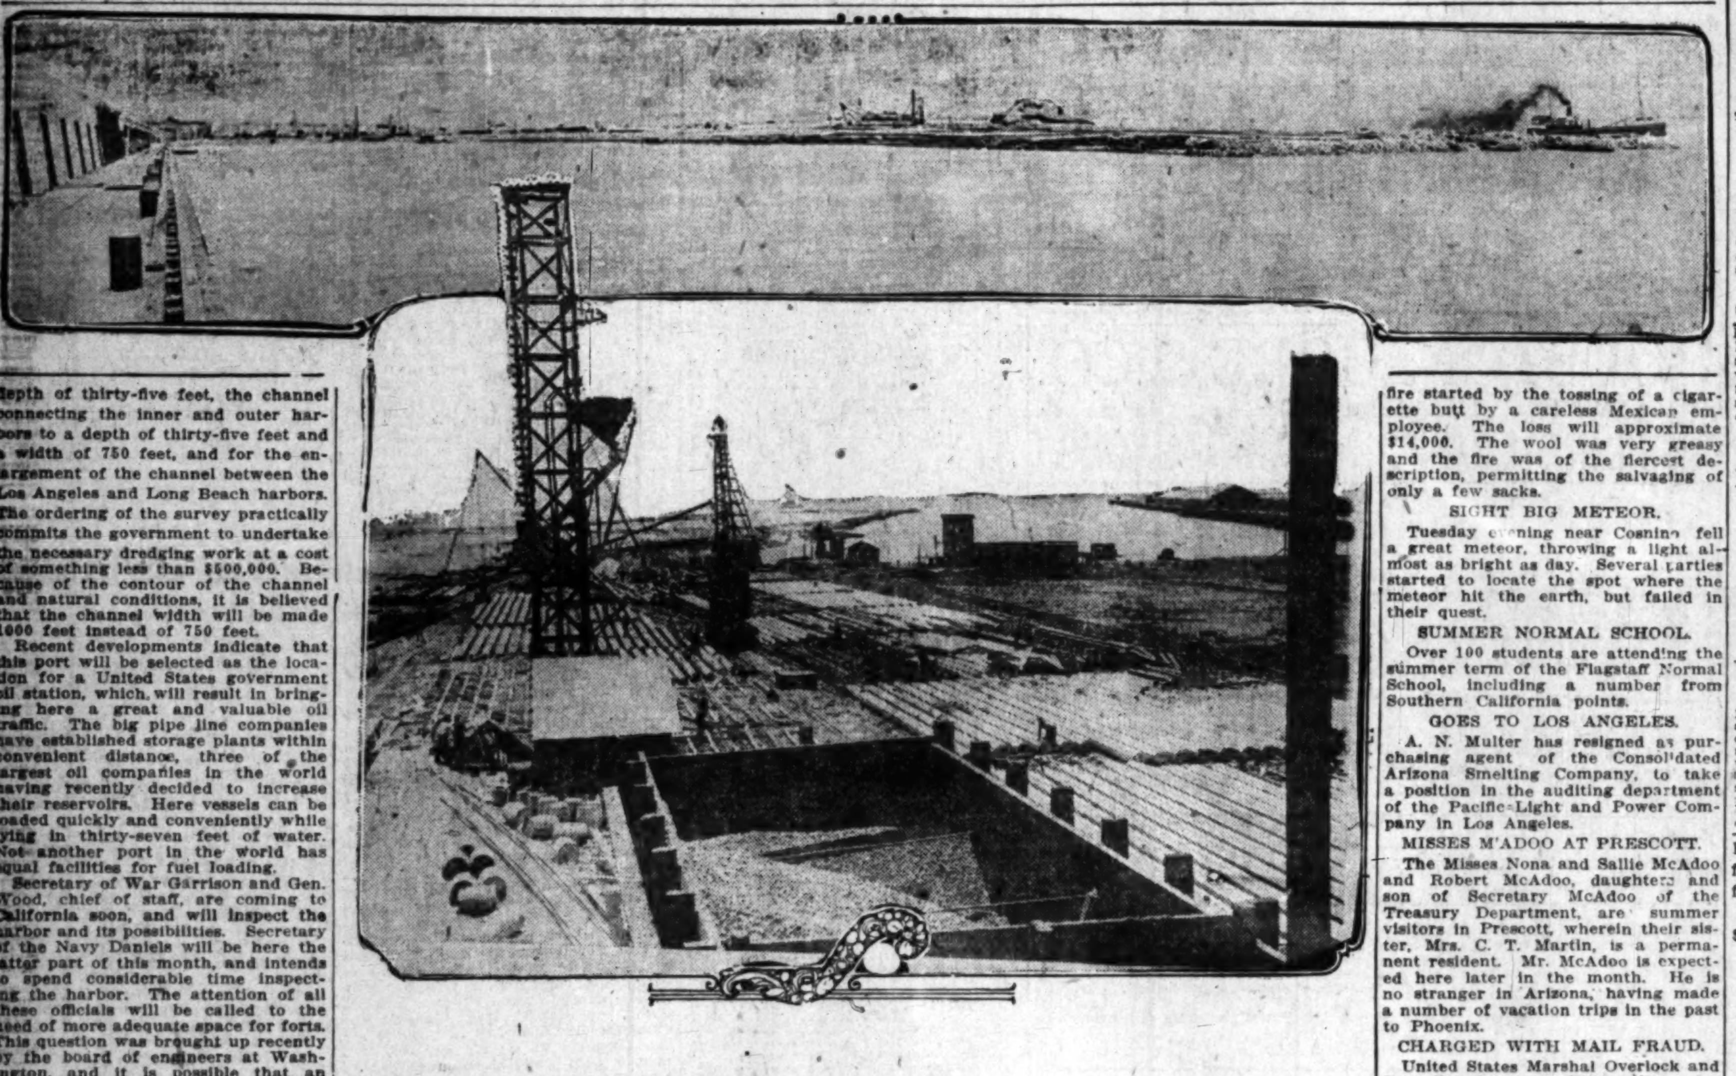
NATURAL ADVANTAGES.

No harbor in the world can be entered more easily. There is no bar at its entrance. A vessel can dock under its own steam in half an hour from the time it leaves the open sea. This port is nearer the greater part of the Middle West and inter-mountain region than any other Pacific port. Travel and commerce coming through the canal can save the 413-mile run to San Francisco by stopping here. Approximately eighteen hours in time can be saved between the canal and Chicago.

Emory R. Johnson, special commissioner appointed by the War Department to investigate canal traffic prospects, says that the net tonnage of vessels that might have advantageously used the canal in 1909-10 was 8,328,029. Of this tonnage 4,058,384 would have come to or passed Los Angeles, and it is probable that nearly every vessel would have made this a port of call.

Johnson says the probable growth of tonnage will be 26 per cent. by 1915. This indicates that a total of more than 5,000,000 net tonnage will make Los Angeles a port of call in 1915, even without taking into consideration the transcontinental traffic now moving by rail, which will be diverted to water and the stimulus to traffic which the opening of the canal will bring.

Figures recently compiled by the Harbor Commission show that 965 ships with a net tonnage of 356,371 entered the harbor in 1902. In 1912 there were 2955 ships, with a tonnage of 2,453,300. Merchandise has increased from 14,167 tons to 337,939 tons, and oil has gained from 6600 barrels to 1,170,593 barrels.



Where great ships will dock next year.

The upper picture shows the municipal concrete pier, looking toward San Pedro. This wharf will be 2600 feet long. The filling and pile driving will be completed in about six months and the concrete superstructure and freight sheds will be finished by next March. At the left is shown the new pier of the Outer Harbor, Dock and Wharf Company, where one warehouse has been built and another is in process of construction. Below is another view of the municipal pier looking seaward and shows how the concrete piles are made.

PHOENIX RUNS A "MOTORCADE."

Almost Two Hundred Cars Make Trip to Prescott.

Frontier Day Fiesta Draws Thousands of Visitors.

Cowboy Meets Wild Man North of Williams.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) July 4.—In the way of celebration, today is the greatest ever known to Prescott, marking the beginning of the Frontier Day festivities, with thousands of visitors here from all parts of Northern and Central Arizona. The town is jammed as never before and it is difficult to provide places wherein the visitors may lay their heads. The programme of entertainment provided is novel mainly to visitors from outside the State, but has been carefully worked out by capable committees, with assurance of the fullest degree of success. As the title indicates, prominence has been given all cowboy sports, causing an emptying of the ranges of cattlemen for the week.

The most notable feature of the celebration, however, is the manner in which the automobile has been made to aid. Possibly in mere courtesy, an invitation was sent to Phoenix for the participation of its citizens in the celebration. The invitation was particularly accepted by the management of the Arizona Republican, who proceeded to boost for what they called a "motorcade" to the neighboring city. Possibly a score of cars were expected on the run. Up to this hour from Phoenix into Prescott have been checked 185 automobiles, carrying about 800 passengers, including a full brass band. From all Arizona points it has been estimated that Prescott has added at least 600 motor cars today. The Phoenix excursion is locally believed the greatest ever known in the Union in point of number of cars participating. The journey was one of 130 miles, half of it through the mountains and the rest on the plains. Few hard luck stories have drifted in and nearly every participant tells of a pleasant trip, with good roads and little dust. Many of the southern visitors go on tomorrow, headed for the Grand Canyon by way of Williams, the latter point having provided elaborate entertainment. In the local programme the most exciting feature was to be the forty-three-mile automobile race around the Loop, a speedway in which there is strong civic pride and which has been made as smooth as is possible on a thoroughfare where about all the conditions of road work are to be found.

The Phoenix visitors are led by the directors of their Board of Trade, whose last adjournment was to a meeting in Prescott. Here they are the guests of the directors of the Prescott Chamber of Commerce.

WILD MAN REAPPEARS.

In November, 1910, Richard C. McKee, a Chicago railroad man, leaped from a train near Ash Fork and disappeared in the woods. A fortnight later he was seen by cowboys twenty-five miles north of Williams. Tracked by dogs, his hat and coat were found, but there was no trace of the man who, undoubtedly insane, was assumed to have perished in the snow and bitter cold of the mountains. Another search was made by a party headed by his brother, John McKee of Oakland, Cal., but it was finally decided that the man was dead and that his body had been devoured by the wolves and coyotes. So application had been made for the payment of a $1500 insurance policy upon his life.

But it now appears that McKee has survived the rigors of three winters and still is alive, roaming the forests a genuine "wild man." About ten days ago he, or someone very like him, was seen twelve miles southwest of Williams, on the cattle range of Charles Polson. While riding through a cedar forest a cowboy named Reynolds came unexpectedly upon a man, practically naked, drinking at a brook. The stranger's hair and beard, wild and unkempt, reached below his waist. The man arose and looked quietly at Reynolds till the latter spoke, asking if he were not hungry. Then, with a beast-like cry, the man fled swiftly into the woods, where he could not be followed. The story is fully believed in Williams, though there is wonder how any unclad human being could withstand the bitter winter cold of that region.

BRIDE DRAWS LINE.

Though married only a week, Mrs. Arthur Young of Williams has announced her intention of getting a divorce and has engaged legal counsel. Mrs. Young till lately was Miss Margaret Benninghoff of Detroit. She wrote to the Sheriff of Coconino county, as other foolish girls have done, asking him to pick her out a handsome husband. He had her note printed in a Flagstaff paper and many were the replies. She picked Young and marriage followed, solemnized at a ranch near Williams. But, according to the unhappy bride, "My romance ended when Arthur refused to take a bath. He refused even to wash his hands. I can put up with the ugliest man on earth, if he is a man, but there are some things a woman cannot tolerate."

STEAL TRAINLOAD OF STEERS.

A whole trainload of cattle lately was stolen from a number of stockmen, loaded at Seligman and shipped eastward. The cattle had been bought by an individual who paid in checks upon an Oklahoma bank. The checks were dishonored and several of the fleeced owners now are chasing the shipment in the hope of regaining possession. Something similar, a month ago, was the diversion from La Junta to Denver of a carload of steers billed by George A. Carter to himself at Garden City, Kan. The steers were sold in Denver to a Wyoming buyer and the seller is said to be in custody. Carter has been repaid by the railroad company.

WOOL CLIP DESTROYED.

The year's wool clip of the Howard Sheep Company, stored in sheds near clipping pens at Ash Fork, was almost totally destroyed Wednesday by fire started by the tossing of a cigarette butt by a careless Mexican employee. The loss will approximate $14,000. The wool was very greasy and the fire was of the fiercest description, permitting the salvaging of only a few sacks.

SIGHT BIG METEOR.

Tuesday evening near Cosnino fell a great meteor, throwing a light almost as bright as day. Several parties started to locate the spot where the meteor hit the earth, but failed in their quest.

SUMMER NORMAL SCHOOL.

Over 100 students are attending the summer term of the Flagstaff Normal School, including a number from Southern California points.

GOES TO LOS ANGELES.

A. N. Multer has resigned as purchasing agent of the Consolidated Arizona Smelting Company, to take a position in the auditing department of the Pacific Light and Power Company in Los Angeles.

MISSES M'ADOO AT PRESCOTT.

The Misses Nona and Sallie McAdoo and Robert McAdoo, daughters and son of Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department, are summer visitors in Prescott, wherein their sister, Mrs. C. T. Martin, is a permanent resident. Mr. McAdoo is expected here later in the month. He is no stranger in Arizona, having made a number of vacation trips in the past to Phoenix.

CHARGED WITH MAIL FRAUD.

United States Marshal Overlock and Postoffice Inspector Dutton leave tomorrow for Boston, having in charge Frederick Small, a Mayer mining man, charged with fraudulent use of the mails.

DRAWN INTO THE COGS.

Mark Ferguson, head pumper at the city water works at Del Rio, Monday, lost his right hand and arm, drawn into the cogs of a pump he had been oiling.

MAN DIES OF GLANDERS.

George D. Phillips, a local mining man, died last week near Pittsburg, Kan., of glanders, communicated by a diseased horse for which he had been caring.

KILLED BY FALL.

He said narrowness of the lot had never him for a moment and that expected to get from the site the possible revenue per square something possible only through erection of a limit-height build-

The lobby will be on the second floor and will be finished in mahogany. The ground story will contain a nineteen-foot storeroom in addition to the regular hotel entrance. The building will be served by two elevators.

Light for the rooms will be secured from two courts opening from the west. The plans call for both basement and sub-basement. The appointments throughout will be of the most modern character.

Blenkiron holds the site under a fifty-year lease concluded several months ago through the agency of Leon R. Conklin. The lot is owned by Dr. J. E. Minney.

It is Blenkiron's intention to build at once, if a suitable tenant can be found for the property. Otherwise he will not start the building until after January 1, 1914, at which time the leases now covering the present improvements will expire. The hostelry he plans will be for men and will be the first bachelor hotel of any considerable size in Los Angeles.

FOR COMPANY OFFICERS.

Group of Attractive Two-story Houses Being Completed at Torrance for Heads of Departments.

President J. S. Torrance of the Dominguez Land Company is completing a group of two-story houses for the new industrial city of Torrance, which will cost in the aggregate approximately, $50,000. The heads of departments and other officers of the companies, occupying or to occupy the ground near the factories, will take over these residences. The site selected is west of the tract on which 200 houses for the employees have just been erected.

The houses are for men connected with the Union Tool Company, Pacific Metals Products Company, Hendrie Rubber Company, and a number of others. The cost of each house is given at approximately $5000. Some are now nearing completion, and all will be completed and ready for occupancy within a month, it is stated.

The First National Bank of Torrance, occupying a new building of artistic design, opened July 1. The Pacific Electric has made a new schedule for the residents at Torrance, giving them an evening as well as a day service.

AT THE CITY'S EDGE.

Glendale Scene of Great Activity in Building—Store Contracts Are Awarded.

GLENDALE, July 5.—Glendale is experiencing remarkable summer activity in building. While in other years the warmer months meant a falling off in the number and value of building permits, this year the permits seem to be steadily on the increase. During the month of June forty-five permits were issued with a valuation of $50,000. In June of last year thirty-five permits, with a valuation of $37,000, were granted.

The following are among the week's permits: Glendale Building Company, Kenwood, near Doran, residence, $3000; Mrs. Annie E. Williams, Maryland and Doran, bungalow, $3000; J. Lowe, Patterson, near Central, dwelling, $3000; L. G. Dodge, dwelling, First street and Central avenue, $3500; E. Sturger, residence, No. 1423 Broadway, $2500; W. S. Althouse, bungalow, No. 347 North Isabelle, $2750; F. W. Pitzer, dwelling, Louise and First, $2500; L. N. Rudy, apartments, No. 1413 Lomita avenue, $2500; L. W. Armstrong, dwelling, No. 1462 Salem street, $2000; Dr. I. W. Farrow, residence, Patterson, near Remington, $2000; H. L. Moll, dwelling, No. 1423 Salem street, $2000; J. N. Myers, residence, No. 1419 Salem street, $2000, and John Goetz, home, Ninth street and Brand, $1700.

C. W. Kent & Son will begin in a few days the erection of a two-story store and office block on Brand boulevard between Fourth and Fifth streets. The cost of the structure will be about $25,000. The contract for the erection of a brick store building of two stories at Isabelle and Broadway for the Bank of Glendale has been awarded to A. C. Anderson, the contract price being $12,000.

The Trustees of the city are about to enter into a contract with the Southern California Gas Company whereby the residents of Glendale will be given a material reduction in the price of gas. The present price is $1 per thousand cubic feet, while the new rate will be 70 cents per thousand feet. In return for this reduction the Trustees will give the company a franchise to run about forty years. The company agrees to give the people of Glendale any reduction that may be made to the people of Los Angeles during that period.

An evidence of how Glendale is growing is presented by Harry B. Lynch, manager of this city's municipal lighting plant. He declares that for the past year electric light meters have been installed in Glendale homes at a rate of fifty each month, and that there promises to be no reduction in the number during the coming year.

By a vote of sixty-two to sixteen, the residents of Casa Verdugo and North Glendale have voiced their desire that those places be formed into a street lighting district.

PLAN LARGE GARDEN.

A flower garden 1800 feet long and sixteen feet wide is being planted at West Adams Park, the Robert Marsh & Co. subdivision on West Adams street. H. Gordon Badger, manager of the subdivision department, has just let contracts for several thousand plants, trees and shrubs which are to be planted in the parking, along the entire West Adams street frontage of the tract. This is a part of the general beautification scheme for the property. Four homes in West Adams Park have just been sold, according to Badger. The buyers are P. C. Braddock, C. R. Renard, Mrs. Mabel T. Williams and J. F. Munro, and the aggregate price paid is given at $15,720.

REPORTS RECENT SALES.

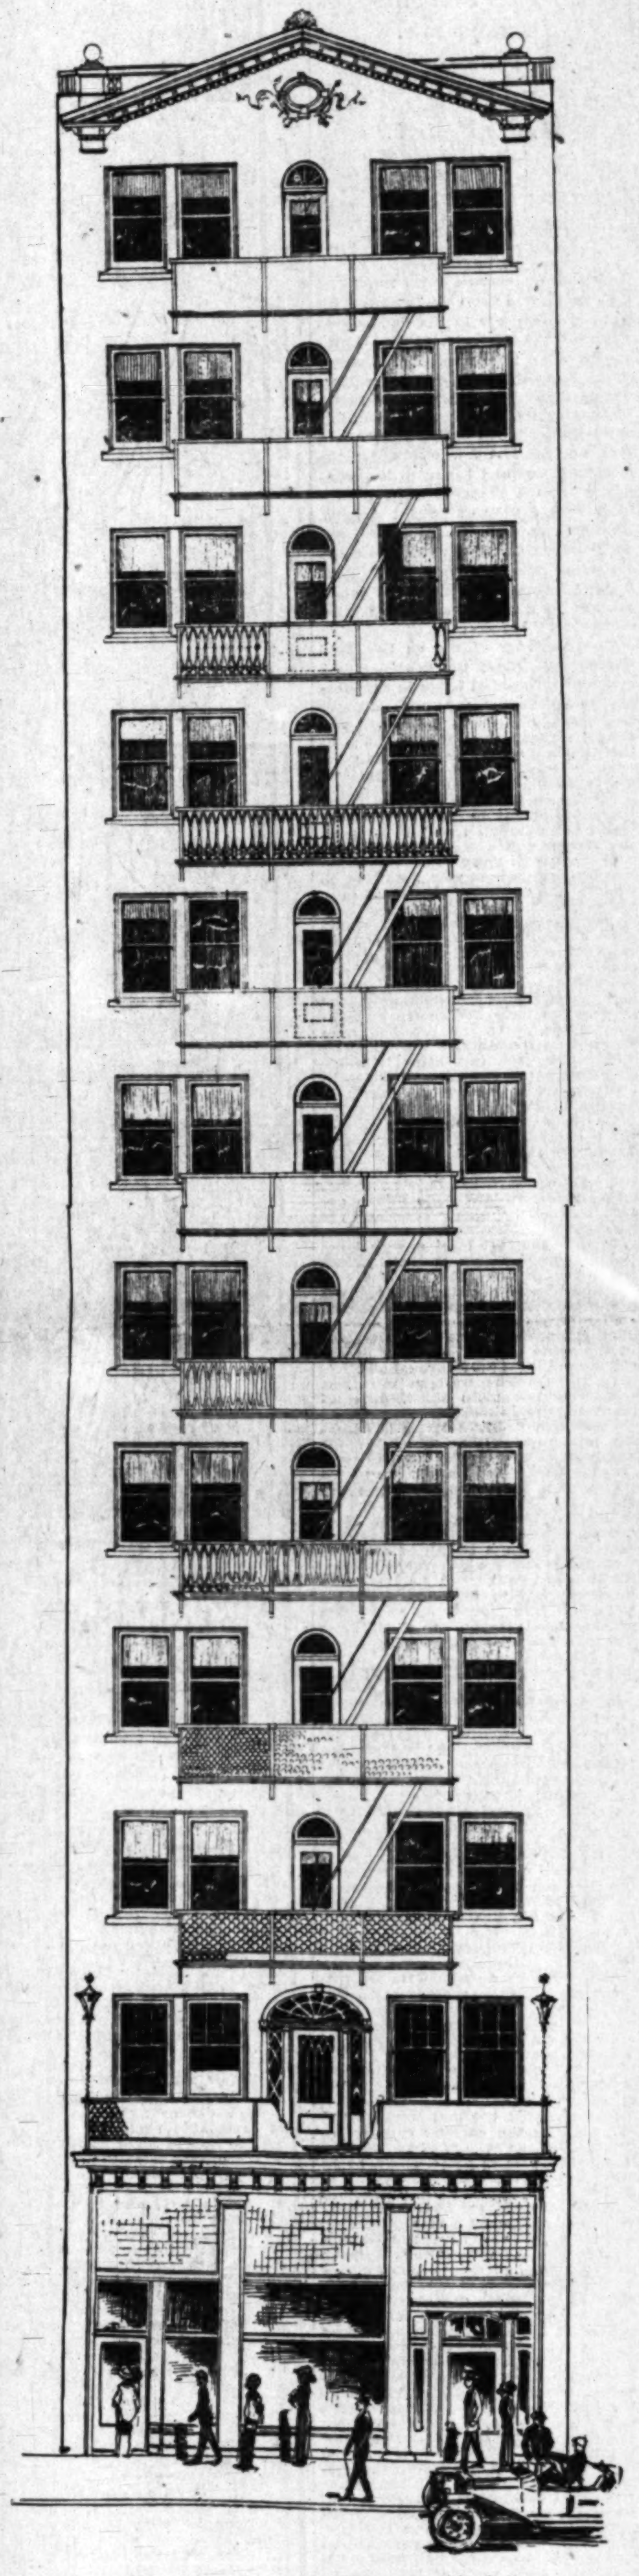
A. C. Devendorf, with the R. C. Mitchell Company, reports the following recent sales: A. G. Oliver, to Charles W. Preston, and Carrie C. Preston, seven-room bungalow at No. 2816 Fourth avenue, $3650; estate of Ella A. Fish, to Wilbur W. Campbell, lot at the northeast corner of St. Andrews place and Second street, 60x132 feet, $2300 cash; (Campbell will improve the property for a home;) Charles H. Mann, to A. S. W. Hodges, eight-room residence, No. 109 South Kingsley drive, lot 50x150 feet, $6500.

LET HIGHWAY CONTRACT.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 5.—The most important development of the week in this vicinity was the letting by the Orange county Supervisors of a contract for the construction of a boulevard from Santa Ana to Huntington Beach. Ten miles of macadamized pavement will be laid. The city of Huntington Beach has started the improvement of Seventeenth street, Delaware avenue and Main street, three thoroughfares that will connect with the new boulevard. The Huntington Beach Board of Trade has announced that it will ask the Pacific Electric Railway Company to cooperate in the parking of the water front and of the railway right of way from First to Thirteenth streets.

VACATES PARK STRIP.

Through an arrangement just completed, the county has vacated a strip of land on Washington boulevard at the entrance to Kensington Green, to the Los Angeles-to-Venice company, owners of that property. This piece of land is to be improved as a park. Plants, shrubs, flowers and trees are to be planted, and a rustic restroom built. Work on two homes, the first of a series to be built by the Western Building and Architectural Company, are to be started in Kensington Green during the coming week, according to Stanley R. Pratt of the Pratt Sales Service, agents for the tract.



Rival for famous "Chimney Block."

TALL BLOCK FOR SPRING.

Sketches have been made by the architectural department of the Los Angeles Investment Company for a twelve-story reinforced concrete office building which is projected by the Spring Street Investment Company for Nos. 630-634 South Spring street. The enterprise is in charge of Myron W. Tilden, president of the latter company. The lot is 60x128 feet in size and is held under a long-term lease. The Gibraltar Investment and Home Building Company has secured a lease on the ground floor of the proposed building, the rest of which will be utilized for office rooms.

WATER CONTRACT LET.

Contracts for the installation of water system at National Boulevard Heights, the Robert Marsh & Co. development in the eastern portion of Santa Monica, were let during the week. Approximately $15,000 is given as the amount of the initial outlay for the property, which is divided into half-acre lots. Twenty-five thousand feet of pipe will be laid. The main supply pipe will be laid along Fremont avenue and eight laterals will be extended from this into the streets of the tract. The Erwin Heights Water Company will supply the water.

Central California.

FAMOUS GROVE IN NEW HANDS.

LOS ANGELES WOMAN SELLS VALUABLE HOLDING.

Record Price Paid by Indiana Banker for Old Orange Orchard. Southern Capitalist Increases Extensive Property Interests in Tulare County.

PORTERVILLE, July 5.—Deals of more than the usual size and one transaction which is a record-breaker for Central California marked the dealing for this district during the past week. Realty dealers generally are optimistic over the outlook and predict that the summer will be one of activity.

What is believed to be the largest orange orchard transaction in the history of Central California was completed in the transfer to William Ford, his brother, Henry Ford, and his son, George Ford, all of Indiana, of the property known as the Henderson Orchards in the Worth district. Owned by Mrs. A. L. Benson, formerly of Los Angeles, the holding was sold for $230,000, of which practically the entire purchase price was paid in cash. The holding includes forty-five acres of navel oranges in full bearing; forty-five acres of late Valencias, considered the finest of the Portervile section; 100 acres of unplanted land; one of the finest country homes in this district and all stock, implements and other appurtenances. The new owners, who are members of a prominent banking family of Indiana, expect to spend upwards of $30,000 in improvements this year.

Louis Larson, formerly of Southern California, became the owner of the first orange orchard planted in the Lindsay district when he purchased the twenty-one-acre grove of Capt.

JOINS OLD FIRM.

On July 1, after seven active years as a department manager for Strong & Dickinson, one of the oldest real estate companies in Los Angeles, Warren F. McGrath became a member of that firm, the corporate name of which has been changed to Strong, Dickinson & McGrath. From now on a great deal of the responsibilities of the company will fall upon his shoulders as Frank Strong is much occupied with personal affairs that were somewhat neglected during his long period of illness, and George W. Dickinson left Thursday for a two months' motor trip through the East. The firm of Strong & Dickinson was formed as a real estate partnership twelve years ago.

Hutchinson of Berkeley this week. The consideration is not given out, although the purchase price was said to have been approximately $1500 per acre.

Peter Haack, a Los Angeles capitalist who has acquired upwards of 7000 acres of lands in Tulare county in the past two years, added to his already extensive holdings this week by the purchase from J. R. Hitchcock of Tulare of 440 acres of land in the Lemon Cove foothills. A portion of the land is situated in the river bottom and is adapted to alfalfa and general farm purposes, while over half the property is considered good olive or orange land. Haack has stated that he expects to develop the property immediately. The consideration is said to have been $150 per acre.

William Robertson and A. W. Higgins, business men of Tulare, have purchased the J. P. Dougherty ranch on Lindsay road, comprising 240 acres of alfalfa and fruit land. The new owners paid a given price of $30,000 for the property, which is largely unimproved.

FAVOR INCORPORATION.

El Segundo Business Men Want New Standard Oil Town to Be Made Real City.

EL SEGUNDO, July 5.—El Segundo business men have again taken up the question of incorporating El Segundo as a city, and this time with every promise of success. A similar move instituted by the El Segundo Chamber of Commerce a few months ago, subsequently was abandoned, but petitions asking that the town be incorporated and thus be made an "industrial city" in fact as well as in name, are now being circulated and are being signed by practically every resident approached. The canvass for names will be continued vigorously until every property owner here shall have had an opportunity to sign, after which the movement will be carried forward through the usual channels. Proponents of incorporation assert that it will mean a lower tax rate, better streets and better school facilities.

Rapid progress is being made upon the erection of a new lubricating plant for the Standard Oil Company. The plant is now more than half completed and soon will be in operation. It is going up on what was known as the El Porto tract, a piece of land recently purchased by the company and adjoining the 840 acres of its original holdings on the south. The fact that the Standard considered it advisable to purchase additional property for the lubricating plant site is taken to mean that plans for the utilization of all the land within the big fence already have been made.

Work was begun this week on the construction of the supply station which is going up upon another piece of land acquired a few weeks ago from the El Segundo Land and Improvement Company. From this station Standard products are to be distributed in Los Angeles by motor trucks and to more remote points by rail.

NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS.

Sales at North Whittier Heights are reported by Edwin F. Hart, general sales agent for that property, as follows: T. G. Challoner of Orange, six acres, $4200; Charles S. MacMillan of Alhambra, five acres, $3500; Martin Van Buren Erb, recently of Fargo, N. D., nine acres, $6300; Henry Jacob Buhrman of Whittier, four acres, $2800; Jennie E. Stokes of Whittier, five acres, $4000; and Glen Marvin Finch, six acres, $4800. These purchasers are reported to be making arrangements for the early planting of their property. E. W Lawrence, a recent buyer of North Whittier Heights acreage, is now building a fine home on his tract. Pollard Bros. of South Pasadena have just completed the setting out of twenty acres to oranges and nursery stock.

NEW VERMONT SQUARE.

The Southwest Land Company reports houses started in New Vermont Square during the past week by the following persons: J. F. Minter, north side Forty-third place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy; Miss Winnie J. Sloan, north side Vernon, between Gramercy and Arlington; Mrs. L. Porter, north side Forty-third place, between Gramercy and Arlington; Claus Offt, south side Santa Barbara, between Gramercy and Arlington; F. N. Halgren, north side Forty-third place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy, and W. J. Sloan, north side Vernon, between Gramercy and Arlington.

PLENTY OF AIR.

The Commonwealth Home Builders are completing a one-story bungalow for Mrs. Elizabeth Elliott at the corner of Temple and Coronado streets. The house contains a main living-room 18x26 feet in size, with three direct outside exposures, and containing a massive fireplace. A feature of the place is the unusual provision for light and ventilation by casement windows and French doors.

The Yucaipa Valley
Offers All the Delights of Country Life

Now the country generally is sweltering, and people are fleeing to the mountains. The bench land of the Yucaipa Valley, on account of the high elevation, is a fine spot as a summer resort. Besides, it is being developed into an ideal all-the-year-around home place. In Yucaipa you may enjoy all the delights of country life. The air is clear, cool, dry and invigorating; the nearness of the high San Bernardino Mountains presents the grandest scenery in Southern California, and shuts out all disagreeable winds; the roads are good and are being improved and extended; there is an ample water supply, consisting of the melting snows from the high mountains, it is delivered in steel pipes under pressure; only two to four miles to station on the main line S. P. Ry., and six to seven miles to Santa Fe Ry. station.

"Red Apple" Land

Big, Red, Juicy, Fine Flavored, Winter Apples have been grown in the Yucaipa Valley for over twenty years. See the samples in our show window. Mining in the Great Southwest.

California Mines.

HIRE DIVER TO UN-WATER MINE.

Novel Method Is Adopted at Reiner Property.

Report Easterners After "Lode" Holdings.

Guggenheims' Advent Promises Big Things.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

ANGELS CAMP (Cal.) July 3.—A new method of clearing out a shaft full of water, and retimbering the damaged portion to a depth exceeding 100 feet below actual water level, wa sin troduced in this district a few days ago by the Reiner Gravel Mining Company. Last December a disastrous fire consumed the mill and other equipment of this company, and left two large skips blocking the shaft. The disablement of the pumps permitted the water to rise and when new machinery had been provided and the pumps were placed in action, it was found that the skips had become wedged in the shaft in such a position that it was impossible to unwater the lower workings. Several attempts were made to remove the obstructions without success.

Then Manager John C. Benson determined on a novel and strikingly original method to clear out the workings. G. O. Abrahamsen, a noted deep-sea diver, was enaged, and accompanied by Benson, went into the shaft in his diving suit. An examination of the blockade was made and its removal was deemed feasible. Under more than 100 feet of water, part of the time, the two men not only disentangled the skips and facilitated their hoisting to the surface, but also retimbered the portions of the shaft that had been damaged by the grinding action of water and iron.

This is said to be the first time in the history of metal mining that divers have been employed to work in flooded mines, and the exploit has attracted intense interest throughout the Mother Lode districts. It is expected that other managers will utilize the idea in future undertakings, and the method is freighted with many interesting possibilities. The unwatering of the shaft is completed and extraction of gravel has commenced. The new mill is expected to go into commission within a few weeks.

Considerable Los Angeles capital is interested in the Reiner Company, which controls some of the richest gravel claims in Calaveras county. Large sums have been spent in development work and equipment, and the company was on the eve of heavy production when fire destroyed the plant and forced suspension of activities. The gravel is of the cemented variety, requiring reduction in gravel mills to free the gold content. It is stated that operating costs can be kept down, judging by preliminary trials with the old plant.

It is reported that a strong company of eastern people have opened negotiations for the purchase of the Wildman-Mahoney group of mines in Sutter Creek district from the Lincoln Consolidated Company. The latter gained control of the mines over a year ago, but apparently lacked the ample finances required to place the properties in shape for heavy production. The Wildman-Mahoney group is situated in the heart of one of the most prolific gold sections of the Mother Lode. The deposits have always been noted for their massive character, the Wildman vein showing a width of 160 feet, when last worked

The ore is low grade, but its free-milling nature, and its extent permits very low mining and milling ores, thus facilitating profitable handling. Twenty years ago the mines were prolific producers, but little work has been done of late. It is believed that by employing modern mining and treatment methods that enormous quantities of ore formerly considered too low-grade to mine can now be dealt with on a profitable basis.

It is rumored that the new concern also considers acquiring the Lincoln Consolidated estate, if the Wildman-Mahoney ground proves as attractive as anticipated.

It develops that the recent acquisitions of thousands of acres of placer lands in Placer and Trinity counties by the Guggenheim engineers was in the interest of the Yukon Gold Company, the great Guggenheim corporation operating nine dredges and several hydraulic mining plants in Yukon Territory. The company is one of the most powerful mining organizations in the world, and has already paid out dividends of $4,705,610 on the original capitalization of $17,500,000. The last dividend, amounting to $262,500, was paid March 31. The company owns an immense acreage of proven gold-bearing ground in the Dawson field and has also become recently interested in Alaska.

The advent of this powerful concern into California placer fields is naturally claiming great attention. Seven miles of placer claims along the American river, near Auburn, were recently purchased outright, or taken under short options, while the proven rich holdings of the Placer and El Dorado Gold Mining Company have also been taken under bond and option. This group includes the noted Poverty Bar and Yankee Bar placers, both of which have yielded splendidly and where huge deposits of auriferous gravel are blocked out. The amount represented in the purchase and bonding of the Placer county properties approximates $1,500,000.

For several months representatives of the Yukon Gold Company have been actively prospecting large areas of gravel land along Trinity river, including the demonstrated claims of the Alta Bert Dredging Company. It is said by insiders that results have been highly satisfactory and that the deal for four miles of gravel beds between Carrville and Trinity Center will probably be closed early in July. Large dredges of the most powerful type will be installed on all properties acquired by the Yukon Gold interests, and it is understood that representatives of the big concern also have properties in other portions of the State under consideration.

The Osgood, Nigger Boy and other properties situated a few miles from Yreka, have been taken over by a company of Oregon and Ohio mining men, and the new owners are arranging for the inception of activities on a broad scale. The Osgood group is a large low-grade proposition, and with work conducted along broad lines, is confidently expected to develop into a big property.

The Nigger Boy has yielded considerable high-grade ore in the past, and the new management proposes to prosecute work for the opening of the deposits at depth. The other two properties are situated near Yreka, and are noted for the rich ore that has been extracted in recent years. An endeavor will be made to open more uniform deposits below the old levels. Frank Rose, of Talent, Ore., is manager.

Coal deposits controlled by the Yreka Development Company have been acquired by eastern people. It is stated in Yreka that the new concern has exceptional financial strength and that the deposits will be developed along progressive lines. The former operators opened several distinct seams of coal suitable for domestic consumption, and the dimensions of the deposits are said to have shown improvement with increasing depth. This is the only coal deposit in Northern California that has been considered sufficiently promising to warrant extensive development.

During May the mill of the Argonaut Mining Company near Jackson, is said to have yielded in excess of $50,000 in gold. The plant contains forty stamps and the yield is considered particularly good. The Argonaut is the deepest incline mine on the Lode, and has a depth exceeding 3900 feet. For years it has earned splendid profits, and an excellent vein, carrying superior values was encountered some months ago in the deepest working level of the property. R. S. Rainsford is manager.

Owners of the Hope mine, near Sonora, have commenced the driving of a long tunnel to tap the ore reserves, and the property in future will be worked through this avenue. Hitherto all work has been carried on through a shaft, and the new arrangements will enable the management to handle the quartz at a greatly lessened cost. The Hope recently passed into the hands of new and energetic interests.

CONSOLIDATED SUBMITS REPORT.

SHOWS NET OVER TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND FOR MAY.

Final Statement Approximates Preliminary Estimates—Nevada Hills May Report Shows Reduction of Indebtedness—News Notes of Mining Camp.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) July 4.—The final report of operations of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company for the month of May has been prepared by General Manager Albert Burch and submitted to President Wingfield and other directors. The production as shown by the report is approximately as indicated by preliminary estimates issued early in June. The mines of the company yielded during the month 31,047 tons of ore, of which a portion was shipped to the smelters for treatment. The greater part, however, was treated in the company's 100-stamp mill at this camp.

Net profits for the month were $219,445.03. Under the present system of compiling the monthly reports the Consolidated Mines Company is credited with its direct production, consisting chiefly of what is shipped to the smelters, and the Consolidated Milling and Transportation Company receives credit for the bullion it puts out. The latter company is a separate corporation, but its entire capital stock is owned by the Consolidated Mines Company.

The final report of the Nevada Hills Mining Company for May, just issued, shows that the company is now in a prosperous condition and that its operations are conducted upon a profitable basis, indicating that it will not be long until it is enabled to enter the list of dividend-paying concerns. Further payments have been made on the company's indebtedness, which was entailed in order to equip the property with a mill and complete mining plant. The company now owes only $30,000 of the original half-million dollars.

Since the new water system was installed the tonnage treated in the mill has been largely increased. The plant handles about 140 tons a day. In May 4260 tons were treated, but the average value of the product was lower than the preceding month and net profits were $18,057.44. There is every indication that the company's earnings will be materially increased in the near future and at the present time the results are said to be highly satisfactory.

After an interruption resulting from the electric transformers being struck by lightning and put out of commission, the Bonnie Clare mill is again dropping ten stamps on ore from the Poleverde mine of the Jumbo Extension. By the first of next week the remaining ten stamps will be grinding ore from the Florence Goldfield. Improvements have been made in the mill that will result in effecting an improved recovery of the metallic content of the ore. The Jumbo Extension will in future treat an average of about fifty tons daily, while the department that has been taken over by the Florence will dispose of forty-five tons a day.

Suit was filed today by the law firm of Thompson, Morehouse & Thompson in the District Court to recover the sum of $22,600 from the Frances Mohawk Mining and Leasing Company for attorney fees. The complaint contains three counts, one for $10,100, another for $5000 and still another for $7500. The litigation harks back to boom days.

Atty.-Gen. Thatcher, in a report filed with the Governor the other day, finds that the receivership of the defunct State Bank and Trust Company of malodorous fame is in such condition that he recommends a special session of the Legislature to hear charges against Judge Frank P. Langan of the Circuit Court to secure his removal from office. Frank P. Wildes, receiver of the State Bank and Trust Company, is bitterly arraigned. He has been receiving compensation at the rate of $10,000 a year for the past five years and the depositors have received practically nothing. It is the State's one big scandal.

The celebration of the Fourth was a grand success in this old camp. The citizens raised over $5000 by popular subscription to offer in the way of prizes, and the festivities, covering two days, and running the entire gamut from a prizefight to a grand ball, were "some punkins."

Tonopah.

FIND MERGER ATTRACTIVE.

Traders Take Fresh Stock on Developments.

Ore in Sand Grass Proves Week's Feature.

Extension Property Makes Better Showing.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) July 3.—With reports of pay ore in the Sand Grass claim of the Tonopah Mining Company and an improvement in the ore at the bottom of the shaft in the Merger, traders had a chance to advance their interests by taking on fresh lots of the latter stock which has been a poor bet the last few weeks, for the local plungers had begun to lose confidence in the property making good after over a year of patient waiting. Neither company would affirm nor deny the statement nor satisfy inquirers as to the exact nature of their find, so it is believed that it does not amount to much as a world-beating disclosure.

The discovery of ore on the Sand Grass would imply the existence of a real and substantial ledge in the Merger, as development of the Sand Grass has been directly due to the opening of ore in that mine. In fact the relation of the two properties is so close that it was deemed advisable last fall to issue a statement that in event of ore being found in the Sand Grass there would not be any litigation to claim extra lateral rights by apexing the Merger.

When it was known that the Tonopah Mining Company had decided to explore this territory, which had been abandoned as worthless, it was concluded that the underground showings of the Merger were sufficient to justify the risk of expending considerable money on the Sand Grass. Since then the latter has been undergoing systematic development but the reports have not shown any encouragement. If the ore has been found in pay quantities the company will declare the fact after it is established but not before, as the Philadelphia crowd is never premature in publishing optimistic news.

The Extension on the same side of camp is credited with a better showing of ore than for some time. This accounts for the activity of stock on the eve of a three days' holiday, when investors and speculators are generally chary about entering the market.

On the 500-foot level a very large body of ore carrying excellent values has been exposed. Through the vein there are several streaks of high-grade sulphide ore and the hanging wall of stope five-seventeen gives indications of being one of the biggest in the mine while the ore is of excellent milling grade throughout.

In the extreme western workings, from the new main shaft, development of the lower contact vein on the 600 and 660-foot levels is exposing low-grade milling ore. A stope has been started on the 660-foot level on four feet of good grade ore which promises to widen as the stope advances.

The North Star shoot on the Macdonald vein on the 1050-foot level has been proved for a length of over 100 feet, its average width varying from six to eight feet, with values ranging from $75 to $100 a ton. This work has now proved on two levels of only one vein an ore-shoot from 100 to 125 feet long, from six to eight feet wide and 117 feet deep on its dip, averaging from $50 to $75 a ton. Its extent above the 950-foot level is still undetermined. Drifting is still in progress the ore maintaining these values.

The vein is strong and well-defined in trachyte walls and, like all other veins in Tonopah, varies in width, occasionally showing lower grade values. The general average is, however, very high and there is no doubt that this is one of the best ore shoots opened in the district.

Preparations for immediate shipment of ore from the Halifax mine are now nearing completion. A temporary ore bin has been built at the mine with a capacity of fifty tons pending the construction of larger ore bins on the gallows frame from which the ore will be dumped directly into the cars. For the present a Pierce-Arrow truck will be used to haul the rock in five-ton lots to the West End mill. The final disposition of the ore, however, remains to be settled.

The capacity of the West End mill is increased for the purpose of handling an additional quantity of ore. It is believed that the management will not sacrifice the earning capacity of the mill for the sake of reducing Halifax ore, which is more likely to be sent down to the old Belmont mill at Millers for treatment. By this means an outlet for another 500 tons weekly would be furnished and the general welfare of the camp would be better served than by attempting to make one small mill serve two large mines.

The main ore-shoot has been proved for a length of eighty-five feet, from five to six feet wide, and averages from $22 to $28 a ton, with good streaks of high grade through it at intervals. All the ore so far exposed is heavily oxidized, the silver occurring in the chloride form, known as horn silver. From the fact that large quantities of quartz which have not been affected by the oxidization show original silver sulphides it is believed that with a little deepening the sulphide-ore zone will be encountered.

On the 1400-foot level work is concentrated on the east cross-cut from the shaft which is now out 105 feet. This is to cut the downward extension of the ore-body. It is possible that this cross-cut will have to be extended a distance of 450 feet, but at a point 250 feet east of the shaft it is proposed to put up a vertical raise to tap the vein on its downward course. On the 1700-foot level a sump has been sunk thirty feet, and the cutting of the station has been commenced.

The north drift on the 1060-foot level of the Mizpah Extension, broke into 2 1-2 feet of ore averaging $240 a ton, Tuesday. This was the downward extension of the ore that was opened on the 1000-foot level, the end of last December. It was sunk on for a short distance and then dipped off at a very flat angle. A new east drift was started from the main winze over 300 feet east to pick the downward extension.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Iron and Aluminum.

GLOBE (Ariz.) June 14.—Q.: Sample from near propery of Inspiration Consolidated Company, and it is supposed that some rare mineral or metal is present.

"OLD TIMES PATRON."

A.: If there is any rare mineral or metal present in the sample it does not answer "Here" when subjected to thorough tests. This specimen is on the order of the last one tested for you.

Aluminum silicate; hematite, including micaceous-iron ore, responds plentifully when called upon, as it were. Magnetite is in the mass approximately 5 per cent. Titanium traces.

Fontainebleau Limestone.

MOKELUMNE HILL, June 16.—Q.: I respectfully ask: What have we here in sample enclosed?

"SMITHUS."

A.: We have here the Latin name for Smith, and the sample is named at the subheading. This variety of limestone is rare, and is with many people a most confusing substance. "It occurs in aggregations of secondary rhombohedrons of calcite, which contain a large amount of sand, mechanically mixed with them. The similar calcite, which occurs in great quantities in the sands on the African coast between Sandanha Bay and Ichaboe Island, contain as much as 15 or 20 per cent. of sand."

In the calcite-containing sand which occurs at Devil's Hill, S. D., the so-called "sand crystals" contain 64 per cent. of quartz grains and pebbles, and this mineral "is analogous to the Fontainebleau crystals, but of totally different type."

Thorium Absent.

MOKELUMNE HILL, June 15.—Q.: Three samples sent by the undersigned.

J. H. J.

A.: Yes, and the kind of samples said to carry thorium. (?) Sample No. 1 is chalcedony chiefly, with other quartz carrying iron and manganese in low percentages. No. 2 is calcareous and silicious, with dendritic manganeses present, which has been confused with thorium. Ankerite present in the mass. No. 3 is very low-grade talc.

Iron Oxide.

RIVERSIDE, June 18.—Q.: Do you consider the enclosed a good pigment oxide of brown hematite—raw sienna? What is its wholesale value per ton, Los Angeles? I take The Times.

R. J. B.

A.: Sample represents a good pigment, but it is not the pure iron oxide known in the paint industry as "sienna." It is a fine "mineral paint," however. Price of material represented by the sample varies very much indeed. Your ability to furnish one grade of paint of the exact shade always will govern prices somewhat. Whether the material was subjected to artificial toast, or is in its raw state does not appear.

Soil.

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—Q.: I have a sample of soil with mineral salts. I desire to know the different soluble minerals in same. K. A. P.

A.: Excluding the insolubles in water there is but little to note. Sodium chloride and magnesium chloride traces only. Potash a trace.

Two factors stand out strongly in connection with this new, high-class subdivision in the center of the built-up part of fashionable Wilshire. One is "price," and the other, "improvement." They should be considered seriously by investors.

Price Comparisons

Pellissier Square east front lots, between Wilshire and Seventh, are $95 per front foot. Lots similarly situated in near-by tracts are commanding prices of $125 per foot. Wilshire Boulevard corners in Pellissier Square are $140 per front foot. Similar Wilshire frontage in neighboring offerings is priced $175 per front foot.

Improvements

Extra wide streets—best cement work—6-foot sidewalks—complete sewer and storm drain system. All sewer, gas and water connections inside of curb. No future tearing up of streets and parkways.

Artistic and ornamental electroliers throughout the Square. Conduits for electric light and telephone. No unsightly poles. Rare shrubbery for ornamentation of parkways. Protective restrictions that guarantee highest type of residential construction. Regulations assure the exclusiveness and refinement appreciated by discriminating buyers.

Santa Monica's Estate Homes Rivaled by None for Charm

Brentwood Park Seems the Mecca for the Palatial Estate Home—Four Superb New Ones to Be Added in the Immediate Future.

thought a few years ago, the great cities of the world to rival each other in the of homes of aristocracy they gathering within their borders, was only a question of time before the old country estate home with all of its charm would be relegated to the things of the past.

The prophets who foretold this condition, however, are beginning now to realize that the country estate home is the very theme of the hour with the aristocracy of the world, and that if any type of residence is to become a thing of the past, it will be the city home of aristocracy.

Kings of finance who spend the greater portion of their working hours within the confines of their office walls, are realizing this more and more and are seeking in their homes broad expanses of gardens and endless vistas of Nature's handiwork surrounding them, for the resting and recreation hours.

As true as Napoleon's statement that "Great minds never lie in gross bodies," great brains are never developed on the whetstones of cramped home conditions.

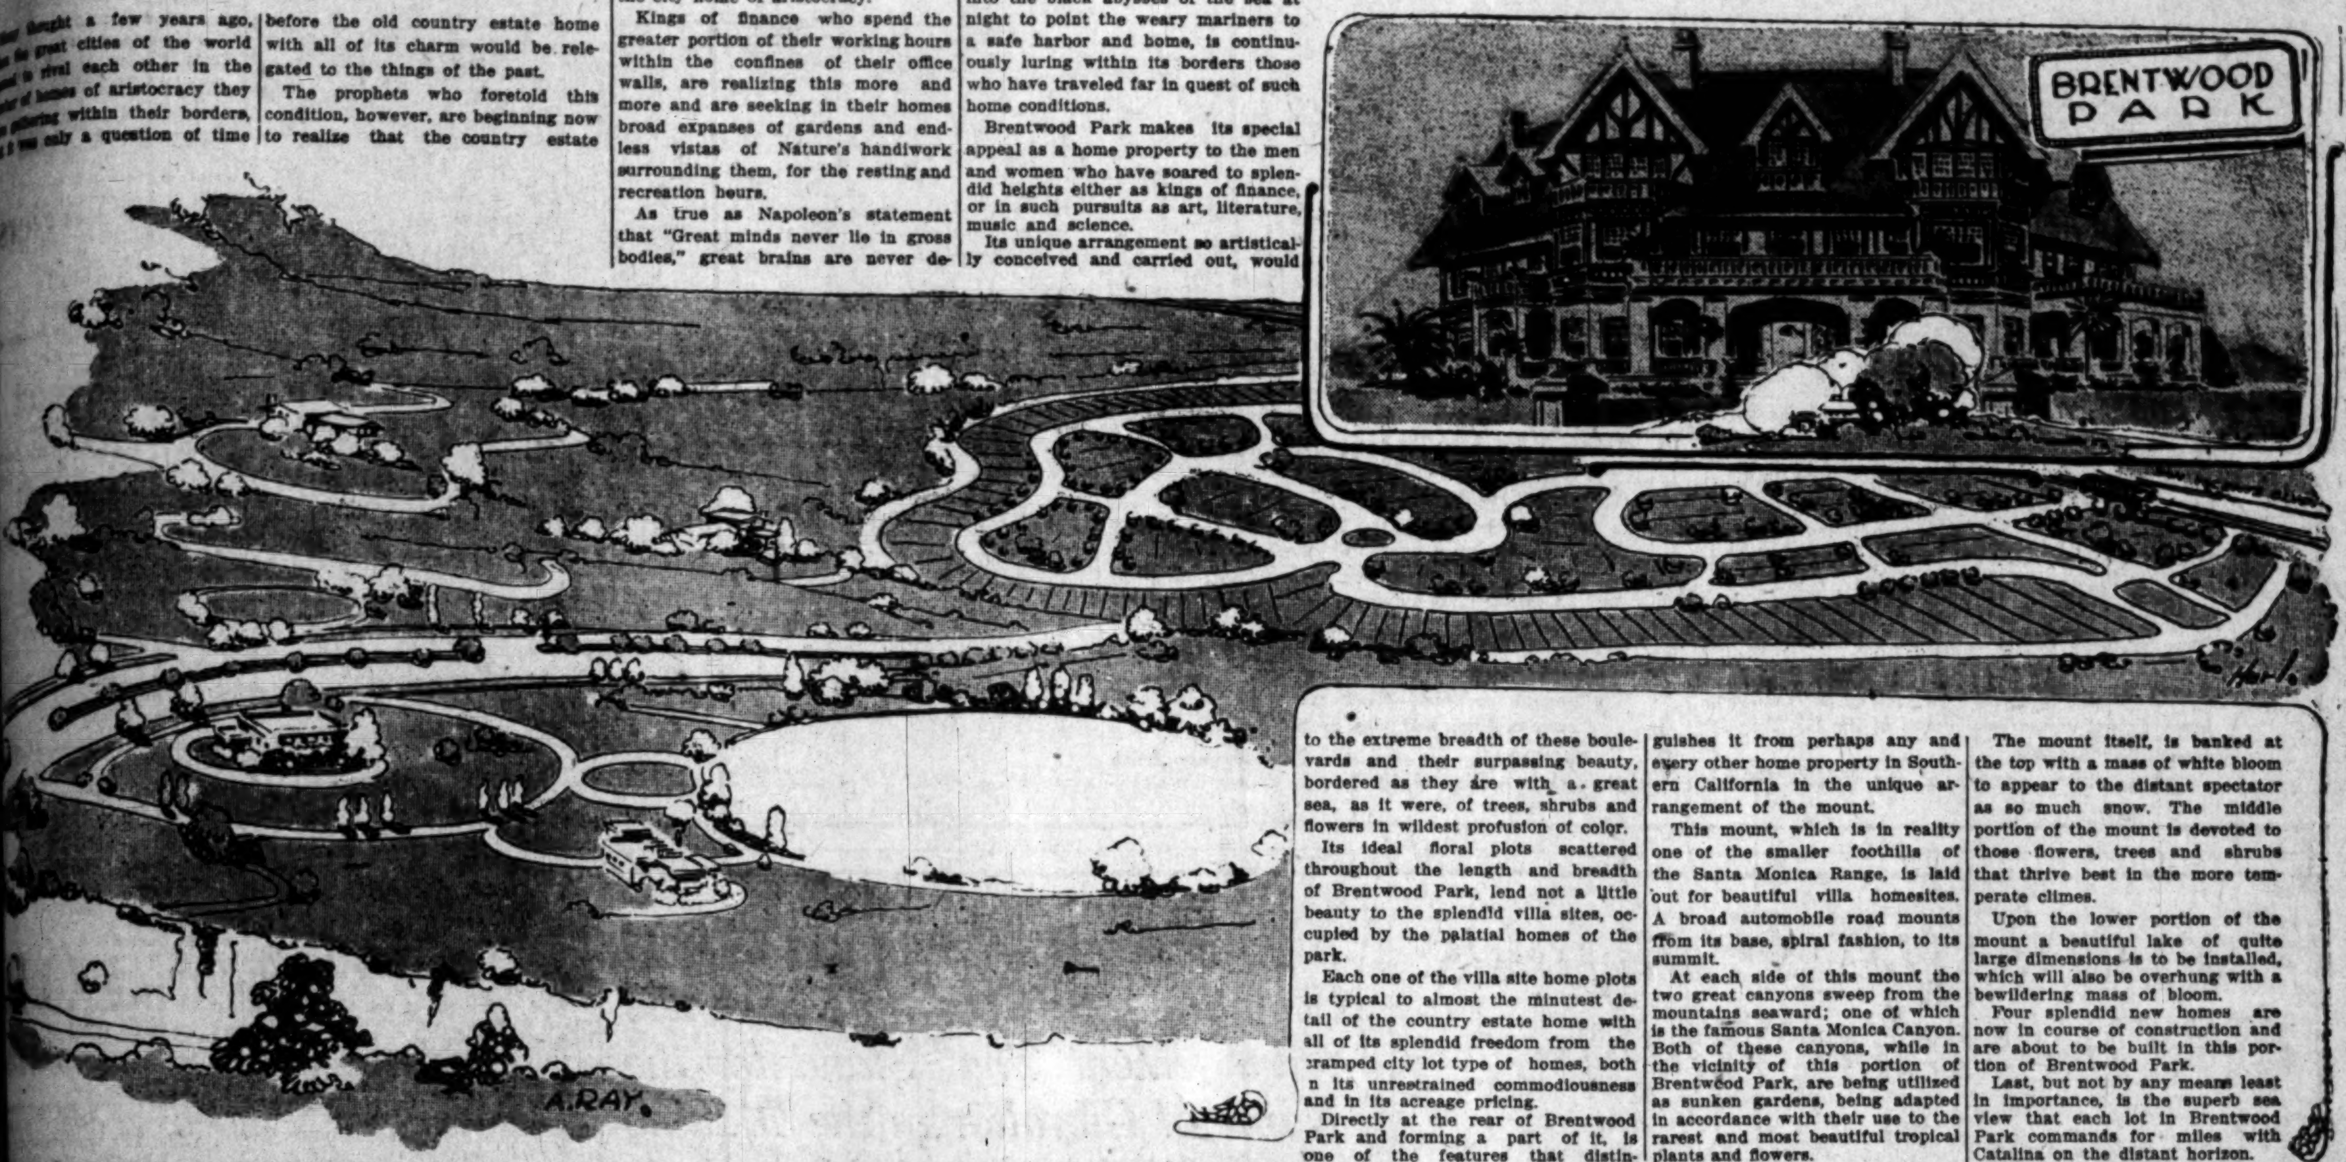
Santa Monica, like some great beacon light sending its rays far out into the black abysses of the sea at night to point the weary mariners to a safe harbor and home, is continuously luring within its borders those who have traveled far in quest of such home conditions.

Brentwood Park makes its special appeal as a home property to the men and women who have soared to splendid heights either as kings of finance, or in such pursuits as art, literature, music and science.

Its unique arrangement so artistically conceived and carried out, would at once attract the attention of the most enthusiastic artist.

Its tremendous frontage on the famous San Vicente Boulevard, to begin with, is a point particularly in its favor; San Vicente Boulevard being at once one of the most picturesque and one of the most important automobile boulevards throughout Southern California.

Its imposing boulevards, which sweep into San Vicente Boulevard, are another feature which strikes the visitor here with more than usual admiration and bewildered charm; due to the extreme breadth of these boulevards and their surpassing beauty, bordered as they are with a great sea, as it were, of trees, shrubs and flowers in wildest profusion of color.



Its ideal floral plots scattered throughout the length and breadth of Brentwood Park, lend not a little beauty to the splendid villa sites, occupied by the palatial homes of the park.

Each one of the villa site home plots is typical to almost the minutest detail of the country estate home with all of its splendid freedom from the cramped city lot type of homes, both in its unrestrained commodiousness and in its acreage pricing.

Directly at the rear of Brentwood Park and forming a part of it, is one of the features that distinguishes it from perhaps any and every other home property in Southern California in the unique arrangement of the mount.

This mount, which is in reality one of the smaller foothills of the Santa Monica Range, is laid out for beautiful villa homesites. A broad automobile road mounts from its base, spiral fashion, to its summit.

At each side of this mount the two great canyons sweep from the mountains seaward; one of which is the famous Santa Monica Canyon. Both of these canyons, while in the vicinity of this portion of Brentwood Park, are being utilized as sunken gardens, being adapted in accordance with their use to the rarest and most beautiful tropical plants and flowers.

The mount itself, is banked at the top with a mass of white bloom to appear to the distant spectator as so much snow. The middle portion of the mount is devoted to those flowers, trees and shrubs that thrive best in the more temperate climes.

Upon the lower portion of the mount a beautiful lake of quite large dimensions is to be installed, which will also be overhung with a bewildering mass of bloom.

Four splendid new homes are now in course of construction and are about to be built in this portion of Brentwood Park.

Last, but not by any means least in importance, is the superb sea view that each lot in Brentwood Park commands for miles with Catalina on the distant horizon.

AIL TO VAN NUYS, THE SOUTHERN PETALUMA!

Poultry Industry Assuming Magnificent Proportions in the San Fernando Valley. To Rival the Celebrated Chicken City of the North.

BY F. M. KEFFER.

AWN? Exaggerated? Well, if you could talk with the veteran from Petaluma who have entered the field here; if you listen to stories of what poultrymen of the San Fernando Valley accomplished, as you gaze the while at their thousands of in-; if you could scan the list of those who are going into the this section, and learn of the poultry plants already ordered might find ample reason to change your estimate.

names are being added daily to the roster of chicken raisers, poultry houses are being ordered by the dozens. Preparations made that will mean an immense output of eggs from the San Valley this coming winter, and the poultry business is being right now in this section that may some day rival the older chicken of San Francisco.

then, is the reason for all this activity? What foundation is the plans which will make the poultry industry of the San Fernando of its greatest resources? Listen to what one of the best known of Petaluma, O. B. Hubbell, says of the future of the business is a great chicken country," said Mr. Hubbell, when asked views, "but I believe that some day there will be a greater chicken right here than there is at Petaluma.

Just this: You have every advantage that Petaluma has—every number that Petaluma has not and never can have. That's why. chief reasons are at the bottom of Petaluma's remarkable growth center. They are (1) soil, (2) climate and (3) location. Let us advantages of Petaluma and see how we compare here.

soil is a light, sandy loam, readily worked and that does not as would heavier soil. The San Fernando Valley has a soil superior to that of Petaluma in this respect, with the added that it is of great depth.

climate of Petaluma is mild in winter and tempered by cool sea summer, making housing expenses lower and adding to the length during which chickens may be raised. It also adds to the egg possibilities of the fowls. But the San Fernando Valley has a and is nearer the ocean and its cooling breezes than Petaluma miles. That for climate.

location, Petaluma must ship its eggs 58 miles to San Francisco. Fernando Valley is right at the door of Los Angeles, and when you the ocean beach resorts and Pasadena and other surrounding places, territory offers as large a market as San Francisco.

advantage which Petaluma seems to have is water transportation, cheap food. But we have here an offset that more than over-. I have watched closely since I became interested down here, that the price of eggs is over 2 cents a dozen higher in Los An- in Petaluma. Suppose you could buy feed in Petaluma for $1.50 a ton cheaper. A ton of feed will keep twenty-four hens one year. If you get twelve dozen eggs per hen, that would be 288 dozens for the flock, for which you would get 2 cents a dozen more here, or $5.76, to offset $1.50 higher cost of feed. Or a clear advantage for San Fernando Valley of $4.26.

"Now," continued Mr. Hubbell, after a pause, "let us consider some of the advantages Van Nuys and this valley has that Petaluma has not.

"Probably the chief one is water. Unless you were familiar with the business you could not realize how much that means. The land here is level, and there is such an abundance of water that if the Owens River water never was secured, it would not seriously handicap this section.

"Water, with the mild climate here, means that we can get green feed the year around in prime condition. Petaluma is too hilly to irrigate, and cannot get the water, either. Therefore they must depend upon the rains there.

"That is the reason they depend upon kale for green feed up there. Alfalfa is superior, but they cannot raise it there. Red clover is superior even to alfalfa, and I am positive that red clover can be raised here as well as alfalfa. With irrigation and the equable climate, green feed at its best can be obtained at all times of the year. That is impossible for Petaluma, and if you knew how the Petaluma breeders look for the fall rains, you would better appreciate this advantage.

"The level ground is another great advantage. Here in the San Fernando Valley there is 100,000 acres like a floor. With that kind of land, the chicken man can alternate his flock, changing it every month or six weeks the year around, irrigating the vacated yard and sowing it to barley. In three weeks he will have a great stand of the finest green feed, and the cultivation will have absolutely obliterated every possible disease germ in the ground and made the ground as healthful for the chickens as if it had never been used for a chicken run before.

"Moreover, this command of water has another immense advantage. Moist soil is far better for chickens, and after the moulting season the Petaluma poultrymen long for the fall rains, to start the chickens laying. Partly this is due to the green feed, but the moistened soil also has much to do with it. Here the soil can always be kept sufficiently moist, although you cannot put enough water on it to make 'puddles,' which would be injurious.

"Another point: The season for producing hatching eggs at Petaluma is usually considered to be February, March and April. This is due to moisture and green food, which is just right at that time. Here we will be able to maintain those conditions right all the time, and thus the only time of the year when hatching eggs cannot be advantageously produced here will be the moulting season—the middle of July to the middle of October. In other words, the hatching season can be extended to cover nine months of the year here.

"The equable climate will not only make it much easier to raise chicks here, but it will have a tendency to increase individual egg production.

"Finally, there is a crowning advantage here that makes this section pre-eminently the ideal poultry country. That is the adaptability to fruit, which can be raised as a companion industry to poultry production.

"An orchard makes an ideal chicken run, peaches being especially good for the purpose, as the chickens will not eat the peach leaves. Bartlett pears are also excellent, for the crop is all picked at one time so that the chickens would not be disturbed so often. Poultry running in an orchard is good for the trees, while the shade of the trees is one of the best possible things for chickens.

"Hence, a man can buy his peach land, install his chickens, set out the peach or pear trees and the chickens will support him while the trees are coming into bearing.

"I will never minimize Petaluma's greatness as a chicken section. It is fine. I have lived within a radius of sixteen miles from Petaluma for 50 years, and I appreciate its advantages.

"But this country down here has some things Petaluma has not, and never can have. You cannot say anything too strong about this valley as a poultry country.

"Why, Wednesday I looked over the Kline ranch at Burbank. Mr. Kline came there, they tell me, seven years ago with $100 cash and a few hundred dollars worth of paraphernalia.

"Today he has 5000 laying hens, 5000 young chickens, ten acres well improved, and you could not buy him out for $30,000.

"He had his troubles. He lost many chickens through inexperience. He had to learn.

"That is another advantage Van Nuys will have. Its breeders will have experienced chicken men, who will place the results of 30 years experience at their disposal. There will be no need of experimenting. There will be no serious losses, if common sense is followed.

"No, really I cannot see anything to it. Van Nuys and the San Fernando Valley will be the greatest chicken district on the Coast—even greater than Petaluma in time. Every experienced chicken man who has gone over the ground thus far has become convinced of that. My partner, T. A. Vestal, with 30 years' experience; D. W. Batchelor and L. E. Rankin, two of the most experienced chicken raisers at Petaluma, and others similarly well informed have reached the same conclusion.

"If Mr. Kline can do what he has done without experience, on land that is far from being as good as most of the San Fernando Valley land, what can be done in the other portions of the valley? I looked over his 5000 hens, and I confidently assert that nowhere in the world can as fine a bunch of that size be found.

"Make it strong that the San Fernando Valley is the most perfect spot for raising chickens anywhere on the Pacific Coast. I don't know of a single disadvantage."

Mr. Hubbell, with his partner, Mr. Vestal, and Messrs. Batchelor and Rankin, have purchased forty acres in North Van Nuys Acres from W. P. Whitsett of 319 South Hill street, and are giving evidence of their faith by putting in a model chicken ranch thereon.

Although chicken raising has gradually grown in this section, it was not until Ross E. Whitley conceived the idea of its great possibilities, and laid the subject before the Petaluma people, that it was given its present tremendous impetus.

Like the people from Petaluma, Mr. Whitley will back his faith with works, and become a heavy chicken raiser, while his father, H. J. Whitley, who has ably seconded his efforts to start the industry, will also enter the business.

Nearly a score of ranchers and residents of this section of the San Fernando Valley have followed this lead, and are either building or getting ready to build chicken houses preparatory to going into the business of poultry and egg production.

The claim is made that this product is superior to genuine marble, being stronger, more substantial and less liable to crack or damage, and that, especially in working, boring or in installation work, the danger of injury is much less than with real marble, while it costs only one-third as much.

This artificial marble is made partly by hand and partly by machine. The cutting and polishing is done by machinery, the process being already in operation in Vienna, Berlin, Mannheim and Hamburg.

Good Value in Sawdust.

[Topeka State Journal:] A unique business has sprung up in upper Michigan. It is the sale of sawdust. This refuse of the lumber manufactories, heretofore discarded as worthless and generally disposed of by burning in stacks buil tfor the purpose, has been determined to be a valuable commodity.

It contains acetate of lime, wood alcohol and similar chemicals to be obtained by distillation.

Sawmills in that part of the country are now saving their sawdust for sale and shipment to the works of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical Company at Newberry, where it is treated in the retorts and its valuable constituents extracted.

There is hardly a sawmill in the upper peninsula that has utilized its sawdust in any manner, and it is estimated that the waste on this account during the many years that lumber manufacture has been carried on amounts to many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Billions of Tin Cans.

[New York Sun:] The American Can Company made last year 2,000,000,000 common tin cans and several million cans not classed as "common." A new use for the smaller cans has been found by the savage tribes of Africa, who make earrings of them.

If the 2,000,000,000 common cans that the company made last year were laid end to end they would reach around the world six times. Filled with the foodstuffs they usually contain and sold with their contents for 10 cents apiece, they would bring $20,000,000.

There is scarcely anything made of tin that the company does not manufacture. It produces more than 42,000 differents kinds of articles. In the United States the production of tin cans has increased 200 per cent. in the last ten years.

Manganese Ore.

[Christian Science Monitor:] The United States Geological Survey has published, as bulletin 427, a report on the manganese deposits of the United States, by E. C. Harder. The bulletin contains accounts of the geology and chemistry of the ores, the methods of mining, the uses of the metal, and the nature and extent of the industries to which it gives origin.

Manganese ores are found in many parts of the United States, but at only a few places do they occur in sufficient quantity to be of high commercial value.

Most of the manganese ore consumed in this country is imported from Brazil, India and Cuba, smaller amounts being obtained from Russia, Germany, Great Britain, Belgium, Japan, the East Indies and other countries. It is used largely in the manufacture of iron-manganese alloys, and these, together with the imported alloys, are consumed in steel manufacture. A considerable quantity of high-grade foreign ore is used in the manufacture of dry cells for electric batteries.

Most of the domestic manganese ore, with perhaps a small portion of the imported ore, is used in the manufacture of brick and pottery as a coloring material, or for other chemical purposes.

Money in Liquid Air.

[Topeka State Journal:] There is one widely-known department at the Kansas State University which, instead of being an expense to the State, is a source of constant profit. This is the little room where Prof. Cady takes the Kansas ozone and squeezes it so hard that it sheds tears.

While liquid air has not become a commercial product, there is a great demand for it for experiments and demonstrations, and orders for liquid air are received by the university from all parts of the United States.

The containers are made in Germany and cost about $12 each. They cannot be corked without exploding and are partially closed with a felt cap. Closed in this manner the liquid air may be shipped a thousand miles.

TO PREVENT FATALITIES.

Committee of Employees at Copper Queen Mine Works for Safety of Laborers.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) July 4.—Accidents in the mines around Bisbee are of daily occurrence and hardly a week passes without at least one fatality. This condition has been considered not an unnatural one with thousands of men employed, but the Copper Queen Company is not satisfied and is now working out plans for securing safety or a far more elaborate scale than ever before known.

Suggestions are compiled by a committee of employees, including miners, hoisting engineers, electricians and mechanics, who have been combined into what is called the Safety First Committee. Bulletin boards will be established at each shaft head, on which will be posted notice of every accident, with a description of its cause and suggestions as to how it might have been averted.

At the Copper Queen power-house a second 7000-foot air compressor has been installed, making the capacity of the equipment 20,000 cubic feet of free air a minute. A new system of air equalization is installed, operated by water pressure.

The new entry shaft on the Sacramento property has been opened and is used as a passageway by several hundred miners. It is provided with all the latest safety devices. At the same shaft a new change house has been completed, made of concrete and with sanitary equipment.

In Gold Gulch in the Dos Cabezas Mountains, near Wilcox, a find of very rich vanadium ore has been made by Ed W. Blair, a well-known Bisbee miner.

During June, 283 cars of concentrates and ore, aggregating 10,500 tons, valued at more than $500,000, were shipped from Nacozari, through Douglas port of entry.

MINING COMPANY SPLITS ITS THIRTY-FIFTH.

United Verde Soon to Make Fourth Disbursement This Year, But Dividends May Be Somewhat Curtailed Because of Expenditure on New Equipment.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) July 4.—The Tom Reed Gold Mines Company has paid its thirty-fifth dividend of 6 per cent., amounting to $55,000. The company has been paying more than 6 per cent. a month on its capitalization, amounting last year to $665,000, constituting about 62 per cent. of the value of the total output. Rich ore has been cut down to 720 feet, but no stoping has been done below the 500 level.

The United Verde Copper Company has declared its fourth 75-cent dividend this year. It is expected that dividends will be somewhat curtailed this year, owing to the necessity for large expenditures in connection with the new smelter and transportation equipment. It is said that since its organization the company has paid in dividends the sum of $33,122,000, about 90 per cent. of this vast sum going to ex-Senator W. A. Clark.

At the Boundary Cone mine, near Oatman, a body of milling ore thirteen feet wide has been cut on the 520 level, on which a drift is developing ore at the rate of 100 tons a day. The company is preparing to erect a ten-stamp mill, with amalgamation and cyanide equipment. The general run of ore lately developed is said to be above $30 a ton. Frank Dryden, a well-known Arizona miner, has been appointed superintendent of the property.

Work has been resumed on the Venezia property near Crook Canyon, where cyanide equipment is to be added to the mill.

A five-stamp mill is to be erected at once on the property of the Coronado Gold Mining Company, near Congress. Large quantities of valuable ore are on the dumps already. It is free milling and expectations are that the larger part of its value will be found on the plates without further treatment.

Diamond drill exploration of the Nondescript claim of the Ford Mining Company in Mineral Point district has discovered good values in copper, gold and silver at the depth of 638 feet.

Willis A. Cates has resigned as superintendent of the Climax Mining Company. Immediate charge of operations now are in the hands of President R. M. Martin of Los Angeles.

Constructive Principles Co-Operative Action Creative Power and Consolidated Operations

Are the Great Forces of Modern, Scientific and Economic Business Management That Stand for the Name of Gibraltar in the Making of Profits for Shareholders From the Developing of California's Rich Resources.

The absolute completeness of the broad, money-making operations of Gibraltar in the interests of co-operative shareholders is only approached by the enthusiastic approval that has been accorded the Gibraltar plan by investors. Gibraltar now announces to its thousands of stockholders that they are entitled to the first reservations in the townsite that has been surveyed on Gibraltar Acres at Bloomington in answer to the insistent demands of this fast growing horticultural community, and the rapid sale of orchard-home tracts by Gibraltar. A newspaper is now being published and plans are completed for a modern tourist hotel, a mercantile company and other business establishments that will supply the requirements of this fast growing section for an up-to-date business center. The new town of Bloomington has a greater territory to draw upon than many towns of ten thousand population. For the present the reservations of lots from the survey maps in the Gibraltar offices are open only to shareholders of the company.

THE ECONOMY EFFECTED BY CONSOLIDATED OPERATIONS WHICH MEANS PROFITS FOR THE CO-OPERATIVE SHAREHOLDER IS ONE OF THE BEST PRINCIPLES OF GIBRALTAR. The trees that are a big money-making asset in themselves are rooted and grown by Gibraltar; the land bought at wholesale in large tracts is planted, subdivided, and sold in the shape of the complete orchard home.

Cement Pipe Made on Gibraltar Acres to Be Laid Thereon for Irrigating.

Teams of Mules at Work in Preparing and Planting Gibraltar Acres.

View Taken From Gibraltar Acres Showing Citrus Packing Houses and Bloomington Station of Southern Pacific.

Since the planting and selling of the Gibraltar Acres, the already famous fruit region of Bloomington has developed into the fastest growing horticultural region between Los Angeles and San Bernardino. Orchards are being planted and homes built as rapidly as a force of several hundred workmen can handle the operations. The rapid advancement of this great territory demands a town to centralize the great business which will come from these thousands of acres developed orchards. GIBRALTAR SHAREHOLDERS ARE CO-PARTNERS IN THE PROFITS MADE FROM THE ADVANCEMENT OF GIBRALTAR ACRES AND ALL OPERATIONS.

The Constructive Principle of Gibraltar in transforming vacant non-productive lands into a state of high productivity—all operations under one direct management—is constantly creating higher community values and adding to the worth of Gibraltar shares.

THE RIGHT TO WORK.

Domineering Attempt of Electrical Workers at Portland to Control the Home Telephone Company.

[Portland Spectator:] Nearly two months ago a strike, which has been attended by violence and a boycott, which has been of no affect whatever, were declared against the Home Telephone Company. That the public may understand the position of the parties to this strike and boycott, The Spectator prints herewith statements from the representatives of the employees and employer. C. W. Palmer, business representative of electrical workers, says:

"There is a strike against the Home Company, and it will continue until the company recognizes the union. After we made an agreement with the Pacific Telephone Company, we turned our attention to the Home. They turned us down cold. We put the matter up to the Central Labor Council and the electrical workers of the Coast. They advised us to pull the job. Not over 15 men walked out when the strike was called, and of these six or eight were union men. The strike was declared May 1. We look for a satisfactory settlement. We do not believe the telephone company will hold out. We are sure the strike is hurting it. We want the wage scale of $4 a day and recognition of the union. The company has been paying $2.50 to $4 a day. We have had some banners made. We have spoken to workers for the company on their way to work asking them to come into the union. We haven't tried any violent methods."

"None of the parties who have made demands on this company is now or ever was in our employ, nor is any of them able to show that he does now or ever did represent any of our employees. Eighty-five per cent. of the men working for the company have signed a statement declaring that they are perfectly satisfied with the hours of work, the conditions and the wages. There is no strike so far as the company or the men who work for it are concerned. Perhaps ten men left us and of these two or three were union men. We hadn't had more than that number of union men working for us before. All the trouble is being made by outsiders. We were and are getting along well and I repeat that the men are satisfied. Outsiders are making all the trouble. It hasn't affected us more than in the most incidental way.

"We think we have a right to pay them what they are worth to us, and not pay an ordinary worker the wages of an expert and skilled worker. We have been liberal with salaries. We have treated the men well. They have shown appreciation by staying with us. The trouble-makers, however, have been using the coward's methods, cutting up cables, endeavoring to precipitate riots, placing pickets about our premists to intimidate the men, carrying banners and so forth.

"This company employs and will continue to employ, both union and non-union men and women just as long as both classes exist, because it is chartered by a vote of all the people to serve all the people."

The vital question here seems to be recognition of the union; the electrical workers demand that the Home Company shall not give employment to any man who is not a union member; they also insist that all present employees of the company must be discharged. The Home Telephone Company very truly says that as it received its charter from all the people of Portland, not over 12 per cent. of whom are union members, and is seeking business from all classes of citizens, it cannot discriminate for or against any class.

The position of the company is neither unjust nor despotic; indeed, it seems based on sound principles of justice and business. It does not refuse work to any man because he is a unionist; the union has declared the strike and boycott would have the company deny to everybody who is not a unionist the right to earn a living.

As only 12 per cent. of our people are connected with the labor trust that refuses to permit the rest of us to earn our bread, what would happen to the Home Telephone Company if it yielded to the demands of the union and agreed to discharge every independent workman and hire no one not included in the domineering 12 per cent. of unionists? Could the Home Telephone Company ask any of the others—to not one of whom it would give a day's work—to use its product? Would not the 88 per cent be justified in saying that if the company was willing to sign an agreement that deprived a large number of honest and industrious citizens of the right to work, the company must get its business from the class it favored? Surely.

VERDICT OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Failure to Provide Medical Attention Is Decided by the Court to Be Criminal and Without Relief.

[The Docket:] On the 31st day of December, 1910, there was a severe storm in the vicinity of Norfolk, Neb., amounting to a blizzard, and that night the weather was very cold. On this night Henry Stehr, whose family consisted of his wife and an illegitimate child of hers, named Kaurt, allowed the fire to go out altogether, although he had a small supply of coal. Some time during the night Stehr discovered that the room was full of frost, that snow had drifted through the crack of the door and through a broken windowpane, and the bedding on all of their beds was frozen stiff. Notwithstanding this situation, he built no fire, but turned the bedtick over on which Kaurt slept, and again placed the child in the bed alone, where he lay until the next morning. Shortly after this, it was discovered that the child's feet had been frozen and had begun to show signs of discoloration. Stehr thereupon applied hot water and dressed the feet with cloths saturated with vaseline. No physician was consulted or called until the 16th day of January following, at which time the child's feet were so badly decomposed that the stench arising therefrom had become unbearable. A physician was then procured, who examined the child and found a gangrenous condition of its feet, and decided that amputation was absolutely necessary. On the following day the operation was performed, and everything possible was done for the relief of the child. It was found, however, that sepsis or blood poisoning had developed to such an alarming extent that a recovery was impossible, and on the 22d day of the month the child died. Later defendant was indicted for murder in the first degree for criminal negligence in failing to provide medical care after he discovered the frozen condition of his stepchild's feet. He was convicted of manslaughter, and appeals to the Supreme Court of Nebraska. The court holds that the jury had a sufficient basis for finding the defendant guilty of such criminal negligence as would amount to manslaughter, and affirms the conviction. In closing, the court says: "As stated by counsel, this is a difficult case, and suggests a seasonable application for executive clemency; but, as we view the record, it contains no reversible error, and this court can grant the defendant no relief." Stehr vs. State, 139 Northwestern Reporter, 676.

Toll the Farmer Pays.

[Dallas News:] According to estimates of the Department of Agriculture the losses from swine diseases in 1912 amounted to $66,417,000; the losses of cattle from diseases and exposure reached $64,783.00; of sheep from like causes a sum amounting to $10,082,000; while the losses of farm horses and mules from diseases reached the sum of $63,817,000. It is reasonably certain that the farmers of the United States in 1912 suffered an aggregate loss of $205,099,000 in live stock from disease and exposure. Add to this enormous sum a half billion lost by reason of insect and animal pests, and it will be seen that the various enemies of the farmer exact a heavy toll from his industry.

You can buy a 5, 10 or 20-acre orchard homesite on Gibraltar Acres, located in the heart of the richest and most productive horticultural section of Southern California, for $20 per acre down and $5 per acre per month.

Gibraltar Acres is proven fruit land and is acknowledged by experts to be especially adapted to the successful raising of olives. Olives are being contracted for 10 years in advance at $250 per ton on the trees, and offer a source of revenue to the Orchardist even greater than do citrus fruits.

It is because Gibraltar Acres offer unusual investment opportunity that approximately $125,000 worth of orchard homesites were sold during June. This remarkable record had its inception in the latent wealth of Gibraltar Acres, located in a district without a crop failure, and destined to become the hub of a vast system of electric railways affording rapid transit to Los Angeles—the market center of Southern California and a large tributary area.

An inspection of Gibraltar Acres will convince you of the wealth-yielding properties of the soil and of its future financial possibilities. Visit the tract at our expense—52 miles east of Los Angeles on the main line of the S. P. R. R. Trolley to Riverside, 7 miles; other electric lines under construction that will cement Gibraltar Acres with Rialto, San Bernardino, Colton and Los Angeles.

HAZELTON COMPANY TO RESUME AFTER LONG REST.

Improved Methods Arouse Belief that Water May Be Shut Off in Old Well—Maricopa Flat Proves New Center of Activity—Union Gets Many Leases.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, July 3.—Preparations are made by the Hazelton Crude Oil Company to resume operations on its sixty acres on section 17, 11-23. The company abandoned work about two years ago, as a result of meeting with water trouble in its No. 1 well. An oil sand had been encountered, however, at 1700 feet.

It is believed that the water can now be shut off because of improvement in methods. It is also planned to start a second well soon to go down to deeper oil sand at 2400 to 2500 feet. Among those interested in the company are J. W. Kelly, Tom Atkinson, Homer Staley, Jim Quinn and Mort Bell.

The Midway Northern Oil Company has brought in well No. 4 in the Maricopa Flat, near the Maricopa Queen Oil Company, with an output of about 1500 to 1700 barrels a day, steady flow.

In this vicinity the Miocene Oil Company's No. 2 well is doing about 850 barrels a day of twenty-three gravity oil.

Five wells on section thirty-two, where the producers mentioned in the foregoing are located, yield at the rate of about 8500 barrels a day. Among the companies developing in the territory are the Kern Trading and Oil, August, Maricopa Queen, Miocene, Maricopa Northern, Midway Northern, American Oil Fields, California Amalgamated, El Dora National Pacific, Obispo and Pacific Midway.

The Pacific Midway has ordered rig material for No. 7 well. No. 6 has just been cemented.

The Tamalpais Oil Company on section 25, 32-23, is preparing to erect two rigs in the near future. Material for the first rig was purchased from the Midos Oil Company.

The Mays Oil Company is bailing out No. 8 well preparatory to bringing it in. Rig material is on the ground for wells Nos. 9 and 10.

OIL LEASES.

Oil leases recorded here concern the following West Side lands.

United Midway Oil Company to the Union Oil Company of California, for a period of twenty years, the southwest sixty acres of the southwest quarter of section 4, 11-23, Midway Oil Company to the Union Oil Company of California, the southwest quarter of southwest quarter and west half of southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 4, 11-23, for twenty years. A. T. Jergins to the Union Oil Company of California, the north forty acres of the easterly sixty acres of the southeast quarter of section 4, 11-23, for twenty years. Bay City Oil Company and Regal Oil Company to the Union Oil Company of California, the northwest quarter of section 14, 32-23, for fifty years.

An agreement has been filed by which the Bay City Oil Company and Regal Oil Company with the Union Oil Company agree to convey to the Equitable Petroleum Company and the Chanslor Canfield Midway Oil Company the northeast quarter of section 14, 32-23.

THE DEATH OF THE I. W. W.

[Editorial.]

THE STRIKE of silk mill operatives at Paterson is collapsing. If it had any merits they were crowded out of public attention by the lawless activities to which some of the strikers were incited by Haywood, Miss Gurley and other I.W.W. leaders. The maintenance of law and order became the matter of paramount importance, says the Journal of Albany, N. Y.

Ever since the strikers received only a beggarly sum out of the large proceeds of the show which Idaho Haywood induced them to give in Madison Square Garden, New York, they have become more and more convinced that they were employed for personal gain by the men who prevailed upon them to leave their work and then incited them to defiance of the law.

It is estimated that the proceeds of the show were something like $10,000, and that the expenses were not more than $3000, so that there should have been $7000, more or less, for the fund for the assistance or maintenance of the strikers.

Instead, the sum turned over to them was only between $300 and $400—only about 5 per cent. of the show's profits. All efforts to secure from Idaho Haywood and his gang a statement showing what became of the receipts have been futile. Two weeks ago or more, Haywood promised that "as soon as the receipts were audited," the money would be distributed. Of course, there was no "auditing" necessary as far as the receipts were concerned. It was necessary only to count them. And it is pointed out that there were no bills to be audited for the reason that all expenses had to be paid in advance because the credit of the I.W.W. was not good.

So there was only the simple process of deducting expenses from gross receipts needed (and the turning over of the money) to make the net proceeds of about $7000 available for the use of the strikers.

By this time the strikers have a pretty well settled conviction as to where the money went which should have gone to them. They see that they have been deceived by men who professed to be their friends. Gradually they are returning to work. For some (silk dyers, for instance) there is no employment because other workers (about 1500) who are required for operation of the mills have left the city. In the early stages of the strike one of the I.W.W. leaders said: "This fight is the life or death of the I.W.W. in the United States."

Seeing that it would be the death Haywood and his gang evidently decided to make the funeral profitable to themselves.

Henceforth they should be dealt with as outlaws wherever in the United States they may make their appearance for the purpose of attempting to make trouble—Cincinnati just now, for instance.

WHAT IS SABOTAGE?

[EDITORIAL.]

THE word "sabotage" is of recent coinage; so recent that it is not to be found in any dictionary or supplement. It is variously defined by Socialists and anarchists and syndicalists. Many Socialists decline to accept sabotage and some denounce it as a crime. Here the syndicalists have the best of the argument. They say to the disciples of Prudhomme: "Your elementary maxim is property is robbery. How, then, can you maintain that property should be inviolate and that it is a crime to destroy it?" Emma Goldman says of sabotage: "It is ethical in the best sense, since it helps society to get rid of its worst foe, the most detrimental factor of social life."

Sabotage consists in obstructing in every way the production and distribution of property by wage workers.

During the great French railroad strike the railroad workmen who sympathized with the strikers, although they remained in the employ of the company, signalized their devotion to the sacred right of labor to eat without earning, by loading perishable goods in slow trains or sending them in an opposite direction from that designated by the shipper. Others in unloading bales containing glass and china, that were marked "handle with care" took pains to place heavy boxes on top of them and if this failed to smash them they were hurled from the cars to the ground. "From the standpoint of the law," says Emma Goldman, "this may have been a crime, but from the standpoint of common humanity it was a very sensible thing. The same is true of disarranging a loom in a weaving mill."

The traveling I Won't Worker practices sabotage. Hens and roosters are property, therefore they are robbery. He seizes them from their roosts at midnight, wrings their necks and bags them, thereby destroying property and obstructing production, for dead hens lay no eggs. The next day he eats the destroyed property, nurtures his anarchic body and chronicles the complete triumph of sabotage in a small but satisfactory way.

Syndicalists hold that it is the duty of farmers to supply factory workers with food during strikes and to take care of the strikers' children. Some selfish and unenlightened agriculturists have shirked this duty and have welcomed unwelcome guests with bulldogs instead of roast beef and plum pudding. In San Diego the great apostle of sabotage—Emma Goldman's "friend"—was invited to leave the city p. d. q. He was compelled to walk, for the lighted end of a cigar had frescoed his sitting-down place so that any position other than that of standing or walking or reposing face downward was decidedly uncomfortable.

Retribution.

JAIL FOR I.W.W. AGITATOR, WHO INCITED STRIKE RIOT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PATERSON (N. J.) July 5.—Of two indicted Industrial Workers of the World leaders accused of inciting Paterson silk mill strikers to rioting, Patrick Quinlan was sentenced Thursday to prison, and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn failed of acquittal or conviction by a "foreign jury," drawn from citizens living outside of Passaic county.

Quinlan, found guilty several weeks ago, heard his fate pronounced unexpectantly, while a spectator in court waiting for a verdict in Miss Flynn's case. Wednesday night at an open-air mass meeting he had denounced the police and Prosecutor Dunn. Thursday the prosecutor suddenly moved that sentence be passed. Judge Klenert sent Quinlan to State's prison for from two to seven years, and fined him $500.

The jury in Miss Flynn's case deliberated about twenty-eight hours and reported it could not agree. The jury was dismissed and the prosecutor announced that the defendant would be placed on trial again Monday.

Labor's Unrest.

THE STRIKE NEWS OF THIS UNEASY WORLD.

THE spirit of '76 is not dead at Ipswich, Mass. Organizers of the I.I.W., who are leading the bloodshed strike at the Ipswich hosiery mills are to be driven out of the town. That was the sentiment of citizens at two mass meetings last week. Chairman Hull of the Board of Selectmen, who presided at the meetings, said: "We have had much of the red flag in Ipswich, and we have got to do as we did in 1776 and 1861; we have got to meet force with force. We are going to run this town as a clean and law abiding community."

In his farewell message to the Georgia Legislature, and referring particularly to the recent violent and futile strike at Augusta, Gov. Brown said: "It is for the Legislature to say whether we are going to surrender this State to labor union, anarchy or whether it is going to preserve it for law.

"Upward of 2,000,000 of people in Georgia will look with no patience upon the continuance of a condition which leaves their basic rights in life at the mercy of the star chamber of the labor union.

"The labor trust is the most widespread and aggressively exacting trust in America, but politicians, [even President Wilson and majorities of the House and the Senate—the writer] pander to it. Statesmen stand in awe of it, and the public seems helpless in its grasp. Why? Because it votes in blocks of thousands.

"The labor unions have combined against all other classes to secure an advantage. They are breeding anarchy and must be suppressed."

On July 1 the official call for a strike of miners in the New River (West Va.) coal field went into effect. The call was by the United Mine Workers of America, and it takes away the pay envelope from 15,000 men. Miners in the Cabin Creek field may go "out" any hour, and conditions are very uncertain in the Paint Creek district. In the past year millions of dollars have been lost in wages by strikes in West Virginia. Here they are beginning the trouble all over again.

The street railway strike at Phoenix, Ariz., is over, in that the company was able to maintain service by using imported temporary help. Union men in other trades urged absence of violence and non-interference with the running of the cars, realizing that the violence begun in a small way, had hurt (as it always does) the cause of labor generally. Though the strikers refused to arbitrate the questions of wages and seniority, the company is raising the wage scale and offering the strikers their places back. That is generous treatment. The unions, however, are talking Socialism and municipal ownership, but the latter is very far away—entirely out of sight—because Phoenix, like Los Angeles, will not for a very long time be able to find a market for municipal bonds, whether for ownership of service properties or for anything else. Hundreds of millions of dollars in municipal bonds are already a drug in the market, even those bearing 5 per cent.

Workers on the new steel bridge of the Arizona and Eastern Railroad Company, across Salt River, at Tempe, Ariz., are on strike for 25 cents a day more pay. The bridge is nearly completed.

Union labor at Phoenix, Ariz., (the Phoenix Trades Council) demands that the new charter of the city shall include all of the following Socialistic provisions:

"Eight hours a day or forty-eight hours a week are to be the task of the city employees of all classes; union labor is to be employed exclusively; the Typographical Union label is to be placed upon all municipal printing; unskilled labor shall be paid at least $2.50 a day; work is to be provided at half-time for men out of employment, public improvements to be instituted whenever possible; a free municipal employment office to be instituted and all private employment agencies to be abolished; establishment of a municipal slaughter-house; the right of the city to engage in all industry or business; abolition of the 'barbarous' ball and chain system of the chain gang; no arrests to be made upon the charge of vagrancy; the city magistrate to be elected, not appointed by the Commission, and no professional qualifications to be demanded of such magistrate."

Several of these demands are preposterous, tyrannous and revolutionary. Here again, as often seen, union labor goes as far beyond reason as to literally disgust the public and defeat itself.

Birmingham, Eng., and vicinity is having a heap of strike trouble, and has had for weeks. Strikes in several trades are on. The latest is one of 2000 men employed by the Metropolitan Railway Carriage Company. More than 25,000 men and women workers are still out, though strikes affecting 4000 others have been settled. There is great distress in two districts where the men have been out for six weeks. Not only at Birmingham, but all over the British Midlands factory districts, there is very serious labor unrest.

Violent disorders have taken place at Walsall, where several thousand workers are on strike. Mobs are attacking the strike-breakers.

Employees of the Lincoln (Eng.) Co-Operative Society are on strike for more wages. Where is the boasted "co-operation?"

The National Amalgamated Union of Labor of Great Britain has applied to the Shipbuilding Employers' Federation for an advance of 2s. a week on time rates and 10 per cent. on piece rates for all their members working in federated yards. This application is quite apart from the negotiations now proceding between the federation and the shipyard trade union, which are signatories to the national agreement, and is said to affect 12,000 men on the northeast coast.

Without doubt the Paterson silk workers' strike (originally 25,000) is ending by the return of the workers, shop by shop, in spite of frantic dissuasion and threats by Haywood and other I.W.W. leaders. A few weeks more and nothing will be left of this great strike except the millions of dollars of lost wages and the prosecutions and convictions. The manufacturers decline the help of the Citizens' Committee in settling the strike, as they are able to wear it out. This fiasco at Paterson is a hard (but well-deserved) blow to Haywood's "No God, No Master" programme for world government.

The 200 taxicab drivers of Buffalo are on strike for more wages, uniform hours and two days off each month. Not a taxicab or luggage truck is turning a wheel. Is striking a disease or a mania—which?

The strike of Erie Railroad telegraphers has been averted by an increase of wages to them over the entire system—an average increase of 6 per cent. Eleven hundred telegraphers gain.

When everything comes to be reckoned up it will be found that the total cost and loss of the Paterson strike, so far, is not much short of $10,000,000, every dollar of which is literally money thrown away. Evidently Haywood and his I.W.W. is one of our most costly assets.

The strike of engineers, conductors, firemen and trainmen on the Jamestown, Chautauqua and Lake Erie Railroad—a steam suburban line of thirty-two miles—is still on. Chautauqua Assembly cannot get the pianos needed for its summer schools. Thirty carloads of freight are tied up.

A general strike is on at the Transvaal (South Africa) mines. No details yet.

Marshfield, Or., took the bull by the horns and drove out the I.W.W. trouble-makers. The business men closed the places and "went to it." Driving the I.W.W.'s from place to place—from pillar to post and from post to pillar—is better than putting them in jail and feeding and trying them at public expense.

Twenty-one hundred teamsters are still on strike at Buffalo, N. Y. A few, but very few, went back to work.

Engineers of the American and Knickerbocker ice companies of New York, taking advantage of the hot weather, and regardless of consequent public suffering (particularly sick people and babies) threaten to strike for the eight-hour day right now.

In Tacoma, as in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere, an advertised I.W.W. meeting turns out to be a complete fizzle. Thus fails the third attempt since June of the I.W.W. to start a strike in and around Port Angeles, Wash.

Eleven thousand garment workers are on strike in Cincinnati and its suburbs for a forty-eight-hour week for women, a fifty-hour week for men, with a 20 per cent. wages increase. Practically all clothing shops and factories are at a standstill. Union International President Richert is there, and says these demands are unjust. He advises acceptance of the fifty-hour week, with fifty-four hours pay, as offered by the manufacturers, and ordered all the strikers back to work. He blames the illegal calling of the strike on the I.W.W., but whenever did the I.W.W. do anything in a legal way? They assert themselves to be above all courts and laws (till they are put in prison, when they whine to get out.) Plans for a huge parade of strikers, led by the I.W.W.'s and the red flag, were frustated by the police, forbidding parades without a permit. There is violence in this strike. Working girls are being attacked by strikers and their sympathizers.

France to Aid Women Workers.

The French government is to give state assistance to women workers about to become mothers whether employed in industry or domestic service. They cannot be dismissed in the two months preceding or following the birth of children. The aid will be a money grant to necessitous women. The act will benefit 3,000,000 women.

More Demands.

TIME TO ACT, STOP EXTORTION.

CLARION CALL AGAINST UNION DEMANDS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Charge that Unionite Demands Will Drive Out Additional Industries Unless the Community Ceases to Sleep at the Switch and Organizes Against the Agitators.

[San Francisco Commercial News:] There are two big strikes on in San Francisco at the present time.

These strikes, to a great extent, cripple two great utilities.

One strike affects a very large territory outside of San Francisco. Inside of San Francisco, and in Oakland, there has been a lot of malicious mischief, more or less interference with plants and some beatings. In Oakland numerous outrages have been committed. This is the strike of the employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

The other strike hasn't as yet reached the stage of malicious interference or bodily harm. The thug squad hasn't as yet started on its mission of maiming, mauling and murder.

The men are out. They are press feeders employed by the members of the employing printers' association, the Franklin Association.

The men are striking for heavier pay.

It is impossible for the trade, it is said, to stand the raise because of competition.

As it is, a very large percentage of the money paid out for printing goes to Chicago and the East.

And our merchants and our employers are asleep at the switch.

This is not the fight of the P. G. & E.

This is not the fight of the Franklin Association.

It is the fight of the people as against a particular organized clan or class, desiring to strangle all manufacturing here.

It is a struggle of the people to prevent the last vestige of manufacturing business leaving San Francisco.

Business, commercial business and manufacturing enterprise, recognize that labor, unorganized or organized, is entitled to its proper remuneration for its share of production, its share of the so-called profits, but there sometimes comes a time when there are no profits.

Labor, it has never been denied, is entitled to its share in prosperity. It must have it or starve. And it must be given enough to lay aside for a rainy day.

If labor, in a time of stringency, such as now exists, demands a larger proportionate share of those profits, or that prosperity at this time nil, then labor demands too much. It demands more than can be consistently granted by capital, and capital must then shut down—go out of business!

If labor demands of capital that it operate its plants on a basis of pay at which capital cannot compete for business, then capital must go out of business.

This is fundamental reasoning and unanswerable.

There is another phase. If the rest of the community is asleep at the switch and does not show labor the error of its way by organization, then this fool majority is earning all the losses the labor unions have placed upon it, and will continue to place on it, by the loss of manufacturing plants and business houses. One thing is certain—the "harder you keep on sleeping this way the harder will the agitators keep on agitating this way." They make their living by creating discontent! They continue in office indefinitely! They dupe the public and they dupe the worker—and you let them.

How to prevent it? Why—easy! Stick together, all of you—don't let George do it; you do it. Organize, organize, organize! If you do not, sooner or later the bogie man, who eats you up alive in a business sense, will get you! You are the eventual and inevitable goat. Quit it!

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

Walking through the streets of northeast Los Angeles evenings and Sundays, one comes across soap-box, corner and vacant lot "orators" trying to persuade workingmen and working women that conditions as to work and wages are not satisfactory here. These assertions are utterly untrue. They are not made with a view to supplying more work and more wages but in the hope of making the men and women who have jobs discontented enough to give up those jobs and go on strike, so that further excuses may be provided for the fat wages and fatter expense accounts (and they live well) of union-labor strike agitators. Why on earth any worker who is earning the good wages which prevail in Los Angeles should go on strike or want to go on strike, is just one of those things which, as Lord Dundreary used to say "no fellow can find out."

Then again, all the jobs in Los Angeles are not filled, by any manner of means, or the following vacant jobs would not be, as they are, advertised in the columns of this paper:

Besides the usual "army" of "help wanted" by hotels, restaurants, cafeterias, laundries, small factories, retail stores, and the thousand one other busy interests of this busy, bustling, growing, go-ahead industrially-free city. There is work here for those who are able and willing to work and who are not too particular as to what kind of a job they get for a starter. The loud-mouthed labor-disturbers on our streets and in our union-labor lodge and meeting rooms do not want any job that means manual labor. How long ago is it since Haywood, Ettor, Giovannitti, Gompers, Morrison, Mitchell, McCarthy, Tvietmore, Johannsen and the many other laborites did an honest day's work or a real day's work of any kind? One thing is certain and that is that they—not a single one of them—will ever look for work, as long as union labor continues, out of its wages, to support them without work. They live by the "gift of the gab," not by the use of muscle and brawn. They are parasites—just that.

Belgian Lace Makers.

Belguim has 47,000 lace makers, all of whom work at their homes. To this number should be added 3000 girls and women in the government and religious schools who are learning to make lace or who are there to perfect their training.

Voluntary Idleness in Chicago.

Besides the 30,000 "locked-outs" in the building trades in Chicago, the city has 10,000 men who are chronically too lazy to work. Los Angeles has some of those barnacles on its ship of labor, too. Chicago employment agents say they could supply 10,000 jobs, paying from $12 to $18 a week. That is the material Haywood, Gompers & Co. trade on.

Shorter Day Granted.

Dredgermen, tugmen and others involved in the marine work along the Great Lakes have been granted a shorter day. The agreement eliminates further controversy with the union, says O'Connor, president of the Longshoremen's International Union.

Pay to Be Equalized.

The pay of workers in American navy yards is to be equalized. Hitherto the workers in the New York navy yard have enjoyed higher wages than those paid in other yards.

Beet Felds' Wages.

The daily average earnings of the piece workers in the beet fields of . of the United States is $3.25 a day. In Java and other cane-sugar fields from which the "trust" refiners expect to get their raw material, when the beet industry has been extinguished in the United States, the average daily pay is from 15 cents to 50 cents for skilled labor. Official reports of the government named give the average agricultural wages in Poland as 26.2 cents per day for a man, and 20.6 for a woman; in Germany 41.4 for a man and 30 for a woman, and so on with other conutries with which American farmers will have to compete.

Wage Increase Without a Strike.

Without a strike the glass workers Belgium have secured a 3 per cent. wage increase, and also 3 per cent. for establishment of a pension fund.

Wages Increase.

On June 2, 10,000 Canadian Pacific Railway employees received a 10 per cent. increase in wages.

TAGGING WILD BIRDS.

An Aluminum Ring Attached to Leg With Instructions to Notify American Museum.

[New York Sun:] To extend scientific knowledge of bird habits by means of records made by students and accurate observers the American Bird Banding Association has been organized, with headquarters at the American Museum of Natural History. During the past year more than 800 wild birds have been banded with an aluminum ring that is adjusted loosely so as to cause no injury or inconvenience to the bird.

On the ring appear the words "Notify the American Museum, New York," and a card in the filed records of the museum gives the species of the bird, the date, place, and circumstance of banding. It is hoped by this system to learn the distance birds travel by migration, their definite routes, and information regarding their winter quarters. A long period of time is required to obtain results of value.

Three exhibition groups of North American fishes have recently been completed and are now on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History. One of these groups represents the bowfin, the second group shows the shovel-nose sturgeon, and the third the long-nosed gar pike.

OLIVES HAVE MADE GOOD, AND WOMEN PRODUCERS.

Success of the Gentler Sex in Helping Put the California Olive Industry on Its Feet — Raising the Marketable Fruit and Making Money Out of Oil—Mrs. Ehrmann and Mrs. McLenegan.

BY BERTHA H. SMITH.

NOBODY takes a chance nowadays in planting olive trees who understands them. California ripe olives have made good, and epicures who once held that the virtue of olive oil was having no taste at all have been won over to the nutty flavor of the California product. Those who claim to know have figured that if the demand for ripe olives continues to increase during the next five years at the rate it has increased during the past five, California will be facing a shortage unless a lot more people turn to olive growing.

Olives were a very different proposition in the early '90s, and many an olive grower who began in the early stages of the game grew disgusted with offers of $20 for an entire crop, and offers to cart the crop away for the picking, and dug out old trees that would have made him a fortune since then.

Before the ripe olive made good, it put California in bad odor—quite literally—in the eastern markets. Before the present method of sealing olives in tins and glass jars was adopted, they were shipped to the East in barrels. Barrel after barrel had to be carted by night through back alleys and dumped into East River, smelling to high heaven all the way. And the man who had bought them once was an ugly man for the next ripe olive salesman to face.

In the struggle of those early days three women had a conspicuous part—the late Mrs. M. E. Sherman of Fresno, Mrs. Freda Ehmann of Oroville, and Mrs. Carrie C. McLenegan of San Jose.

With Mrs. Sherman olives were but a side issue, one of many agricultural and horticultural enterprises carried to success. She demonstrated the necessity of selecting a proper soil for olive trees, the value of the Mission olive brought to the State by the padres, the wisdom of planting between the olives peaches or some quick-bearing crop which will yield an income before the olives come into bearing, and she was one of the first to solve the problem of packing ripe olives in tins. Mrs. Sherman's story has already been told.

Mrs. Ehmann and Mrs. McLenegan have confined their attention to the olive industry, the former beginning with the processing of ripe olives and finally making oil, the latter making oil at first and later yielding to the demand for ripe olives. With both a business career was purely accidental.

When Mrs. Ehmann came in 1892 to join her two married children in San Francisco she brought with her the proceeds from the sale of her home in Quincy, Ill. Finding California up to the brag, she enthusiastically gave her son all she had to meet some payments on a tract of 1800 acres which he was buying in partnership with another man.

In the financial panic of 1893 the partner failed in business, involving the 1800 acres, and young Ehmann. A lawyer's advice was for Ehmann to declare himself bankrupt. A mother's advice was to remember his father's standard of honor, and she backed it up by helping him to shoulder debts that weighed heavily for many a year.

IN RETURN.

In return for the money she had given him the son deeded to his mother a twenty-acre olive orchard five years old. The trees were not yet in bearing, and the son bore the expenses of cultivation. The following year came a half crop, which was allowed to rot upon the ground.

In the autumn of the third year young Ehmann came one day to his mother and told her the caretaker at the ranch had written that there would be a fine crop of olives, suggesting that she set to work and pickle them.

"Pickle olives!" exclaimed Mrs. Ehmann. "How can I? Why, I've never even seen a ripe olive."

That night she didn't sleep a wink and the next day she went to Prof. Hilgard of the University of California and asked for a recipe for pickling ripe olives.

Going back to her daughter's home in Oakland she talked over her plan and asked for a place on the back porch to experiment with the olives.

"It's only a whim," said the daughter's husband. "Mother will soon tire of it."

Which proved how well they didn't know mother.

Mrs. Ehmann had some wine casks brought down, set them in a row on the back porch, and into them put some ripe olives from the Marysville orchard. There being no water tap on the back porch, through all the process of leaching and pickling she carried the necessary gallons of water from the kitchen or the garden faucet to the wine casks. At intervals throughout the day and through the night, too, she watched the changes in those olives. At last the processing was complete, and she took a jar of the olives to the university. She knew something must be wrong, because the olives were every shade of green and brown and purple. She was ashamed of her failure, and urged her daughter to show them to Prof. Hilgard.

After examining them carefully, he remarked:

"Your mother is quite expert at pickling olives, isn't she? These are the best I have ever seen."

Encouraged, but not yet satisfied, Mrs. Ehmann took a jar of her olives to an Oakland grocer. She first asked to see his best ripe olives. They, too, were vari-colored, so she unwrapped her own.

The grocer examined them, tasted them, and on the spot bought the entire pickling of about 250 gallons. This paid for all the cost of experimenting and freight on the balance of the crop from Marysville to Oakland.

Mrs. Ehmann lived on that back porch all through the winter, experimenting first one way, then another, to try to preserve the natural color, to retain the highest possible percentage of the oil and all the delicacy of flavor, and, above all, to try to make them keep, which was then the most stubborn problem of the ripe olive.

IN NEW YORK.

In the spring she took samples of her work to New York.

As usual, New York looked askance at anything from out the West. New York liked European brands. She found one man, the manager of the largest olive-imporing house in the country, who told her he believed the ripe olive was the coming condiment for epicures. He would have contracted for her entire output for the next season, but his Spanish associates would not let him order a single gallon. On his own account he ordered two casks, and three years afterward he told Mrs. Ehmann's son he would like to kick himself down three flights of stairs for not having used his own judgment and contracted for all Mrs. Ehmann would agree to supply.

Other dealers were still remembering the stench of those barrels of bichloride of mercury and wood alcohol. She lived for two weeks after taking the fatal drink.

In the hospital Saturday night died Mrs. Robert Beadle and Mrs. Ben F. Cable, the former a wife of only two months. Both were scalded and burned by the explosion of a boiler, used in railroad construction work at Fairbanks. The women had stopped by the boiler to speak to the engineer, Lamour Howard, who is in the hospital suffering from scalding and other injuries. He was not an experienced engineer and the explosion is believed to have been due to his action in turning cold water into the over-heated boiler. Mrs. Beadle was the wife of the foreman of the construction work upon which Mrs. Cable's husband also was employed. Both widowers have gone East with the bodies of their young wives, interment to be at Booneville, Mo., where all four were reared and were married.

BURNS EAGLES' HALL.

By a fire that destroyed Eagles' Hall at Cananea, damage was done to the amount of about $10,000. The hall was used by the Eagles, Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows orders, which all lost their equipment and regalia.

A late order of the State authorities of Cananea demands that all foreigners coming into that part of Sonora must secure a passport at Naco and must secure a like document on leaving. Only responsible persons will be granted passports, either in or out.

At a celebration held in Nogales, Sonora, over a report that the city of Guaymas had been captured by the State forces, one enthusiastic Mexican contributed to the noise by throwing his repeating rifle over his shoulder and thus blindly firing off the cartridges. One of the bullets thus expended struck another celebrant in the breast, inflicting a fatal wound.

The Southern Pacific company has been sued by the town of Nogales for condemnation of a strip of land, used as a public highway and yet claimed by the railroad corporation.

FARMING IN COCHISE.

Cochise county, heretofore considered almost entirely mineral in its resources, seems to be the coming banner agricultural county of the State. During the past twelve months she led in the settlement of land. Of 766 certificates of entry granted by the land office, mainly for homesteads, 287 were to claimants in Cochise county. Next on the list was Maricopa county, with only eighty-four.

Forty artesian wells are now reported flowing in the vicinity of San Simon, where only one failure has been noted in all the boring that has been done.

Work upon the Leslie Canyon irrigation project north of Douglas has been started, with about fifty men employed. The dam will be 200 feet long and twenty feet deep and it is expected to impound enough water to insure the irrigation of 1000 acres of land. The cost will be about $40,000. Bed rock is at an average depth of eighteen feet. By electric generation at the dam, power is to be developed for pumping of fully 2000 acres more in the valley below.

FOR CLOSE-IN SITE.

Modern Four-Story Brick Apartment-House to Be Started in Two Weeks on West Tenth.

An attractive four-story brick apartment-house is projected by Mrs. Esther Gutterman for a site at No. 1142 West Tenth street. Plans for the contemplated improvement have just been completed by the firm of Jackson & McClure and the contract has been let to A. E. Harshman. Construction is to be commenced about the middle of July.

The lot is 61x150 feet in size. The building planned will contain 110 rooms and will cost approximately $65,000. The street front is to be faced with white pressed brick of a dull finish, the trim being of terra cotta. The interior will be finished in mahogany. The baths throughout will be in tile.

Large, light courts will give every room a desirable exposure. In addition to the apartment suites, the building will contain a large lobby, an amusement hall, ladies' restroom, smoking-room and billiard-room. Among the conveniences will be steam heat, vacuum cleaning and a circulating ice water system.

The financial arrangements for the improvement were handled by E. K. Albrecht, manager of the hotel department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, who is also conducting the negotiations for a tenant.

SOUTHWEST ACTIVITIES.

The Los Angeles Investment Company reports that it has just completed the 236th house in Rodgers Park, one of its southwest subdivisions. In tract 1700, an addition to New College tract, lying along West Forty-eighth boulevard, the seventy-seventh house was completed last week.

The Thirteen Superstition.

[Oregonian:] The thirteen superstition is in a bad way. There is a systematic campaign against it. Every person who performed some important act on a day in which the number 13 figured, and who has been blessed with good fortune, is proclaiming the fact with evident purpose to discredit the superstition. A Pittsfield, Mass., policeman, who says he has had practically unbroken happiness for many years, seems to have been tangled up with the magic number in every possible way. On June 13 he celebrated with his wife the thirteenth anniversary of their marriage. They were married on Friday, the thirteenth, and the bride's birthday was January 13. Before her wedded life began the number in the street on which she lived in Ware was 13. The dreaded number injures only those who fear it.

A Natural Bridge in the Philippines.

[Philippine Journal of Science:] A remarkable natural bridge in the Philippines was recently discovered by Paul R. Fanning. Although only about thirty miles south of Manila, it is believed never to have been visited before by white men, and it is the first large natural bridge reported in the Philippines. It is on the Lucsuhim stream, a couple of miles west of Silang. The stream runs through a canyon, and the space beneath the bridge forms a tunnel, about thirty-five feet broad and some 250 feet long. The floor of the bridge, now about 130 feet above the stream, bears evidence of having once been the bed of the latter.

Olives Have Made Good.

of this ranch, which he had bought merely as a plaything. Three years afterward she paid $40,000 for the same orchard, $20,000 in cash. She has since refused $50,000 for it.

Since that time the company has adopted a policy of buying up well-established olive groves wherever it could find them in good locations, and its groves today are conservatively estimated to be worth at least a half-million dollars. In addition to this they make five and ten-year contracts with other growers for their crops.

"I consider olive-growing the best investment in California today," says Mrs. Ehmann, "for we stand ready to contract for mission olives at prices that mean from $160 to $600 a year for the grower. Some of the best olive land in the State can yet be had very cheap with possibilities of plenty of water, which we believe necessary in olive culture.

"It takes nerve to plant trees that take from five to seven years to come into bearing, so it will never be overdone, even though small fruits and vegetables planted between the rows will more than pay the expense of the olives. But once they have come into bearing, there is an assured income for more than a lifetime, for I have pickled olives from trees planted by the padres 125 years ago, and they were as fine as olives from trees twelve years old."

Mrs. Ehmann is well past middle life, but in her work she has an interest which challenges the years.

MRS. M'LENEGAN.

Of her own choice, Carrie C. McLenegan would never have become an olive-grower and manufacturer of olive oil. But when her father died and left a fifty-five-acre olive orchard near San Jose, with no son to look after it, what could she do?

To be sure, she might have sold it; but twenty years ago, when the father died, the olive industry was not thriving and the ranch would probably not have brought anything like the price that those who had faith in California olives knew it should. Sentiment may have had some part in the decision, and a bit of pride that spurs daughters to prove that it really isn't a pity they were not sons.

Whatever her motive, Mrs. McLenegan did not hesitate. The orchard was in bearing, and she could not. The ranch was equipped with the primitive mill used in California by the padres, with the heavy stone wheel working in a cement basin, and the hempen bruscole to hold the pulp when it goes under the wheel. In this mill Mrs. McLenegan began where her father left off, making oil.

With some samples of it she went to New York, where she could have sold plenty of it if she had been willing to agree to adulterate it and put it up under a foreign label. This Mrs. McLenegan refused to do. In Philadelphia she sold two carloads, which she learned afterward had to be almost given away. Easterners were used to the insipid foreign olive oil and thought something must be wrong with oil that had a taste. It took years of time and mountains of perseverance and trainloads of oil to convert the East to the California product, and no one man or woman could have done it single-handed.

It had taken some missionary work to convert San Francisco to California oil, but when Mrs. McLenegan returned from that first discouraging eastern trip, she found that this work had been fairly started, and she was able to place her entire output for the next season in San Francisco. This solved her most immediate problem and gave her a chance to gradually improve the condition of her orchard by scientific cultivation.

By the time her trees were at their best the combined efforts of the big olive oil producers of Southern California had battered down the prejudice and reformed the taste of the East until consumers there, if not actually crying for California olive oil, were at least submitting to it. So Mrs. McLenegan sold under five-year contract the fruit of her orchard on the trees to one of the southern oil-makers, who had fought the big fight.

Had she been asked a few years before she would have said that a chance to sell the olives on the trees would have meant a chance for her to return to the books and the study which she gave up when it became necessary for her to undertake the responsibilities of an olive orchard and an oil press.

And this was the last thing she now thought of doing. She looked about and bought other olives and went on making oil. She had her plant and a market and she didn't want to let go of either. And all unconsciously she had developed a certain definite pride in doing well this work that was none of her own choosing.

At the edge of the great olive orchard stands the house, combining urban comforts and suburban luxuries, and beyond in the heart of the gray-green forest stands the oil factory, which in every nook and corner spells woman and woman's care. The process of crushing and pressing is the process of the padres, but after that there is a change to the modern method of washing and filtering the oil until it is a clear pale amber, and bottling and branding in the most approved manner.

Mrs. McLenegan has had a reason for not increasing the efficiency of her oil-making plant. Latterly she has been studying the trend of things, and she foresees the time, which Mrs. Ehmann also predicts, when California will scarcely be able to meet the demand for ripe olives, of which the State has practically a monopoly. This means a surer and bigger profit in pickling than in pressing olives; and in anticipation of the expiration of her contract for her own olive crop Mrs. McLenegan has been preparing for a shift from one branch of the olive industry to the other. It is an interesting commentary on her success that Mr. McLenegan has forsaken the railroad business to become a partner in the enterprises of the Pala olive grove.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] "A man's wife is very apt to tell him the plain truth, even though it is sometimes rather unwelcome. A case of this kind happened to a friend of mine during a campaign.

"It was the first public speech that this young man had made. He chose a good subject and he hoped his treatment of it had been adequate. As he and his wife drove home after the meeting he waited for her verdict, but she was silent.

" 'What did you think of my speech, dear?' he asked.

" 'Well,' she replied, 'what you said was all right, but it seemed to me you didn't make the most of your opportunities.' "

BY PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON.

Yet Another Delphic "Declaration of Independence" and Mo "New Freedom" With a Strange Device.

VIII.—LEGISLATION NOT CONDUCTED IN THE OPEN.

IT IS ONE of the happy circumstances of our time that the most intelligent of our business men have seen the mistake as well as the immorality of the whole bad business (the illegitimate connections between business and legislation.) The alliance between business and politics has been burden to them—an advantage, no doubt, upon occasion, but a very questionable and burdensome advantage. It has given them great power, but it has also subjected them to a sort of slavery and a bitter sort of subserviency to politicians. They are as anxious to be freed from bondage as the country is to be rid of the influences and methods which it represents. Leading business men are now becoming great factors in the emancipation of the country from a system which was leading from bad to worse. There are those, of course, who are wedded to the old ways and who will stand out for them to the last, but they will sink into minority and be overcome, and the rest have found that their old excuse—namely, that it was necessary to defend themselves against unfair legislation) is no longer a good excuse; that there is a better way of defending themselves than through the private use of money. That better way is to take the public into their confidence, to make absolutely open all their dealings with legislative bodies and legislative officers, and let the public judge as between them and those with whom they are dealing.

This discovery on their part of what ought to have been obvious all along points out the way of reform; for undoubtedly publicity comes very near being the cure-all for political and economic maladies of this sort. But publicity will continue to be very difficult so long as our methods of legislation are so obscure and devious and private. I think it will become more and more obvious that the way to purify our politics is to simplify them, and that the way to simplify them is to establish responsible leadership. We now have no leadership at all inside our legislative bodies—at any rate, no leadership which is definite enough to attract the attention and watchfulness of the country. Our only leadership being that of irresponsible persons outside the Legislatures who constitute the political machines, it is extremely difficult for even the most watchful public opinion to keep track of the circuitous methods pursued. This undoubtedly lies at the root of the growing demand on the part of American communities everywhere for responsible leadership, for putting in authority and keeping in authority those whom they know and whom they can watch and whom they can contsantly hold to account. The business of the country ought to be served by thoughtful and progressive legislation, but it ought to be served openly, candidly, advantageously, with a careful regard to letting everybody be heard and every interest be considered, the interest which is not backed by money as well as the interest which is; and this can be accomplished only by some simplification of our methods which will center the public trust in small groups of men who will lead, not by reason of legal authority, but by reason of their contact with and amenability to public opinion.

I am striving to indicate my belief that our legislative methods may well be reformed in the direction of giving more open publicity to every act, in the direction of setting up some form of responsible leadership on the floor of our legislative halls so that the people may know who is back of every bill and back of the opposition to it, and so that it may be dealt with in the open chamber rather than in the committee-room. The light must be let in on all processes of law-making.

Legislation, as we nowadays conduct it, is not conducted in the open. It is not threshed out in open debate upon the floors of our Assemblies. It is, on the contrary, framed, digested and concluded in committee-rooms. It is in committee-rooms that legislation not desired by the interests, dies. It is in committee-rooms that legislation desired by the interests is framed and brought forth. There is not enough debate of it in open house, in most cases, to disclose the real meaning of the proposals made. Clauses lie quietly unexplained and unchallenged in our statutes which contain the whole gist and purpose of the act; qualifying phrases which escape the public attention, casual definitions which do not attract attention, classifications so technical as not to be generally understood, and which every one most intimately concerned is careful not to explain or expound, contain the whole purpose of the law. Only after it has been enacted and has come to adjudication in the courts is its scheme as a whole divulged. The beneficiaries are then safe behind their bulwarks.

Of course, the chief triumphs of committee work, of covert phrase and unexplained classification, are accomplished in the framing of tariffs. Ever since the passage of the outrageous Payne-Aldrich tariff act our people have been discovering the concealed meanings and purposes which lay hidden in it. They are discovering item by item how deeply and deliberately they were deceived and cheated. This did not happen by accident; it came about by design, by elaborate, secret design. Questions put upon the floor in the House and Senate were not frankly or truly answered, and an elaborate piece of legislation was foisted on the country which could not possibly have passed if it had been generally comprehended.

And we know, those of us who handle the machinery of politics, that the great difficulty in breaking up the control of the political boss is that he is backed by the money and the influence of these very people who are intrenched in these very schedules. The tariff could never have been built up item by item by public discussion, and it never could have passed, if item by item it had been explained to the people of this country. It was built up by arrangement and by the subtle management of a political organization represented in the Senate of the United States by the senior Senator from Rhode Island, and in the House of Representatives by one of the Representatives from Illinois. These gentlemen did not build that tariff upon the evidence that was given before the Committee on Ways and Means as to what the manufacturer and the workingmen, the consumers and the producers, of this country want. It was not built upon what the interests of the country called for. It was built upon understandings arrived at outside of the rooms where testimony was given and debate was held.

I am not even now suggesting corrupt influence. That is not my point. Corruption is a very difficult thing to manage in its literal sense. The payment of money is very easily detected, and men of this kind who control these interests by secret arrangement would not consent to receive a dollar in money. They are following their own principles—that is to say, the principles which they think and act upon—and they think that they are perfectly honorable and incorruptible men; but they believe and that it is evident the people of the country do not believe: they believe that the prosperity of the country depends upon the arrangements which certain party leaders make with certain business leaders. They believe that, but the proposition has merely to be stated to the jury to be rejected. The prosperity of this country depends upon the interests of all of us and cannot be brought about by arrangement between any groups of persons. Take any question you like out to the country—let it be threshed out in public debate—and you will have made these methods impossible.

This is what sometimes happens: They promise you a particular piece of legislation. As soon as the Legislature meets, a bill embodying that legislation is introduced. It is referred to a committee. You never hear of it again. What happened? Nobody knows what happened.

I am not intimating that corruption creeps in; I do not know what creeps in. The point is that we not only do not know, but it is intimated, if we get inquisitive, that it is none of our business. My reply is that it is our business, and it is the business of every man in the State; we have a right to know all the particulars of that bill's history. There is not any legitimate privacy about matters of government. Government must, if it is to be pure and correct in its processes, be absolutely public in everything that affects it. I cannot imagine a public man with a conscience having a secret that he would keep from the people about their own affairs.

I know how some of these gentlemen reason. They say that the influences to which they are yielding are perfectly legitimate influences, but that if they were disclosed they would not be understood. Well, I am very sorry, but nothing is legitimate that cannot be understood. If you cannot explain it properly, then there is something about it that cannot be explained at all. I know from the circumstances of the case, not what is happening, but that something private is happening, and that every time one of these bills gets into committee, something private stops it, and it never comes out again unless forced out by the agitation of the press or the courage and revolt of brave men in the Legislature. I have known brave men of that sort. I could name some splendid examples of men, who, as representatives of the people, demanded to be told by the chairman of the committee why the bill was not reported, and who, when they could not find out from him, investigated and found out for themselves, and brought the bill out by threatening to tell the reason on the floor of the House.

Those are private processes. Those are processes which stand between the people and the things that are promised them, and I say that until you drive all of those things into the open you are not connected with your government; you are not represented; you are not participants in your government. Such a scheme of government by private understanding deprives you of representation, deprives the people of representative institutions. It has got to be put into the heads of legislators that public business is public business. I hold the opinion that there can be no confidences as against the people with respect to their government, and that it is the duty of every public officer to explain to his fellow-citizens whenever he gets a chance—explain exactly what is going on inside of his own office.

There is no air so wholesome as the air of utter publicity.

There are other tracts of modern life where jungles have grown up that must be cut down. Take, for example, the entirely illegitimate extensions made of the idea of private property for the benefit of modern corporations and trusts. A modern joint stock corporation cannot in any proper sense be said to base its rights and powers upon the principles of private property. Its powers are wholly derived from legislation. It possesses them for the convenience of business at the sufferance of the public. Its stock is widely owned, passes from hand to hand, brings multitudes of men into its shifting partnerships and connects it with the interests and the investments of whole communities. It is a segment of the public; bears no analogy to a partnership or to the processes by which private property is safeguarded and managed, and should not be suffered

COMMENTS OF "THE TIMES."

IT IS NOT true. It is absolutely and unqualifiedly not true that legislation at Washington ever was conducted in secret, until President Wilson, in connection with the complaisant Underwood, in the seclusion which the private office of the President grants, secretly created and compiled the tariff bill, which was then secretly considered in a Democratic caucus, secretly revised, that is to say, secretly indorsed in the Ways and Means Committee, and first opened to public knowledge when it was rammed down the throats of the Republicans, and swallowed with avidity by the pie-seeking Democrats in the House of Representatives.

We will have fallen upon evil times, President Wilson, when the policy you advocate shall prevail, and there shall no longer be any connection between business and legislation. It may be partially true that "the alliance between business and legislation has been a burden to business men," but it has been a burden that business men have borne with more or less cheerfulness, not merely for their own benefit, but for the welfare of the nation.

The laws which have been enacted without the counsel, solicited or unsolicited, of business men, have not been laws that were of great advantage to the land. The law that exempted the members of labor unions from obeying the Sherman act, an obedience that was expected of all others, was obtained from Congress and signed by you through the efforts of the Cockney anarchist, Sam Gompers, and hell is full of such business men as he is.

The law that violated the Democratic demand for a tariff for revenue only, by placing sugar and wool on the free list, was not framed or favored by business men, unless it can be shown that Mr. Wilson and Mr. Underwood were business men—a claim so unspeakably absurd that it would distort with a grin the features of a cast-iron bulldog.

The tariff law formulated and insisted upon by President Wilson, the passage of which by the House of Representatives has already extirpated two thousand millions of value on the stock exchanges of New York and London, was framed by the President in conference with the pliant Underwood, who sneezed when the President took snuff, and exhibited the roots of his gums when the President yawned. No business man was called into consultation over either the details or the general scope of the Wilson-Underwood bill.

Was there a banker or a borrower from banks in all the land who was consulted by President Wilson when he secretly framed the Federal reserve banking bill, the mere introduction of which in the House of Representatives, accompanied by the Presidential indorsement, caused the bonds of this great, rich, prosperous nation to be offered below par without a purchaser being found?

The Republican tariff which the President, with whip in one hand and pointing to the pie counter with the other, is kicking into the scrap heap of discarded legislation was a great and beneficent constructive economic law. Its foundation was laid when McKinley and his coadjutors extricated this nation from the swamp of industrial disaster into which Cleveland and a Democratic Congress had plunged it. It was built up by the Dingley and Payne-Aldrich additions and amendments into a perfect measure of economic legislation. It was constructed from start to finish in the full glare of publicity. Merchants and manufacturers and workers and farmers were consulted. There was nothing secret about it. It raised this nation from poverty to affluence, from Democratic adversity to Republican prosperity, from a depressed to a proud position among the nations of earth. It brought comfort to the homes, as well as wealth to the counting-rooms, and plenty presided upon the hearthstones of farmers and merchants. Sweat-browed labor o'er the red forge thanked it, and only the unpatronized bankrupt courts had occasion to complain of it.

And now comes the Princeton schoolmaster, whom the wrath of God, the dispensations of the devil, and the treachery of Roosevelt placed in a position that he is no more fit to fill than Lord North would have been to frame the American Constitution, and sells to the newspapers his old pre-election speeches filled with blatant soap-box rhetoric. He says that this tariff which he calls "outrageous was filled with concealed meanings and purposes and the people are now discovering, item by item, how deeply and deliberately they were deceived and cheated."

Mr. Wilson says: "We now have no responsible leadership at all inside our legislative bodies." That is hardly complimentary to Underwood, and Champ Clark, and Heflin of Alabama, and Jones of Virginia, in the House—Jones, who proposed to aid the President to "lose" the Philippines. It is less than complimentary to Bacon of Georgia, and O'Gorman of New York, and Newlands of Nevada, and Vardaman of Mississippi, in the Senate.

There were "responsible leaders" in the politics and statesmanship of the nation in both branches of Congress when the President was vainly seeking from the Carnegie fund a pension as a retired schoolmaster.

The President says that "nothing is legitimate that cannot be understood; that if you cannot explain it properly then there is something about it that cannot be explained at all." Well, it is up to him to properly explain his action in hitching a horse to the cart with its head where its tail ought to be, and pushing the vehicle instead of pulling it."

Section 7, article I of the United States Constitution provides that "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives." The Wilson-Underwood bill for raising revenue originated in your room in the White House, Mr. President—please explain.

Section 3, article II of the United States Constitution provides that the President "may recommend to the consideration of Congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. Did you, Mr. President, recommend to the "consideration" of Congress by message, as all your predecessors from Washington to Taft have done, such tariff legislation as you deemed necessary and expedient, or did you and Mr. Underwood frame a tariff law complete from enacting clause to terminus, and send it to Congress, not with a "recommendation to consider it," but with orders to pass it p.d.q., without altering a word? Please explain.

You say that you "hold the opinion that it is the duty of every public officer to explain to his fellow-citizens whenever he gets a chance—explain exactly what was going on inside of his own office."

What is going on now inside your office with respect to official appointments or disappointments on the recommendations of Senators who failed to vote as you direct on the tariff bill, or the Federal reserve bank bill? Please explain.

Do you know, Mr. Wilson, that there are a good many Democrats who are sorry that they voted for you? Since you have occupied the White House you have disappointed them. They believed you to be a statesman, and, instead of that, you are a common scold. They did not expect you to be very modest, but your assumption of peculiar modesty, peculiar public virtue and peculiar knowledge is unwarranted and wearisome.

The burden of your jeremiad under review is the alleged secrecy with which public business is conducted in Congress and in State Legislatures.

GRIFFIN AND STRACHAN BEAT OUR TENNIS STARS.

BY R. A. WYNNE.

CLARENCE GRIFFIN and John Strachan of San Francisco yesterday defeated Ward Dawson and Cliff Herd of Los Angeles in the finals of the twenty-sixth annual tennis tournament of the Pacific States Lawn Tennis Association for the doubles championship of the Pacific Coast and the right to represent this section in the sectional tournament at Lake Forest, Ill. The score was 7-5, 6-1, 7-5.

The match was the culmination of a brilliant tourney in which the most superb tennis ever produced on Southern California courts was brought out. Strachan and Griffin had very few hard matches in their bracket and, in fact, lost but one set throughout the entire three days' play. On the other hand Dawson and Herd had one of the longest and hardest trails ever covered by a doubles pair in any tournament.

Donnell and Dixon carried them to a hard-fought four-set match in the second round, and then Bacon and Young worried them through four terrific sets in the third round which they won by but a slight margin. Then came Marshal Ketchum of Santa Monica and Allyn Barber of Los Angeles, who fought Herd and Dawson a five-set gruelling struggle in the fourth round and twice had the score match point in the last and deciding set only to lose. This rocky road would have fagged out almost any other team in the tourney, but the pair seemed to thrive upon their gruelling work and when they entered the final match yesterday afternoon they were playing much better tennis than when they started Thursday morning.

CROWDED GALLERY.

A crowded gallery greeted the two teams as they trotted out onto the courts and began to shoot the balls back and forth. Each team seemed to realize the hard struggle that faced them and their drives and volleying were slower of pace but very accurate. Dawson and Herd overtopped their smaller opponents in size and weight as a tree towers over a bush. But whatever was lacking in stature was amply made up in the hitting ability of both Strachan and Griffin and their wonderful accuracy and team work.

Strachan opened the contest with his service. Dawson netted the first ball and Herd drove out with his first return of service. Dawson made a pretty drive of Strachan's service for an ace. Herd followed suit with a severe back-hand shot, passing Griffin in his alley. The fifth point resulted in a long rally. With Dawson lobbying beautifully and the northerners smashing hard and finally taking the point on a sharp cross by Griffin. Herd drove the next ball out for the first game. The four men were in full swing now. Dawson was serving and was placing them well.

This second game was long-drawn out, but Dawson finally won his game. Then Griffin won his service in rapid-fire order and the northerners also snapped the fourth game on Herd's service. Herd was serving hard but wild and made several double faults. With the score of 3-1 in favor of Strachan and Griffin, Herd and Dawson braced and Dawson took his service after a long-drawn out deuce game.

SOUTHERNERS AGGRESSIVE.

Then the southerners assumed the aggressive and annexed Strachan's hard service, tying the score at 3-all. The gallery was frantic at this stage as it looked as though the southerners were becoming stronger every moment.

The pace maintained in this first set was terrific. Time and again the northern team would rush in on returns and volley or would take the ball on the rising bounce, chopping it severely to cross-court. Herd and Dawson were driving beautifully and for the time had the wonderful youngsters from San Francisco on the defensive, forcing them to take the deep base-line and lob back.

The seventh game went to Strachan and Griffin and also the eighth, making the score 5-3 in favor of the northerners. Herd and Dawson braced wonderfully again and to the delight of the gallery which was evenly divided in its loyalty, took the next two games, making the set duece at 5-all. With the games 5-all the pace if possible became swifter. Strachan and Griffin were playing like mad and gave no rest to their larger opponents. Dawson and Herd began to lob and the former was placing them nicely near the base line. Herd was weak at the net, a place where he formerly was strong and netted many of the seemingly easy kills. There were several lucky shots in that balls striking the top of the net would hop over, throwing the receiver out of his stride. These lucky breaks were all for Strachan and Griffin and they took the first set 7-5.

Right here an unpleasant incident occurred which fortunately died out. Griffin made a remark to Dawson which seemed to be a sort of joking apology for the "scratch" shots of the last two games. Dawson snapped back with a remark and Griffin retorted angrily in turn and as the two stooped for a ball at the net just before the first game of the second

BERRY SIGNS NEW CATCHER.

Jimmy Byrnes, the former Washington catcher, has been signed by the Angels, and will help out behind the bat during the month or more that Brooks will be out of the game as a result of his pending operation.

Byrnes, who is now in the Northwest, is expected to join the club immediately.

Although Berry has a fine bunch of cripples on hand at the present time, he declines to offer any alibis in the defense of the recent reverses suffered by the team.

"We have just been getting licked, and that is all there is to it," said he. "The club was about due for a slump, and it came at a good time. They are still in the lead, and have plenty of time to recover the ground that they have lost."

PROTEST MAY BE MADE BY BUICK.

WATERMAN SAYS FIAT DID NOT CHECK AT FRESNO.

Drivers Have Until Monday to File Complaints, at Which Time the Winners Will Be Officially Given Out—Nine of the Racers Remain in Sacramento for Sunday Contests.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—Nine of the automobile racers who participated in the Panama-Pacific struggle between Los Angeles and Sacramento, yesterday, remained in Sacramento today. The others left for the return to Los Angeles or San Francisco bay points. The nine remaining will participate in a race meet at Agricultural Park Sunday.

Manager Walter Hempel announced today that the race would not be officially decided until Monday, when the returns will be checked up at Los Angeles. The racers have until that time to enter protests.

Thus far the only intimation of any of the awards as announced yesterday being protested, comes from E. S. Waterman, who drove the Buick that won second place. Waterman told Referee Bullard this morning that he intended to file a protest against the Fiat car that got first place, on the ground that driver Verbeck did not check in at the Fresno control.

NEW ATHLETIC.

BOSTON, July 5.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] It is announced that George Brickley, younger brother of the Harvard football star, has signed a contract with Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans. Brickley has played second place for Everett High School for the last four years. He led his league in batting the last season, having an average of over .500 and making a record of 12 home runs in 21 games.

OAKLAND, July 5. — V. Bochanoeur, driver, and J. Lime, mechanician of the Moon car, in the Panama-Pacific road race crashed into a street car near Hayward last night while returning to Oakland after finishing the race. The men dropped asleep from exhaustion after driving over 663 miles without a stop. They were bruised and shaken up. The car was badly wrecked.

RIVERS AFTER A RETURN FIGHT.

WILLIE RITCHIE SAYS "YES" IF PRICE IS RIGHT.

Joe Levy Says that Rivers May Have Been Tempted Too Much by the Bright Lights, but Denies that the Mexican Proved a Craven Quitter.

BY BERT SMITH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That trip down the primrose path which Rivers took in San Francisco had much to do with his defeat, according to Joe Levy. While the manager would not state that Joe had "laid down," he admitted that the bright lights had proved too great a temptation for his man and he is anxious for another fight. Levy is so anxious to get a return match on Labor Day for Rivers against the champion that he put the matter up to Ritchie this afternoon. The champion promised to meet Rivers in the event that his end of the guarantee suited him.

"POOR FIGHT," SAID LEVY.

"I don't think that Rivers was in the best condition," said Levy in explaining his desire. "I know that he was handled carefully for this match and that he attended to business at his training camp; but it was about as poor a fight as I ever watched him make.

"They say he isn't game and that he laid down. Well, I think that he is game enough and will be able to prove it if he ever gets another chance. All we want is the opportunity. I don't expect Ritchie to fight for nothing, but I think terms can be made that will suit him."

The wonderful thing about the bout was the attitude that Rivers assumed while he was taking the count. The moment he hit the floor, he got a bead on George Harting, the time-keeper, and never lost a full view of George after that. He seemed to follow the count as Harting tolled it off, and immediately after Harting had counted the fatal "ten," Rivers jumped to his feet full of strength and power and rushed to his corner.

Ritchie did not punish the challenger bady. Rivers had but a very slight swelling of the lips and a slighter abrasion under the left eye from Ritchie's punishment.

"Spider" Kelly and Tim McGrath, two of the greatest seconds the ring game has ever seen, received Rivers in the corner with smiles of scorn on their faces. After the fight Kelly and McGrath said that Rivers did the best he could, but that he tired, but there was no ring of sincerity in the stories of either Kelly or McGrath when they sang the praise of the Mexican.

SAN FRANCISCO WANTS ROAD RACE NEXT YEAR.

Bay City Men Regret that the Great Race Suggested by "The Times" Did Not Finish There Instead of in Sacramento—Bert Smith Discusses the Criticisms that Have Been Made—Shettler's Generous Service.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] San Francisco is going to fight to have the second Panama-Pacific road race finish within its gates next year.

This year, because of several difficulties which arose, the race was transferred from the Bay City to Sacramento. The San Franciscans are determined to have the race next year and inasmuch as the finish of the race is to be in the city which puts up the biggest purse, they are already making plans to offer a huge sum which will double the amount of prize mone ythis year.

Charles Soules,
Who refused to leave the wheel, driving the Cadillac from start to finish; he got fourth place.

Sacramento slipped something over on us when they grabbed the race this year, and the race was such a success that the San Franciscans have already started to raise the money which shall insure the racers' finishing at their city.

Instead of a road race management fighting for a right of way through Alameda, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties this coming Fourth of July, bids will be made for the second annual Panama-Pacific road race, according to the San Francisco men who reached here tonight from Sacramento. Both the Bay City and Los Angeles contingents tonight are agreed that another inter-city Fourth of July road race will be held in 1914. The question of the course is open.

A SUCCESSFUL RACE.

Success marked the Los Angeles-Sacramento road race. The reception at the capitol city was all that could be desired. In spite of the short time allowed the people of Sacramento in which to prepare for the race at least 10,000 spectators were grouped at the finish line or in the grand stand at the fair grounds. The race itself was the best of the kind ever held and the fact that only seconds separated several of the cars that finished in the money, made the race a thriller until the last place was decided.

The ban placed on the cars by the Supervisors of the three counties through which the racers had to pass in order to finish in San Francisco was perhaps due to the failure to make a bid for the right of way through Alameda, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties until a week before the race was held. These details could have been settled two months before the date of the race and the motor battle might then have been a Los Angeles-San Francisco road race.

Bright Prospects.

U.S.C. 'VARSITY SHOULD WIN WITH HIGGINS AS COACH.

Pat Is One of the Greatest American Authorities on Rugby—Is a Versatile Athlete, With Many Records, and Has Been Very Successful as a Leader — Hard Work and Snappy, His Slogan.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

THE south in general and the University of Southern California in particular, received a great boon when Pat J. Higgins signed up to coach the Trojan Rugby team for the season of 1912. It means a great deal to the game in this end of the State, where there is a battle royal on at the present time regarding the merits of the English and American games. With Higgins leading the now veteran U.S.C. squad, the fans of this section should be treated to some of that stuff that made the hair curl the last time that the famous Australian Waratahs played here.

Pat believes in speed and originality, especially the latter, and, take it from me, that is what wins football games, Rugby or American. There is another thing that speaks well for Pat, and that is, that he can get out and play himself. There will be none of this big talk from the side lines; it will be a case of Missouri all the way.

A GREAT REPUTATION.

Now, before going further into his methods and prospects, it would be well to dwell for a few lines on his past record, which will show why the statement at the opening of this screed was made.

It will be remembered that Pat horned into the spotlight some little time ago by introducing the Australian crawl among the swimmers of the south, after showing up everybody in that line, he jumped into the world of cricket and made the rest of the elite look like a bunch of selling platers running with a stake horse. Also, I might remark that Higgins has been elected on the all-American cricket team. But this is not all. When the Rugby bug took hold of the big northern varsities, Pat tore in with the Castaways, a local team, and ran circles around all opposed to him. His speed and agility formed an "eighth wonder" for a time, and it was soon conceded that he was one of the best in the business. In fact, he was twice chosen for the all-American Rugby team, since the game has been played in this country.

STARTED U.S.C. IN RUGBY.

Two years ago the Trojans took up the English battle and Higgins was elected to coach. He took a practically green bunch, whipped them into shape, and held the famous Stanford team to a 6-to-0 score, much to the disgust of the said Stanford bunch.

Besides the fact that it was the first year for the game here and in the university proper, Pat was not accorded the best support in the world at this time, and I think that he did wonders under the conditions that held at the time.

The following season he went to the University of Santa Clara. Here he started with men who knew a little of the game and who would run into a seething mass of hot lava if Pat said the word. His men trusted him absolutely, played for him like demons and, better than all, followed out his style of play to the letter. The result was, the Santa Clara braves walked all over the various teams of the State, defeating the first, second and third Stanford squads and the California freshmen and second teams. The State University varsity found it impossible to arrange a date with the Saints, but under the existing conditions we feel that too much hope could not have been held out for that splendid aggregation representing the Berkeley Bears.

PAINFUL DEMONSTRATION.

It is rather painful, but what Pat's team did to the Trojans last year was a shame, but all this goes to prove that he could deliver the goods. An Australian Rugby player said yesterday, when he heard that Higgins was to coach the university, that Pat knew as much as any three men in this country today about the inside points of the game.

As I have said before, Higgins believes in original Rugby, and this sort of thing is hard to beat in any game, and particularly so when it comes to Rugby.

The fact that Higgins was selected coach for the Trojan squad came as a surprise to all concerned. Last Wednesday, after an article appeared in one of the twilight sheets stating that Higgins had been secured by Manager Bovard, when Bovard had no idea that Pat would take the job, the two got together and talked the thing over and definite action was taken Friday by the committee of the university.

WAS GOING NORTH.

Prior to this time Higgins was slated for either Reno, to coach the University of Nevada, or to again lead the Saints. However, Pat said yesterday that he would rather coach a team in his home town than lead a regiment in some other part of the State.

In order to make the coming season a success and bring home winning honors for the south, absolute harmony must exist between all the factors of the squad, and there is no question but what there will be lots of it and "close harmony" at that. Pat knows how, but the men on the squad will have to do the playing. Selah!

Good Team.

KIRKWOOD OF UNIVERSAL STARTED ON CAMPAIGN.

"BUSINESS is business whether times are dull or prosperous," said George R. Kirkwood of the Eastern Motor Car Company yesterday. "We have positively nothing to complain of and when I told a competitor recently that we were making steady sales of the Universal truck it was a surprise to him.

"This is the truth. We have sold every one of the Universal trucks that we have been able to secure and now we are asking for an extra shipment, as we want two trucks at least each week. Our plans for this year are complete and our working force is lined up properly.

"We have a one-ton truck that will be a surprise when we are able to show it to our prospects. It is worm-driven and has a full capacity of one ton and is particularly speedy. There is a large market for just such a truck and I believe it will be possible to bring one out here in time for the fall trade, that is sure to be brisk.

"The commercial car market was never better than it is at the present. Of course I cannot say as to the touring car field, as we are not handling a touring car. This year we will establish a record with the Universal as we expect to sell enough of the trucks to thoroughly demonstrate their adaptability to the needs of the business here."

BIG WINTON DEAL.

W. D. Howard closed a deal last week for two Winton Six chasses for W. B. Todd of Pomona. One is to be equipped with an ambulance body and the other will have a hearse body. Todd purchased Wintons after a thorough investigation. It was necessary in his business that he have cars that were easy riding and absolutely reliable. Winton Sixes were also delivered to J. J. Vosberg and Fred Barman.

Halliwell's Long Tour.

C. E. Halliwell has been making some hurry-up trips through the country during the past two weeks. He went in the interest of Knight Tires, Jones speedometers and the Halliwell line generally. His longest trip was 610 miles through the southern part of the San Joaquin Valley. He made this trip in three and a half days and was kept hurrying along. On a special trip around the Kute he made eight towns in one day last week.

HARD RUBBER TIRES ON TRUCKS

GOODYEAR FIRST TO MOLD SOLES FOR HEAVY CARS.

Fifth-Avenue Coach Company Places First Order for Hard Tires As Early As Nineteen-Eight and the Method Is Transported from Europe to American Shores.

"Although motor truck tires of various types had been made for some years previous to 1908, it can be said that it was in that year that the American hard rubber base tire was born in the Goodyear plant," says C. W. Martin, manager of the motor truck tire department of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O.

"The first order for motor truck tires of the hard rubber base type was received on April 7, 1908, from the Fifth-Avenue Coach Company of New York. It called for four tires. It took until May 15 to make these tires and ship them.

"A year before this order came in, Mr. Litchfield went to Europe and investigated what was known as the Peter Union tire. At that time it was considered the best tire in Europe. On his return we experimented for nearly a year on the vulcanization of hard and soft rubber. Finally we devised two compounds and a cement that worked together. This experimental work brought out the successful way to vulcanize hard rubber to steel, and soft rubber to hard, so that the heaviest loads at the sharpest turns would have no effect upon the tire.

"Litchfield then set about building the first American hard rubber base tire, patterned after the Peter Union tire. And it was put upon the market in April, 1908.

"At that time our motor truck tire section consisted of two men and one or two molds. This is quite a contrast to the present equipment, which has a capacity of 1000 tires a day, built in a department employing 300 men. The growth of this department seems marvelous, when you stop to think that during 1913 over 60 per cent. of the trucks made will go out from the manufacturers equipped with Goodyear truck tires.

"Probably one of the main reasons for the growth of the Goodyear motor truck tire department was the establishment of the experimental engineering department. A number of engineers devote their entire time to study and experiment for the betterment of the truck tires.

"The experimental department later produced the metal base, solid demountable cushion, side flange, and block tires."

ADAIR BOOSTS FOR GOODYEAR.

George Adair, one of the best known automobile men in the State, is now with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Adair has been prominent in California as a race starter and driver. He holds a number of California road records and has been prominent in the industry for years.

Adair drove the Cadillac in the Beaudette. Alternating every three hours these men established an American record that still stands. They covered 1448 miles in twenty-four hours, an average of 60 1-3 miles an hour.

Adair knows California roads as few men and has been on several cars that established Los Angeles-San Francisco records.

He is now telling of the merits of Goodyear tires and is proving a valuable man for that company.

LIKE OUR INVENTION.

C. H. Stokes of the Stokes Sales Company will return from the East next week. He went to the eastern factories to introduce the Barnard gas generator and reports a highly successful mission. The generator made an impression upon the manufacturers of the East and it is expected that Stokes will return with a number of contracts from the leading makers.

The Barnard generator is a Los Angeles invention that permits the use of kerosene and distillate instead of gasoline.

After several years' effort on the part of automobile interests and good roads' advocates, the building of a boulevard connecting Indianapolis and Noblesville, Ind., is assured. The new boulevard will be more than twenty miles in length and sixty feet wide.

MOTZ TIRES SCORE IN SEASON'S OUTPUT

T. H. McGlehan, general manager of the Motz Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O., was a visitor to the Coast a short time ago, and returned to the East with a big boost for the western territory. He says the West is a wonderful country for the electric. The excellent roads throughout the Pacific Coast, especially California, afford bright prospects for this type of machine. With the good roads in this section the future of the electric is unlimited.

"The Western States along the Pacific Coast raise an enormous quantity of fruit," said McGlehan, in telling of his trip. "The movement of good roads not only makes the electric pleasure car popular but also the electric truck. There is a big field for them and a year's time will see the present number practically doubled. The rapidity with which the fruit can be delivered to shipping points is appreciated by the fruit growers as they realize that their product is of the perishable nature.

"The continuance of the good roads policy is bound to establish this section of the United States as the largest user and possibly producer of electric vehicles. It seems that many electric pleasure car and truck manufacturers, seeing the possibilities of the West, have under consideration assembling plants to build their cars in this section. This movement is bound to have a wonderful effect upon the already growing popularity of the solid cushion tire. I can see nothing but great progress for all motor vehicles through the entire Western States."

A motor tractor company is being organized in Springfield, O., with a capacity of $600,000. The company will build a tractor plow which will be operated by a gasoline engine as a part of the plow.

BUILT RIGHT!

Their mechanical principle is right. They are made to give hard service and lots of it. They are self-adjusting. You don't have to get out and tighten them every hundred miles. They check the rebound of the spring, and that's all. Also, they do their work effectively, and unvaryingly.
They hold your car close to the ground. They save wear and tear on engine, frame, tires, clutch, pocketbook. They add speed and effective traction.
Hamlin, Herrick and Nickrent, who won the three most important Phoenix races, won on Martin Shock Absorbers. Tetzlaff used them in his most sensational victory at Santa Monica.
They are race-winners for the racing car, they give ease, comfort, stability and satisfaction on the pleasure car.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] A heavy thunder storm doubtless prevented Boston from winning today's game from Philadelphia.

With the score 4 to 0 in favor of the visitors, rain fell in torrents as Boston finished the first half of the fifth inning and the game was called. The rain continued and the game was later declared off. Boston made all its runs in the first inning on five hits, a base on balls and a stolen base.

TIE GAME PLAYED.

CLEVELAND, July 5.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The Chicago-Cleveland game was stopped by rain in the seventh inning with the score a tie 5 to 5. Cullop, southpaw recruit, who pitched three innings yesterday, started the game for Cleveland but was driven from the box in the fourth inning, being replaced by Kahler. Off these two pitchers Chicago scored five runs in the fourth. Score:

flashes of brilliant fielding by the Tigers, the same standing out in vivid contrast to the rather slovenly work of their opponents.

LIVELY FOURTH.

Hosp and McDonnell qualified for a place under the main canvas in the fourth. Zacher bounced a grounder to Hitt's left. Hosp was on top of the ball in two hops and a jump, and McDonnell, leaning out until he looked longer than the Panama-Pacific road race, forked the wide throw with his gloved hand.

Killilay walked Litschi, the first man to face him in the fourth, and McDonnell didn't do a thing but score him with a double to right center. Kreitz intent on sacrificing, bunted to Hetling and was entirely safe when Augustus threw to first in a manner to pull Ness up in the air at the psychological moment.

Hitt bounced the ball to Ness in a slow and tantalizing manner, and Killilay ran over to cover. Roy, although he has never gained much fame as a sprinter, actually beat the play at first, and was rewarded with a base hit. He also had the satisfaction of seeing McDonnell score on the play. Carlisle popped to Hetling.

Kane smashed one toward left. Augustus lunged over, made a frantic stab and felt the ball nick his elbow. The ball never got beyond Cook, who was backing Hetling, but it was deflected and slowed down sufficiently to enable Kane to run it into a double.

Kreitz scored on the drive and Hitt waddled to third. Bayless scored Hitt with a fly to Zacher, Roy arriving in rather a winded condition as a result of the exciting time which he had been having on the bases.

O'Rourke retired the side with a fly to Zacher.

BAD SEVENTH.

The Tigers held another field-day in the seventh. Hosp filed to Zacher, by way of lulling the enemy into a false sense of security. Litschi then loped to first ahead of a drive to Cook. Killilay hit McDonnell amidships. Ness lost track of a pop-up by Kreitz just back of first, and was lucky to lay a hand on the ball. Said muff filled the bases. Manager Mitze claimed that it was an infield fly, and that Kreitz was retired automatically, catch or no catch, but their royal highnesses, the umps, declined to consider the matter in that light. Hitt filed to Coy, Litschi scoring after the catch.

Carlisle sent McDonnell and Kreitz home with a shot to center. Walter then proceeded to do a little running wild. He stole second, stopped just long enough to flap his wings and hiked blithely and safely to third. Kane leaned against the ball for a drive between Schirm and Zacher. The latter managed to overtake the ball.

Kane, not knowing this, considered the clout good for a home run. He had not passed third ten feet before the ball was in Hetling's hands, and Johnny found the sphere waiting for him at the plate.

LOW-PRICED CARS DO GREAT STUNTS.

BUICK, FORD AND OVERLAND ARE AMONG THE HEROES.

Verbeck's Time in Winning Fiat Is a New Record Over Roads that Are as Varied as Any in the United States—Winner Is to Receive $5000—Race to Be Annual Affair.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While Frank Verbeck and Harry Ham, driving a forty-five horsepower Fiat, were the first to finish in the Panama-Pacific Road Race yesterday, and made the best time over the 443.6 miles of varied highways from Los Angeles to Sacramento, the remarkable showing of low and medium priced cars is regarded as the big surprise of the event.

From the standpoint of an individual performance, however, and in comparison with the time for other long speed tests, the forty miles per hour and more averaged by Verbeck and Ham shines forth as a new record.

TOUGH ROAD.

The road between Los Angeles and Sacramento is about as varied in type as any stretch of similar length that could be found in the United States; yet they came over it at the average rate of 40.25002 miles per hour, according to the findings of Ed Dalton, one of the official timers, with a mishap no greater than the loss of a bundle of tires and the rack that carried them.

But the forty horse-power Buick, a car of 1910 model, driven by E. S. Waterman of Fresno, a student in the University of California, and not a professional driver, made the remarkable showing of the race. The Buick ranks as one of the lowest priced cars in the race, to which class also belongs the Ford and the Overland, both of which finished within the money.

Waterman believes that he is entitled to first place in the race.

ONE WINNING SPURT.

Verbeck and Ham made their winning spurt between Fresno and Merced, gaining a good lead, which ultimately brought them victory, after their alleged violations of the rules are said to have taken place.

The revised list of $12,500 in prizes is as follows, but added prizes are expected:

First, $5000; second, $2500; third, $1250; fourth, $750; fifth, $625; sixth, $575; seventh, $525; eighth, $475; ninth, $425; tenth, $375.

Hence the decision on the race will make a difference of at least $2500 with Waterman.

Elated at his victory, Verbeck let drop a remark shortly after the finish that he expected to be married shortly. A Pasadena belle is said to be the racer's choice.

The success of the race practically has established it as an annual event, with Sacramento as the terminus. The officials expressed their satisfaction with the manner in which the local committees had made arrangements at the eleventh hour and asserted that the stretch of road from Stockton to Sacramento was the best policed along the entire route.

WITH "THE TIMES" SCOUT CAR ALONG THE TEJON.

A Graphic Account of the Adventures of a "Times" Man and a Photographer Who Followed the Racers Through the Mountains in the Night—The Cars that Had Accidents Along the Way.

BY ADISON HUGHES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Drivers of the racing machines which successfully negotiated the 145-mile course from Los Angeles to Bakersfield over the San Francisquito and Tejon canyons are unanimously of the opinion that as a race track the route is the most formidable ever laid out in America. It is unnecessary to dwell on the expressions of opinion made by the racers who fell by the wayside en route here. Silence speaks for them, nor does their vanquishment detract from the fact that though their cars did not stand up the losers experienced the same physical and mental strain underwent by the winners and more.

The Times scout car made the run this far in actual running time of 6hrs. 10m. Litchfield, the photographer, and the driver, first-water amateur motorists, who scarcely know the difference between a spark plug and a differential, are beginning to realize what marathon racing over such roads must have been to the heroes of that contest. It is true that many motor cars cross the canyons every week, but they drive safely and surely. There is a hard-to-be appreciated difference between doing the 145 miles across mountain and desert in the average time of twelve hours, as made by the ordinary traveler, and speed driving. One drives cautiously with many precautionary stops at chasm brinks, the other, to use a hackneyed, but most expressive phrase, flirts with death from the start.

AT CHANDLER'S HOTEL.

The Times scout car made seven stops, time of which is, of course, subtracted from the actual running time. The first was at Chandler's hotel, where we awaited the passing of cars which checked there before dawn, at a point midway between Chandler's and the Tejon, where a deserted Chalmers lay with a broken steering knuckle, at the entrance to the Tejon, where two racing machines were laid up, one being towed by a touring car and another with tire trouble, again to give road to a belated racer, at Lebec, where a penny steel pin in our timer caused us a long delay, at the ridge of the drop to the desert, where a Perfix that had toppled over the canyon, was being repaired, and on the desert where Tom Davis and Bob Blair were found.

We left Los Angeles at 10 o'clock, Thursday night, arriving at Chandler's at 12:34, after what was to us a hard, nerve-racking drive. Litchfield looked at his watch by flashlight after passing the Sheriff's patrol at the San Francisquito control. We saw that the first racer had just about started from Los Angeles. We had no idea what time he would make and fearing to block the course, we ripped her wide open and prayed. Imagination that Soules in the Cadillac was already at our back, forced us on.

NERVE SHATTERING.

It was a long while after our arrival at Chandler's, however, that he really did come, but the experience, now that it's over, was worth the nerve shattering.

When the dawn began to break and Litchfield could neither take flashlight or daylight pictures, a report reached us that there had been a smashup near the Tejon, we took the chance of racers overtaking us and shot away toward Bakersfield.

At Lebec the tiny but essential pin in our timer broke and we were laid up for three hours until a good Samaritan sent us on our way again, and still the racers had not all passed. We had time to make up.

A denizen of Lebec opined that the only train that would get our photos into Los Angeles in time left Bakersfield at noon. We got a mile, then a rock and a hole in a tire.

WRECKED PERFIX.

Again delay, the stop by the wrecked perfix and the helpless Chalmers on the desert, but it was on the half hundred mile stretch of arid waste we made up lost time. Our average for the trip was about 28 miles an hour, the long spurts being done at about 70, and in a rackety but sturdy Model X Oldsmobile which had been through a dozen wrecks.

It is remarkable that the machine held together. Had we known the road that we were going up against we never would have tackled the scout job. All along the route we passed powerful big reinforced racing machines laid up with this or that wrong. But still the Olds went on, her antiquated engine working like new, her old frame bounding several feet into the air over bumps but coming down intact.

FOUR MACHINES OUT.

Four machines which went out of the race before the finish left Bakersfield tonight for the trip home. Broken axles, steering gears and wheels were repaired at the "M. & F." garage, race drivers' headquarters here.

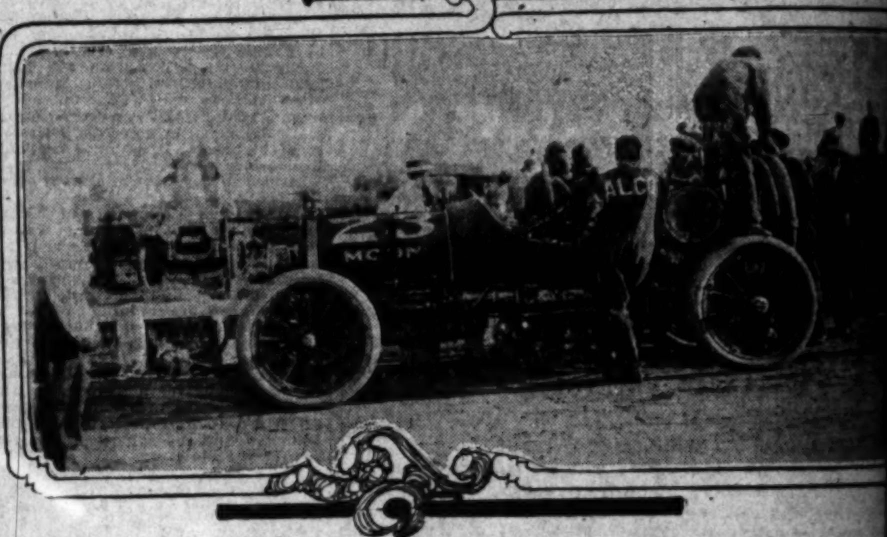
Manager J. M. Dunn stated tonight that he had given the drivers of the different entries storage service, 5000 gallons of gas and 1000 gallons of oil free.

Tom Davis and Bob Blair in the Chalmers, who were left on the desert yesterday, hiding from the sun in a car with a broken steering gear, put in all day working with two mechanics and started to Merced at sundown, disappointed but ready for the next big race. They made the best time to Lebec.

ACCIDENTS.

The Stearns with Cody at the wheel and Brown in the mechanician's seat, also started for Los Angeles about the same time. They broke the front axle after leaving the Tejon Canyon. It began sagging while they were between Lebec and Chandler's, but despite this they raced on until the tops of the wheels caved to the radiator.

The Knox 46 left for Los Angeles earlier in the day, a cylinder head which had blown off having been replaced, but too late to keep them in the running. Ruckstel in the Maricopa Mercer, who lost a wheel, also left Bakersfield tonight.



Checking in at dawn, Bakersfield.

made the trip to San Francisco in November the entire populace of the Bay City, and the men vitaly concerned in the race, were anxious and willing to do all in their power to make an intercity motor race a possibility. The plan was agreed upon. Prominent men of this city passed favorably on the proposition to hold a race from Los Angeles to San Francisco this year, from San Francisco to Los Angeles in 1914, and from Los Angeles to San Francisco for the world's fair in 1915. These same men are keenly disappointed that San Francisco was not the goal of the fifty fast racing cars yesterday, in a motor fight that was a thrill from the second the cars were sent away from Los Angeles until ten had finished in place at Sacramento.

Those who have been in close touch with the plans for the race claim it was a mistake not to allow San Francisco and a San Francisco man to manage the race at this end of the line. Another mistake was to announce the purse at $25,000 and then chop down the prize money. This, of course, concerns only the drivers and the committee will be busy enough with them.

SHETTLER'S SERVICE.

Another complaint is that the race cost too much money. This is unfair. Here is the situation as it existed when Leon T. Shettler was appointed chairman of the road-race committee.

The first mention of the race was made in The Times. When everything was lined up for the race the matter was put up to the Western Automobile Association. The Times waiving any voice in the management of the race. Then Chairman Shettler was appointed and he worked without a cent of compensation for his three months of hard labor.

There were many trying situations. Shettler had to face all the problems.

Complications came in San Francisco. Walter Hempel was sent as a member of the road-race committee to this city. The right of way was lost and his time was spent in vain as far as the finish of the race was concerned.

Harold Ostrom was the field manager. He did well in the middle counties but had no influence in the larger cities. Paul J. C. Q. Derkum was the also ran of the race, and these men under the guidance of Chairman Shettler, did the best they could.

When everything is reviewed, however, the race was a success and another motor battle will be held this coming year. The question that vitally concerns every one is the terminus of the race. Will it be Sacramento? If the men of the capital city have their way another Los Angeles-Sacramento race will be held.

There is rivalry already between Sacramento and San Francisco. The race will be held and the purse will be twice as large. San Francisco is already getting in her work for the race and the contest in 1914 promises to be as great and perhaps greater than the race that has now gone down into history as of national interest to the motor world.

Still at It.

NEW AUTO CLASSIC RUN IN ARIZONA.

BOB TRUMAN, SEVENTEEN-YEAR BOY, WINS RACE.

Eighty-six-Mile Stretch Is Covered in Two Hours, Nineteen Minutes and Winner Is an Easy First. Wild Bill Tremaine Was Disqualified Under the A.A.A. Rules.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A new automobile classic was started today from Prescott over the loop course twice run, a total distance of eighty-six miles. Wild Bill Tremaine of Phoenix, whose speed in the Los Angeles-Phoenix races has given him fame, was disqualified under American Automobile Association rules, but his old Pope-Hartford desert machine, with Bob Truman, 17 years old, at the wheel, led the six entries handily and finished in 2h. 19m. 37s.

The first lap was made in 65m. 12s., including time taken in losing a tire near Del Rio. The second lap was slower, with no other cars in sight. Truman's mechanician, Dan Durach of Phoenix, not only coached the young driver to victory, but made the last loop holding up a broken running board, one arm dreadfully burned from contact with an exhaust pipe. At the finish he was taken to a hospital for treatment. All other cars were distanced, all on account of accidents, mainly to tires.

The same course was covered in the motorcycle race in 58½m. Paul Keating leading, with Roy Belden twenty seconds behind. Five entries finished.

Other features of the day were cowboy contests of the highest class, participated in by the crack riders of the State, winding up the celebration of an annual festival designated "Frontier Day."

BIRDS CAUGHT OUT AT SEA.

English Sailors Sometimes Trap Rare Specimens and Gulls Follow Ships Across the Atlantic and Back.

[London Chronicle:] The ship's barber of the Atlantic liner Minnetonka has found a new and profitable pastime in catching wandering birds during the voyage across the Atlantic and selling them on his arrival in port. All sorts of birds come aboard at sea, he declared, and many of the rare specimens find a ready sale.

Sales Record.

CHALMERS WINNERS READY FOR SEASON'S HONORS.

THE Chalmers factory has announced the winners in the national Chalmers sales contest, which ended June 15. Since March 1 more than 300 Chalmers salesmen have been competing for prizes for the best individual sales record. The towns of the country were divided into five classes, according to population and the number of Chalmers salesmen in each. The prize for each class was the same, $100 in gold or a gold watch.

The five winners as announced were: Class A, which consisted of the smaller towns, O. L. Blake, Keene, N. H.; Class B, M. W. Carroll, Jr., Waco, Tex.; Class C, Willard R. Sweet, Providence, R. I.; Class D, S. E. Murphy, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Class E, Harry N. Pyke, New York. All selected gold watches which were engraved, announcing the possessors as the premier Chalmers salesmen of 1913 in their classes.

An interesting trip has just been completed by E. B. Hansen, vice-president and general manager of the Exposition Tour Sales Company, and who is also a member of the San Francisco Ad Club. Accompanied by J. A. Clairmonte he has just finished a remarkable run from San Francisco to Baltimore, the entire distance being covered in eighteen days. The last lap of the 1430 miles from Omaha to Baltimore was made in seventy-one hours actual running time. The Chalmers cars figured in this tour.

"Our freedom from mechanical troubles was noteworthy, not one encountered during the entire trip," said Hansen, after the trip was completed. "We didn't have even a puncture or a tire change. Our machine was equipped with Firestone Non-Skids. Our only trouble was an unfortunate collision, at Stoyestown, Pa., due to the inability of a fair woman chauffeur to stop her machine on a steep grade. Both machines were smashed and it took us thirty-six hours to make our repairs."

R. D. Barr, the Firestone chief,

All in the Legs.

TENNIS PLAYERS NEED TO BE VERY STRONG MEN.

THE ordinary man, who has neither played tennis nor given the subject any consideration, does not have the slightest comprehension what extraordinary strength, endurance and power are necessary for fast tennis. Maurice McLaughlin is amateur champion because he won more contests than anyone else, but he is not the best tennis player by any means. He has been played off his feet by at least two other men of superior skill, but at the end of the matches his strength and endurance told, and he won through the physical collapse of his opponents.

Doherty, probably the greatest all-round tennis player the game has known, always claimed that the game was "all in the legs," and he ran twelve miles daily over country roads at a clip that no prize fighter could follow, to keep in trim.

Larned's strength held the championship for seven years. His father died a year ago and left him a fortune. He let up on training, saw a bit of the world, and was promptly displaced by the powerful McLaughlin. The latter has muscles over the hips such as Myers, the famous runner, exhibited. They look like huge trunk straps.

He purposely forces the play into fast and driving shape, because he knows that after a half-hour he will be fresh, while his opponent will be all in. His devotion to training is absolute, and for six years he has never let down. There are no winters in California to interfere with his year-round exercising and practice. Against some of the shrewd, strategic, resourceful and inventive "generals" of the game, McLaughlin goes down, but only for eight or ten games.

Then his wonderful physique and doughty courage begin to tell. No man ever saw him finish with even a trace of weariness. He endures and he fights. If his skill increases and his strength holds he will be a world's champion.

AUTO CLUB SCORES.

Columbia Park, in Peoria, Ill., has been leased with privilege to buy, by the Peoria Automobile Club, and citizens of the town have been congratulating the club ever since. The park is a beautiful one, and can be easily improved. A $30,000 clubhouse will be erected, and Peorians are hoping that by next year the attractions of the place will be such as to draw motorists to the town from a large radius.

STUDEBAKER SON'S GIFT.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mayer of Cincinnati several days ago purchased a Studebaker "35," which they gave to their son, Earl Mayer, as a present upon his graduation from Ohio Wesleyan. A similar gift was received by Percy McFadden, son of W. P. H. McFadden, of Beaumont, Tex. Both were delighted with the choice of their parents.

Farewell.

CROSS-COUNTRY ON OUR ROUTE.

Pierce in Cutting Starts Over Old Santa Fe Trail.

Cross-Continental Divide on This Long Tour.

Mother Kisses Son Good-by as Tourer Starts.

Sterling Pierce, in a Cutting "Forty" left The Times office at noon Tuesday, July 1, for transcontinental run that will take him across the Rockies and over the Continental Divide. He is accompanied by F. W. Tassell, and the two are driving a roadster stripped and ready for anything that the mountains or desert has to offer.

With a sign stating that he will follow The Times special route over the Old Santa Fe Trail, Pierce drove up to First and Broadway, where his mother, Mrs. W. H. Pierce, and his father, were waiting to bid him the right kind of a farewell. With the throng crowding about the car, young Pierce kissed his mother good-by, and then pulled out, and shot away up North Broadway.

Grouped at the start was Mrs. Tassell and her baby, the two, who will watch as anxiously as any of the ones left behind for news of the transcontinental tourers. The Cutting was escorted out of town by a touring car, also a Cutting, driven by Charles Spitz. Mrs. Pierce and Mrs. Tassell, with the two small babies, rode in the car, and A. M. Forer, also of the Cutting agency, was one of the party.

This trip was arranged by Pierce as an outing for himself and Tassell. He was told that the roads are particularly bad in several places, but he had no fear of the consequences and with his car prepared for the worst, he came to the starting point and was sent away by his father over a route he has never travelled before. He showed his nerve by starting into the wilderness, but says he will follow The Times special route all the way.

The first stop was made by Pierce at Palm Springs. His next point was Yuma, and from Yuma he drove yesterday to Phoenix. Now he is prepared to strike into the high hills and he will cross the mountains in New Mexico, where he will strike the Continental Divide. His goal is Denver, Colo. He expects to be absent about six weeks.

CHICAGO PLAN BEST.

Chicago does not like Philadelphia's plan for parking automobiles in the middle of the street instead of at the curb. The scheme was put into operation recently, and on aristocratic Michigan boulevard, much to the disgust of the dwellers on the lake front. The Chicago Automobile Club has protested to the city and obtained the support of the Mayor, and so it is probable that the middle of the street plan will be abandoned. It is stated that no less than 170 damage suits are now in the courts as a result of cars running into the stationary machines.

Participation of Victor Hemery, considered one of the best drivers in Europe, in the Chicago Automobile Club's road races at Elgin August 29 to 30, is assured. Elgin, this year, promises to be the most interesting of the series of races that has been run over the Kane county circuit. Already many entries are in sight. Ralph de Palma, holder of the trophy, will defend his laurels, while Ralph Mulford is expected to contest.

PAIGE-DETROIT TEST.

A Paige-Detroit "36" five-passenger car belonging to Dr. J. D. Nusbaum, was used about the streets of Indianapolis last week in making a test of the doxameter, the new fuel control device lately invented by John A. Doxey. Motor spirits were used instead of the gasoline and Dr. Nusbaum, who had never seen the device before, drove his own car. On the first test the engine was throttled down to its minimum speed, while the car was run eight miles an hour. Without touching the fuel supply, the doxameter was opened, and in a distance of 300 yards the speed of the car rose to sixteen miles an hour, a 100 per cent. gain in engine efficiency. Later, with the hand throttle slightly open the Paige-Detroit moving at ten miles an hour, the doxameter was again opened and the car lifted in speed to nineteen miles an hour, without consuming additional fuel, a gain in efficiency of 90 per cent.

Tennis Finals.

set words again passed between, and the judges and referees held their breath for fear of serious developments which would have been the first time on any tennis court during a tournament in Western America.

The incident seemed to pass but it had evidently upset Dawson and Herd for they "lammed" ball after ball out and drove ball after ball into the net. The tennis in this set was very inferior to that of the first and Strachan and Griffin seemed to toy with the southerners. The northerners won the set 6-1, much to the disgust of the gallery, who had been keyed up by the excellent contest of the first set and were disappointed in the showing of the second.

PEACE AGAIN.

The third set opened with Herd and Dawson talking to each other jokingly and promising to go after their opponents. They opened strongly and in return some idle balls Dawson nonchalantly addressed Griffin as "Peck" and swiftly came back the pleasant "All right Ward." There was subdued applause by those close to grasp the significance of the patched-up difference and then again tennis of a high order was played.

Strachan and Griffin took the first game of the third set but the southern team returned to the battle with a will and slowly but surely crept up until they had annexed the next four games straight, giving them their first lead of 4-1. The gallery was wild. Ladies called out, "well played," and men were slapping each other on the back as the southern team, playing like a well-oiled machine, ploughed through the defense of the northerners seemingly at will.

Herd was smashing perfectly and Dawson also was driving hard for many an ace. In lobbying Dawson was accurate and kept Strachan and Griffin on the base line. It looked as though the tide had turned and that Dawson and Herd were coming back and would take the set.

THE SIXTH.

In the sixth game Strachan won his service at 15, Herd netting three straight, while Dawson batted one against the back screen. Then Dawson took the service, but the northern team had seized a hold of affairs and would not be denied.

They were all over the court and Strachan seemed to bounce around like a rubber ball. They stroked the ball from every possible angle and woe betide any opening no matter how small, that Dawson and Herd left for them. Like a shot from a rifle would come the ball and it was an ace. By these means Strachan and Griffin crept up until the score was 4-all and then slowly crept ahead to 5-4, and many thought the match was over. Dawson and Herd braced slightly here and took the next game making the third set 5-all at duece.

The gallery saw an opportunity for the southern teams to come back and take the match and they heartily applauded every shot. But the northerners would not be denied. They saw victory within their grasp and they played air-tight tennis.

Herd lost his service and the score was 6-5, and Strachan took the service for the last and deciding game. He had been serving a ball with a great deal of overspin on it, but not as fast as he has become famous for. In this last game, however, he dropped all chop or stroke to his service and drove the ball like a rifle bullet, taking the game at love and winning the match and title.

EARL COOPER IN STUTZ WINS TACOMA TROPHY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

Earl Cooper Stutz.

TACOMA, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Earl Cooper of Los Angeles, in a Stutz, won the 200-mile Potlach trophy race this afternoon, making the second victory of the day for a Stutz machine. Bob Burman, in a Keaton, moved up at the last and finished second. Latta, in an Interstate, was third, and Endicott, in an Endicott special, fourth. Cooper's time was 2h. 41m. 32s.

Cooper is the hero of the day. He was wildly applauded at the finish by 15,000 speed-mad racing enthusiasts. Burman and Tetzlaff were favorites. It was not believed that Cooper could do better than finish third or fourth.

The Potlatch won by Cooper was a 200-mile race for a perpetual challenge trophy presented by the Seattle Carnival Association and a purse of $3500 distributed $1800, first; $650, second; $350, third; $800 divided among the three cars of smallest displacement finishing above fourth place.

The entries were:

Fiat (Tetzlaff,) Endicott Special (Endicott,) Ballard Special (Thomas,) Stutz (Cooper,) Tulsa (Hughes,) Locomobile (Welch,) Apperson (Nichols,) Keaton (Burman.)

A dispute over the back stretch tire control caused hard feelings and delayed the start. Bob Burman, to get out of carrying tires, sent two sets to the back stretch. Other drivers wanted to carry tires on their machines.

PARSONS WON INTERCITY.

Parsons of Seattle, driving his red Stutz, won with ease the Intercity century race this morning, gaining the perpetual challenge trophy and a cash prize of $750. His time for the 100-mile grind was 1h. 33m. 53s.

Cameron, driving a white Stutz, was second, but was beaten by nearly two lengths. Hanson's Hudson Special, the Tacoma-built car, took third prize, and Leybold's Buick was fourth. Staley, driving a Studebaker, had the hardest luck, driving a consistent race. In his twenty-seventh lap Staley broke down, when it looked as though he had third place cinched. He had only two more laps to go. The other purses were $350, second; $200, third, and $150, special bonus. Thomas, Nichols and Barnes did not finish.

Weather conditions were ideal. Parsons's average time was 64½ miles an hour. Staley hit and killed a big dog, the accident costing him third place. Speed trials and the 250-mile Montamarathon comprises the Sunday afternoon programme.

Far in the Lead.

M'DONALD OF BOSTON BEST NATIONAL HITTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5. — C. McDonald, the Boston National star hitter, has raised his batting average to .432 according to unofficial figures published today. His lead is now practically eighty points over his nearest rival. Only five of his thirty-eight hits so far have been for extra bases—three triples and two doubles. Crandall of New York is next in the National with .353, Cravath of Philadelphia with .346; Hyatt of Pittsburgh .341; Daubert of Brooklyn .338, and Wingo of St. Louis .336.

Cobb is slowly gaining on Jackson for the leadership in the American league. Jackson has an average of .404 and is about to make the first century in either league for his hits up to the date of compiling the figures for the week show he has made ninety-seven hits. Cobb's average is .397. Tris Speaker, who, like Jackson and Cobb, is a southerner, ranks third in the American with .371. E. Collins of Philadelphia is fourth with .352; D. Murphy, Philadelphia, has .348 and Blanding of Cleveland .346.

Milan's stolen bases now number forty-one. His nearest rival in the American league is E. Collins with twenty-seven. Lobert of Philadelphia, Doyle of New York and Myers of Boston are tied for the Nationals' base stealing honors with twenty-one each.

FAST, CLOSE GAME.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Mormons, today, in a ninth-inning batting rally, defeated the Barbarians in a fast contest and one of the best games of the series. The score was 3 to 2. It was a victory for the visitors up to the last frame when several safe hits turned the tic

Charley Moore has an abscess in [illegible] head, and in addition to this his [illegible] physical condition is very low. [illegible] may not be able to finish the season.

Clarence Brooks expects to undergo an operation next week, and if he [illegible] to the knife may be out of [illegible] game for weeks.

Something has happened to Charley [illegible] stomach. A doctor told [illegible] that he had the honor of having a slight attack of ptomaine [illegible]. However that may be, [illegible] has been of little use to the [illegible] since the club went north.

[illegible] Slagle is on the shelf with [illegible] shoulder, the same having been [illegible] in a collision with Ken-

[illegible] things, and a general slump [illegible] work of the men who are not [illegible], account in a large measure [illegible] indifferent showing of the [illegible] since they launched their [illegible] invasion.

[illegible] returned Thursday to consult a specialist. It is not believed [illegible] the injury to his shoulder will [illegible] him out of the game for more [illegible] a week.

"Several of the men on the club [illegible] out of commission, or nearly so," [illegible] Slagle, "while the team collectively is in a slump. This was to have been expected. Every club, as a rule, [illegible] at some point in the race. The slump really came at a fortunate [illegible]. The Angels have time to recover from it, get their second wind [illegible] make a strong finish."

Moore will endeavor to stick it out [illegible] end of the race, but his friends [illegible] doubt his ability to do this. He has been troubled with a series of [illegible], the result of having been [illegible] "beaned" early in his career. [illegible] recently underwent an examination by a physician, and the latter [illegible] the belief that nothing [illegible] of a surgical operation would [illegible] a permanent cure. Moore [illegible] to postpone this until next winter, but at the present time he is playing [illegible] on his nerve.

With Brooks in a bad way, Berry [illegible] endeavoring to bring about the return of Dutch Hoffman from Fresno. [illegible] meantime the Angels have [illegible] up an "unknown" in San [illegible] to help out behind the bat [illegible] of emergency.

[illegible] has practically closed with [illegible] York for Charley Sterrett, the [illegible] Princeton catcher. All that [illegible] to consummate the deal is [illegible] Sterrett to signify a willingness to [illegible] the Coast. Maier and Hogan [illegible] received a wire from Frank [illegible] accepting their offer for Sterrett, and this settles the thing as far [illegible] two clubs are concerned. Sterrett seems to be a bit timid about venturing this far West. There are a lot [illegible] old heads awaiting him out this [illegible].

Manager Mitze of the Oakland club [illegible] to be reinforced by the arrival [illegible] new men within the next [illegible].

Yesterday he closed a deal with [illegible] for Pitcher Lohman, and the [illegible] was purchased with the understanding that he would leave for [illegible] Angeles at once. Pitcher Pruitt, [illegible] from New Bedford, in the New [illegible] League, is supposed to be [illegible] way here. The same holds [illegible] of Outfielder Clemmons, secured [illegible] the Davenport club in exchange [illegible]. Mitze will have to release [illegible] of men when the newcomers [illegible], but he has not reached a point [illegible] he is willing to announce the [illegible] of those slated for the blue [illegible].

[illegible] Stinson, yes, the same hefty [illegible], last season, played an occasional pinch-hitting role for the [illegible], believes that he has a sure-[illegible] big-leaguer on his pay roll in [illegible] person of David Arthur Daven-

[illegible] Arthur is a member of the [illegible] club, of which Stinson, [illegible] known, is the manager. Stinson [illegible] Davenport pork-and-bean-[illegible] with a semi-pro club in South-[illegible] Texas. The youngster stands [illegible] and a half in his government [illegible], and if altitude counts for anything, he should reach the top of his [illegible] sooner or later.

[illegible] is playing center field for [illegible] club. He has Price catching for [illegible] and Hibler at third, both of [illegible] are well and favorably known [illegible] parts.

[illegible] addition to the umpire-in-chief [illegible] gentleman who judges the [illegible], there are two other officials [illegible] Park of whom the public is now aware, viz., a first assistant umpire and a second-assistant umpire.

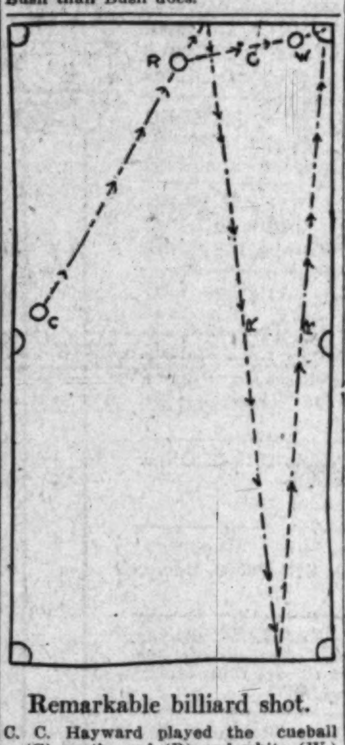
Jim Jeffries holds the first office and Cy Myrick the latter. They do not work every day, but when present pick out a box directly back of the plate and establish themselves as a court of last appeal. When the blue-blouses in the field have rendered their verdict, Myrick renders his own. Jeff neither concurs in it, or hands down a dissenting opinion.

Jeff's ruling is always accepted as final by the occupants of the box, who wouldn't think of hurting the former champion's feelings—and their own—by questioning his judgment.

Speaking of umpires, prompts the suggestion that President Baum label Guthrie and Bush.

They could easily pass for twin sisters, and when they take the field it requires a minute examination to determine who is who and who isn't.

I watched two whole games, never doubting for a moment that Guthrie was Bush. In fact, he looks more like Bush than Bush does.



Remarkable billiard shot.

C. C. Hayward played the cueball (C) on the red (R) and white (W,) putting all balls in one pocket and scoring ten, the highest possible count in English billiards.

FEAT AT BILLIARDS.

Heyward Plays for Cannon and Dumps All Balls in One Pocket for Maximum Count.

"The Greatest Play I Ever Saw" was quoted unanimously by observers yesterday at the Majestic Billiard Academy, when C. C. Hayward, in playing for a carom, or cannon, as it is called in English billiards, unintentionally piled all the balls in the right top pocket of the big six feet by twelve table, thus scoring in a single pocket the maximum count possible in the game.

Experts say that this performance has never been duplicated. Ten points have occasionally been made in the course of a game by making a cannon and so scattering the balls that each rolled into some one of the six pockets; but no generalship has heretofore been found capable of compassing Hayward's position and execution.

One of the beauties of the English game, to its lovers, is the rule that all points count, whether planned or accidental. Hence Hayward's modest attempt to measure a count of two was very properly stretched to ten on the score board when the balls chose to act as they did. Manager Mackenzie says the coup is playable and should be practiced.

From a point on the rail six inches above the left side pocket, Hayward played a cannon on the spotted red ball and the white which lay nine inches from the right top pocket, driving white into the pocket and following in with the cue ball. Meanwhile the red had struck the upper cushion, and was on its way down table, where it cushioned on the lower end and rolled, straight up table eventually pocketing itself on top of the others.

The cannon counted two; winning hazard on white, two; losing hazard off red, three; winning hazard on red, three; total, ten.

MANY CALIFORNIA CARS.

Automobile record figures from California show that during May $7,596,000 was spent for machines in the State, there being 2798 licenses issued. The May registrations were the largest in the history of the State. Since May, 1905, the sum of $215,396,000 has been invested in automobiles in California. Motorcycles are not included in this valuation.

The total registration of motor vehicles in the State of Oregon numbers 11,500, as against 8411 this time last year. During the first five months of the year, 11,048 motor vehicles were registered and 933 chauffeurs. The total fees amounted to $44,158.

Monte Cross Says:

STARS ARE NOT LUCKY PLAYERS.

Baseball Heroes Not Creatures of Chance.

But Men Who Have Mastered the Game.

Connie Mack's Forte, a Lesson on Control.

Monte Cross, who played ball for many years with the Atlantics and with St. Louis clubs and was a star in his day, says there is no such thing as luck in baseball. Monte is positive that all good ball clubs, the ones that are always higher up in the race year after year, make a study of the game and players, and that by thoroughly mastering every point, they have little trouble in ripping off victories. Cross says that to become perfect in baseball, as in anything else, one must devote considerable time to the study of the game. That explains the reason, according to Cross, for the continued success of Manager Mack, and the Philadelphia Athletics.

Having a system of signals is one of Mack's great secrets. Another is in doping out what the other fellows are going to pull off. Mack and his players, says Cross, never fail to catch the signals of an opposing team, and when once they do, everything is easy sailing. Says Cross:

"When the first man on the Athletics steps up to the plate, he has instructions to watch closely every move that his opponents make in the field, and especially the pitcher. Lots of times a batter can tell what a twirler is going to shoot over the plate by watching his foot. Then many fingers have certain little habits not noticed by the fans, perhaps, by which a smart ball tosser can tell just what kind of a curve is going to come over. This trick of telling what kind of a ball is to be thrown is done by closely observing the pitcher and also how he holds the sphere.

FAIL TO "COVER UP."

"Many pitchers fail to learn how to cover up when delivering a baly. I have noticed this at the spring training camps. Very few of the young pitchers know how to conceal what they are going to throw, and none of the pitchers can conceal the fact when they intend tossing the ball to first trying to nip a base runner. Most young pitchers will plainly show in throwing to the initial sack some little habit that should be easy for a base runner quickly to solve. The fault of the youngsters here, and it is the same with every recruit that comes up from the smaller leagues, is that when they are about to throw to first they will invariably drag their feet on the ground in makin~ the quarter turn. When they are going to pitch to the batter they lift the foot.

"I want to tell you something of considerable interest that perhaps few of the fans have thought of. When a young bush league pitcher is brought up for trial and by his wonderful speed and great curves the manager decides to retain him, that does not necessarily mean that he is a good flinger. Just because a recruit happens to have a grand physique, speed and curves, that is not by any means all that is required. He must also have brains.

USES HIS "HEAD" MORE.

"And now we are getting down to the real interesting point that I wanted to tell you about. Perhaps this youngster will go along for two or three seasons and twirl fairly good ball. All the while this particular man will be working as hard as he knows, in fact, almost throwing his arm off every time he goes to the mound. This sort of pitching is an awful strain on a man, and it soon begins to have its effect. Suddenly by constant hard labor, the pitcher one day strains his arm, his speed and curves are gone and the fans figure that he is through. But such is far from being true.

"When a big, strong fellow suddenly awakens to the fact that his arm is gone he becomes a real clever pitcher, and by that I mean a smart, heady twirler. He then has to rely solely upon the headwork to fool the opposing hitters, and instead of merely using his once wonderful arm he falls back on his brain to hold his job. Remember quite a few years ago Christy Mathewson hurt his arm and many of the wise ones had it that this fellow was through. Well, what did Matty do? He simply developed a new curve ball, and today is still considered one of the grandest pitchers in the game. There are many other cases quite similar to that of Mathewson's.

HOW TO GET CONTROL.

"There is another thing I wanted to say about bush league pitchers who get a chance in the big league, but are turned back because they lack control. If these same men would only practice hard under some manager or coach who knew just what to do under such conditions not half the men would be sent back. I take the credit for developing Jack Coombs into a clever twirler, as I worked with him constantly and helped him to gain control. When Jack broke in he was as wild as any pitcher that I have ever seen. He didn't seem to have any control, and what's more, it was easy to be seen that Jack had no idea as to how ever to become perfect.

"I took Coombs in hand and worked with him every day. I explained to him that in order to gain control to try always to aim for some certain spot on the person of the catcher when he threw a ball. For instance, if he wanted a low ball on the inside, to throw at the catcher's knee. If he wanted a ball high and one on the outside, to aim at the catcher's shoulder. By hard practice and lots of it, Coombs acquired control. When Jack throws a ball now he knows exactly where it is going, and that is more than a good many flingers can say."

THEY SHOULD WORRY AT L.A.A.C.

BY OWEN R. BIDR.

SPEAK of your battles royal, the charge of the Light Brigade and the work of Nelson at Trafalgar pale when compared with the mighty struggle that took place in the handball courts last week when Jack Nest and Walter Keating fought all the way up from a 14 to 0 score and won out 21 to 19, over "Big" Bill Nevins and Harry Blake, in a wild-eyed game of doubles.

The affair started with an argument in the locker-rooms and all parties concerned adjourned to the courts to settle the matter of supremacy and skill.

During the earlier stages of the game "Big" Bill's concert tenor was heard scoffing at his opponents and begging them to "get a little class." This they proceeded to do, the result being the greatest marathon I have ever witnessed in these parts. When it was all over Mr. Nevins was shy another four or five pounds, and he says that this was the only pleasing feature of the match. The battle was not settled, however, with the scoring of the last point, but all went into an executive session at once, which had not terminated at a late hour Monday night.

Bob Brain and Capt. Ryus are causing a great deal of talk around the club these days, as the saying goes in the country dailies. This pair has issued a challenge, of sweeping import, stating that any two handball players of forty years or over who wish to be made a holy show and utterly humiliated, can do so by simply entering the handball arena with the above-mentioned duo.

Ryus and Brain have been having Sunday matinées of late, but the fifth games of their matches has always ended in a debate up to date. Last Sunday it is reported that the worthy pair started to dress no less than three times, after their exercise, but every time that one or the other got to the "stick-pin stage," some remark was dropped that started the wordy war again and they had to settle it once more in the courts. Up to the present writing they have played fifty games, each winning twenty-five, so you can see how it stands.

"Chet" Moore, a former handball star of the old club, has come back and can be found almost any day a dripping Niagara of departing weight, cantering over the courts. He seems to be fast reaching his old-time form.

"Smoke" Adamson, former U.S.C. captain and football star, has taken up handball and squash of late. At the close of the last season "Smoke" began to put on the weight, but a few weeks of the hot stuff has made him almost fawn-like as to figure. He has a terrible "kill" stroke—in the making.

George Miles, known as the coming Catalina champion, has all others licked to a whisper when it comes to riding up and down the plunge in the push ball. When Leander swam the big Grecian ditch, he could not have hoped to rank with the big league stuff that is being daily pulled off by George on his trips on the air ball.

Somebody remarked that "'Force' Parker was growing into the "hasbeen" class, and to show them the error of their various ways, he has been boxing lately. "Hasbeen," nothing, he has all the old "Bunker-Hill" dope in the world.

Charlie Luckenback has passed up everything and now can be seen every day pounding out the miles on the indoor track. Charles says that he feels the champion corpsucles stirring in his blood and will give somebody a showing in the next club meet, which is to take place during the latter part of July.

TANK SWIMMING HOLDS INTEREST.

MANY CONTESTANTS ENTER FOR INDOOR EVENTS.

Two Nights Competition Scheduled as Compliment to "Duke" Kahanamoku, World Champion Short-Distance Swimmer, and His Hawaiian Confreres.

The two-night swimming meet to be held at the Los Angeles Athletic Club tank, Thursday and Friday nights, in which "Duke" Kehanamoku and other members of the Hui Nalu team will compete, is growing in size of entries every day. Les Henry, who has the meet in charge, is of the belief that some of the preliminaries will have to be run off previous to the night of the meet, if the entries come in from now to the time of closing as fast as they have to date.

There should be close to 100 contestants in the big club meet by the middle of next week, and if some of the winners of the Coast championships are added to the lists one of the greatest indoor meets ever held in the south should be the outcome.

This meet is in the form of a complimentary affair to the world's champion, "Duke" Kahanamoku, and it is the duty of every swimmer or enthusiast to be present on at least one of the two nights in which he will endeavor to establish records in the club tank.

Kahanamoku will swim an exhibition 50-yard event on Thursday night and 100 yards on Friday night, and in both events will try and establish a world's record. He will at least place the marks at such a point that it will be hard for any one else to ever touch them. They will at least be at such a place that the local swimmers can shoot at them as often as they please.

Non-members of the club will be admitted on both nights of the swimming meet as spectators, and ladies are especially invited, as there will be events both in swimming and diving for ladies both nights.

Entry blanks can be obtained at any of the local sporting goods houses or bath houses, or at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Ocean Swimming.

ISLAND EXPERTS AGAINST LOCALS.

FINAL TESTS OF SUPREMACY IN OPEN WATER.

Hui Nalu Champions to Show Their Abilities in Rough Work and Long-Distance Events—Langer, Last-Year Winner, in Fine Form to Defend Record.

The big rough water swimming race which is to be held at Ocean Park Sunday afternoon July 13, is attracting more attention from the swimmers on the Coast and the local enthusiasts than any other event that has ever been promoted in this locality.

The possibility of the local stars defeating the world's champion, "Duke" Kahanamoku, and other members of the Hui Nalu swimming team in this event will be greater than in the smooth water tank races which are to be held both in San Francisco and Los Angeles previous to the big ocean event.

Ludy Langer, winner of the race last year, is in great shape for the coming events, and should be the man that crosses the tape first this year. The ability of the visiting Hawaiians is an unknown quantity, and will never be known until after this rough water race in the ocean.

The distance will be the same as last year, from the Ocean Park Pier to opposite Sunest avenue and return to the pier. In a race of this kind and distance thousands of spectators can see the entire race from standing on the beach or pier with little difficulty, and it is an assured fact that there will be more people to see this great race than has ever congregated for any similar event in the history of aquatics in the south.

There will be six beautiful medals for this race, the first of solid gold valued at $35, the second of gold and silver valued at $25, the third of silver and gold valued at $15, the fourth of sterling silver valued at $10 and the fifth and sixth of bronze valued at $7.50 and $5 respectively.

Previous to the big race there will be one for ladies which will be about one-quarter of a mile in distance.

FREAKS OF SLEEPWALKERS.

Some Extraordinary Cases and Evidence That Epilepsy of Slight Degree Is Responsible.

[Kansas City Star:] The many remarkable stories which have been told of persons falling from windows or walking over heights while in a somnambulistic state, are supplemented by some extraordinary cases which are related by Sir George H. Savage, M. D., in the Practitioner, an English medical paper.

One concerns two friends of his who were traveling in Sweden. One night they stayed at a cafe and occupied the same room. Two hours after retiring one of them got up, seized a water bottle and hurled it at the head of his friend, smashing it against the wall. He then returned to bed and was perfectly unconscious of the act.

Referring to somnambulistic automatism, the committing of acts quite unconsciously and without any recollection, Sir George mentions that everybody is subject to its milder forms. The pianist can play difficult music whilst holding conversation on general subjects. One can run up several flights of stairs in the dark automatically recognizing when each flight is reached, without counting the steps.

But this automatism sometimes assumes a somewhat more serious form, and the case is mentioned of a country man of middle age, active, healthy and sober in his habits, who came to London to consult his solicitor. Calling on a Tuesday morning he was told to call again at 3 o'clock.

He did not keep the appointment and was not seen again until the following Friday, when he turned up at the office at 3:30, apologizing for being half an hour late owing to his watch having stopped. He was under the impression that the day was still Tuesday, and had no knowledge of what he had done during the intervening time. He recognized that he had not shaved, but seemed to have washed, dressed and eaten regularly.

Epilepsy is the cause of many acts of somnambulistic automatism, and Sir George tells the story of a man who had passed a brilliant school and university career and eventually entered the government service. He obtained an appointment abroad, and left for the East in good health, but at Port Said he disappeared. After many months, when he was supposed to be dead, his friends heard that he was in a state of destitution far from where he landed, but he had no recollection of his movements after he left the boat. After careful nursing he was ready for work.

He took a private secretaryship in the colonies, where he soon proved his ability, but he once more disappeared and was again found in a state of poverty in quite another part of the world. A third time he started work on a ranch and was making a success of it when he again vanished, and on his being discovered in a state of great distress some months after, he was placed in an asylum.

The Milwaukee Common Council Committee on Fire Department has recommended the purchase of motor-propelled apparatus, costing $41,000. The purchase will consist of three combination hose, chemical, ladder and passenger cars, one tractor for ladder truck or steam fire engine, and three light delivery cars for the supply and repair department.

Fight Dope.

McCAREY NOT SURPRISED AT JOE RIVERS'S DEFEAT.

Local Promoter Is Not Astonished that Anderson Lost Bout—Future Fight Programme Not Yet Decided. Anderson Delirious All Niht, but Drives to Town in Afternoon—Kid Williams Works Out Today.

"The result of neither fight was a surprise to me."

Probably half the people in [illegible] will make this remark when the [illegible] fights are mentioned but the [illegible] fact is that no less an authority than Tom McCarey says that he wasn't surprised. The business of [illegible] fights must have made the match-maker wiser than his [illegible], for both the losers were favorites with the followers of the game here.

"I had a hunch that Rivers would [illegible] more than he was looking for," [illegible] Uncle Tom, "and while you can't [illegible] a fighter right out that he can't [illegible] another man, I discouraged Joe [illegible] from a match with Ritchie. [illegible] that Ritchie had a right cross [illegible] it was almost impossible to get [illegible] and I was not surprised [illegible] I heard that the right cross had [illegible] Rivers for the count."

[illegible] Showed Him.

[illegible] went on to say that [illegible] certainly had demonstrated [illegible] a doubt that he was a real [illegible]. "He showed that he was [illegible] in every way and I am [illegible] he did," said Uncle Tom, [illegible] there is not a fighter living [illegible] any greater credit to the boxing [illegible] than Willie Ritchie." [illegible] showed his friendship for [illegible] and his desire to keep him [illegible] Ritchie several months [illegible] Ritchie came down here [illegible] for a go with Rivers with [illegible] in his eyes. Ritchie was given [illegible] in favor of Joe Mandot and [illegible] day was put off but only for [illegible] and McCarey was the least [illegible] of the lot when the flash [illegible] the champion had knocked [illegible]

[illegible] the Cross-Anderson affair [illegible] Tom said that he could not [illegible] how the fight fans had [illegible] to make the Medford boy a [illegible] favorite over the New Yorker. [illegible] people who bet on Anderson [illegible] certainly taking a gambling [illegible]," said Tom. "They were betting [illegible] the contents of a sealed box [illegible] might contain everything or [illegible] Anderson had had a very [illegible] hoe with the men he met [illegible] Cross had just finished [illegible] Joe Rivers to two ten-round [illegible]

[illegible] is satisfied that Anderson [illegible] right stuff in him and is going [illegible] him another chance. There [illegible] of an Anderson-Rivers [illegible] Labor Day. A Cross-[illegible] is in the air and nothing definite has been arranged, but Cross wants to fight Ritchie for the championship in Los Angeles just as soon as possible and as Ritchie has gone on record as being willing to meet him, the details should be arranged shortly.

The Wallach brothers have not yet made any definite plans for the future. Of course, Champion Willie Ritchie is the man they want to meet. Sam Wallach is being deluged with offers to meet fighters and also with stage engagements. He is to have a long talk with Uncle Tom tomorrow to decide just what they will do.

Leach has been offered a match with Ritchie in New York and also there are rumors of matches with Harry Trendall, Joe Rivers, Harlem Tommy Murphy, Matty Baldwin and several others. As yet nothing has been decided but as Leach likes to fight as often as possible he will undoubtedly be matched with one of these boys within a few days.

Leach is also very anxious to get his brother Phil a match out here. Phil is a welterweight and Leach would like to see him matched with Bud Anderson at 138 pounds. He thinks that Bud would do much better at this poundage and hopes to settle the match very soon. If Anderson does not want to enter the welterweight class Phil Cross would like to meet Jack Britton or some other welter.

Bud Drives to Town.

Bud Anderson's rugged northwest constitution was tested to the limit to overcome the effects of the terrific wallop that landed on the point of his jaw in the twelfth round on the Fourth, but after a rather bad night in which the Medford lad was delirious most of the time, he recuperated and drove his new Buick into town today to show that he wasn't as nearly dead as had been reported.

"A man can't expect to win every time," said Bud, "and I will learn a good deal by this experience." Bud as usual was not inclined to have much to say, except that he hoped to be able to get on with Joe Rivers for the Labor-day date.

Bud's brother Freddie says that something was radically wrong with Bud on the day of the fight. "Did you see him?" he asked, "he couldn't fight at all. It wasn't the weight. That was easy for him. I can't imagine what was the matter."

Bud expects to take a lay-off for a while and intends to become a regular Barney Oldfield. He leaves on Monday for about a week at Wheeler Springs after which he will return and he and brother Freddie will drive the new car up to Medford, quite an ambitious programme for a young man who has only had a machine for two days.

Kid Williams Trains.

Kid Williams, acting bantamweight champion, yesterday went through his first light workout preparatory to his battle with "Kisser" Ledoux. The Kid was feeling fine and stepped through his work with lots of vim. He opened up with what amounted to four rounds of bag-punching, using the regular leather affair for two rounds and then stepping into the ring and using "Battling" Kelly in the other two.

This was followed by a little rope-skipping and some shadow boxing and the workout was over. "Some day, when the Kid gets rich," said Manager Sammy Harris, "he is going to buy himself a new skipping rope." Williams still uses the old rope he has had ever since he started boxing and it is getting sadly frayed in the middle.

The Kid is looking fine. Harris has let him lie around in the sun and loaf with the result that his muscular little body is nicely tanned and it gives him a healthy look.

DICK DONALD DECLARES LEACH CROSS IS A GRAND FIGHTER.

BY DICK DONALD,
Manager of Bud Anderson.

OF COURSE, this defeat of Anderson by Cross sets Bud back a little, but he does not intend to quit the fighting game or go into retirement. This was his forty-third fight and it was the first one he ever lost. Cross is a grand fighter and the fact that he beat us does not discourage us. We had plans made if we won, but since we lost, we will simply switch our plans and make new ones.

We will stay here for three or four days, or until Levy and Rivers return from San Francisco and see if we can get a match with Rivers here for Labor Day, providing Manager McCarey will give us the date.

If we cannot arrange such a match, or even if we do, we will go back to Medford, Or., where Bud will rest and hunt for several weeks, or longer. We will not fight before Labor Day. If we cannot get Rivers we would take on Murphy or anyone at all.

Bud is sore because he lost, of course, but is feeling fine. He has no marks of the battle, except a slight cut on the lip.

BEAVERS BEAT SACRAMENTO.

McCredie's Men Win in Ninth-Inning Rally.

Four Hits in a Row Put the Game on Ice.

Krapp and Stroud in Great Pitching Duel.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was a gent named Allah who said that "All things are possible." And it was a gent junior named Krapp who demonstrated it and proved that Portland also can try a fling at that ninth-inning-rally business. The score was, Portland, 2; Sacramento, 1.

Going into the ninth the under dog, 1-0, with Krapp and Stroud both twirling grand ball, Portland pumped a hypodermic into Sacramento with the precision and eclat of the late Mr. David getting a Coroner's verdict over Comrade Goliath.

And the above simile goes, too, for it was Lilliputian Gene Krapp who whacked out the hit that brought the run that broke the air castles that Harry built.

Sounds like an awful battle, and there was much vociferousness among the 4000 bugs, but truth to tell Krapp pitched winning ball and always seemed to have the edge on everything but the score.

Jimmy Lewis's speed and an overripe throw to second by Gus Fisher gave Sacramento its one run in the first inning. And such was the alignment when the Beavers went to bat in the last of the ninth and banged out four hits, good for two runs and enough to win.

Ten hits the Beavers garnered off Stroud, Rodgers, Lindsay, Speas and Lober each securing a brace, while the best the Solons could muster was five. Score:

RUMORED SHAKE IN OAKS CLUB.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rumor has it that a big shake-up is impending in the Oakland club. It is said that the blue slip will be passed next week to Gregory, Crisp, Guest and Schrim, with Cy Parkin hanging to his job by an eyelash.

Gregory has gone back to such an extent that he is absolutely a detriment to the club. Crisp has proved a joke as a catcher, while Guest has not helped much in his role of utility infielder. Schrim came here highly touted and he has shown that he knows baseball.

But he has been bothered constantly by "Charley horse," his throwing arm is woefully weak, and he has not been able to play up to expectations. Several new men are in sight, who it is believed, will strengthen the club materially.

HOOSIER TOUR OFF FOR COAST.

Appersons in Van of Cross-Continental Tour Trip.

Twelve Miles an Hour Speed of Twelve-Year-Old Car.

Pioneers of Auto Game Help to Make Run a Success.

Twenty-four Indiana-made cars left Indianapolis July 1 for the Pacific Coast. Prominent among these Hoosier cars were two Apperson Jack Rabbit entries. When the tour started on of the bright red cars from Kokomo, Ind., was driven by Elmer Apperson, "the father of the American automobile."

Just twenty years ago Elmer Apperson and his brother Edgar built the first successful gasoline car in America. It was driven for the first time on July 4, 1893, the 117th birthday of the nation. Thus, on the twentieth birthday of the American gasoline automobile the direct descendant of the original car is participating in the biggest touring event of 1913.

A son of Indiana perfected the automobile and developed a machine that has today become one of the necessities of daily life. Another son of Indiana, Carl G. Fisher, proposed the national rock highway from coast to coast. The Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association is now engaged in the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the automobile, and pathfinding a suitable route for this highway.

Elmer Apperson's first car bears but little resemblance to the pair of sturdy "Jack Rabbit" entries in the cross-country tour, but the machine that reposes today in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C., was the father of all the cars in this tour and the gasoline automobiles now built in America.

The speed of the first car which Elmer and Edgar Apperson built two decades ago was about twelve miles an hour, while the present-day cars entered in the tour to the Pacific Coast will negotiate 3600 miles in twenty-six running days. When Apperson first drove his machine through the streets of Chicago he was ordered off the boulevards during the time of the World's Fair because the machine was offensive to the horses. Today on every country road and on the boulevards there are more automobiles than horses.

When the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association opened the entery lists for this tour Elmer Apperson decided that two Apperson "Jack Rabbit" touring models should take part in this event, in spite of the fact that Apperson cars have earned their laurels on track and road, and the company has quit the racing game and all other contest work.

The Apperson brothers astonished the world with their success as the pioneers when they built their first car, and in 1898 Edgar Apperson drove overland in one of the cars from Kokomo, Ind., to New York City, delivering the car to a customer. This achievement was considered at that time almost impossible, as it was a distance of about 900 miles.

In 1901 Edgar Apperson won the first 100-mile non-stop run which was held in Long Island. The same year Edgar and Elmer Apperson won first and second places in the New York-to-Buffalo cross-country tour of the Automobile Club of America. This was the first event of its kind that was successfully staged in America.

While the Indiana-Pacific tour is not a reliability run, its influence on the automobile world will be far reaching. This is the first time that an organized tour participated in by manufacturers has crossed the Rocky Mountains and the only tour to ever go from east of the Mississippi to the Pacific Coast. Previous to this event Denver has been the western terminus of tours.

All the teams in the tour will have their colors and, following out the practice of the Appersons, the "Jack Rabbit" cars are resplendent in a bright coat of red. The cars are four-cylinder touring models, and bear the entry Nos. 17 and 18. They are being accorded receptions all along the route by Apperson owners.

On the radiator of every Apperson car that leaves the factory in Kokomo, Ind., is found the "Jack Rabbit," the trade-mark emblem of the Apperson Bros'. Automobile Company. The two Apperson entries in the Indiana-Pacific tour, Nos. 17 and 18, are not exceptions to the rule.

The "Jack Rabbits" are much in evidence in the tour to the Coast and are meeting many of their brother "Jack Rabbits" in escorting parties. Back of every trade-mark emblem there is a story. Elmer Apperson adopted the "jack rabbit" through a peculiar circumstance.

Before gasoline automobiles, of which he is the father, became common on the roads, an Indiana sportsman took one of the Apperson cars to the Dakotas on a hunting trip. The party carried guns and fish spears with them to provide food, but on loading the car one morning they forgot their reserve supply of ammunition. However this was not discovered until the next morning as they put up for the night at the "shack" of a settler.

Food was scarce and in the morning the party volunteered to go out and get enough jack rabbits for breakfast. Being unable to find their supply of ammunition, they asked their host to provide it, but he was entirely out. However, undaunted by the lack of their guns, they started out with the men on the running-boards and using their fish spears they obtained a large number of the rabbits, returning with an ample supply of food for several days. The Apperson being much faster than the jack rabbits, the task had been an easy one.

After the wants of the inner man had been cared for, they started back to get the ammunition they had forgotten. On arriving at their last stopping place they were surprised when one of the bystanders asked "Where did you get the jack rabbit?" Not understanding the query, the driver walked around in front of the car and found one of the rabbits impaled on the starting crank and frozen stiff.

The hunters accounted for this by the fact that they had been driving so fast that the jack rabbit had jumped in front of the machine and the force of the machine had driven the crank through his body. The engine had started on compression and no one had noticed the rabbit.

On being told of this unusual method of snaring game, Elmer Apperson adopted it for his trade-mark because the jack rabbit is emblematic of speed and endurance.

STUDEBAKER IN KANSAS.

J. W. Carton, who left Los Angeles a short time ago to make a transcontinental trip in a Studebaker "35" Sedan, has arrived at Kansas City. This is the first time the journey has ever been undertaken in a closed type car. Carton is well pleased with the success of the tour, and, with nearly all the rough road behind him, is fighting on his way to New York.

Included in an order for $10,000,000 worth of new equipment now being received by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, are 1400 new furniture cars which will be used mainly in the automobile trade in the Southwest.

TRUCKS NEEDED FOR SHORT HAULS

COMMERCIAL CARS MAKE GOOD ON SHORT-HAUL JOBS.

Field of Operations Being Enlarged and as Result Merchants Find the Motor Trucks Fill the Place that Has Been Hard to Occupy by the Horse-Drawn Vehicle.

In times of rushing business, when the railroads have more tonnage than they are able to move promptly, the use of the high-grade, heavy duty motor truck and short-haul work is coming to be an important factor, which tends to facilitate the quicker movement of freight.

Short-haul business is not much sought by the railroads at any time and when the through business is heavy, as it was last fall when the country experienced a great shortage of freight cars, the railroad managers welcome the relief afforded by the motor-truck.

The rate charged by railroads for short-haul business, while higher per ton-mile than on through traffic, is scarcely sufficient to make up for the space occupied in stations by the goods and the labor of handling. When long haul business is available, it is much more profitable. That is why the development of interurban truck business is good for the railroads.

There are a great many reasons why it is good for the truck owner. If a shipment is to be made to a town twenty miles away, the goods may be put on the truck in the morning, the run to the destination made in from two to two and a half hours, and the goods unloaded at the purchaser's home or place of business.

In the case of railroad shipment the goods are loaded on to a wagon, driven to a station, unloaded into the freight shed, loaded into the car, moved that night, perhaps, to the town which is the destination, unloaded into the freight shed, loaded into a wagon and unloaded at the purchaser's house.

The difference in efficiency between the two methods is so great that a mere statement of the case proves it. The truck does the work in a quarter of the time and at less expense.

For all these reasons many large business houses have adopted trucks exclusively for their short haul freight work. In Cleveland a large dealer in furniture and house furnishing makes all its deliveries to near-by Ohio towns with a Peerless truck. In Chicago a dealer in leather goods ships all goods to a distance of fifty miles by Peerless truck. In Fall River, Mass., a firm of draymen carry freight regularly at night to Providence and other near-by New England towns in a Peerless truck. Because of the density of population and the short distances between cities, New England has developed this branch of motor trucking further than almost any other city in the country.

The portable garage, as a convenient solution of the housing problem of the automobile, is represented by an industry already of considerable size, over thirty concerns, furnishing all sizes and types from all-wood, wood and canvas, wood and steel, and all-steel constructions being in active operation.

AFTER THE 4th EDDYTORIUL

We ain't got the head nor skurcely the hand to write a eddytorial for this issue of the Bugle, being as we are incapacitated for this important duty because we indulged in too much patriotism on the Glorious 4th.

It will be remembered that last week we dasht off a eddytorial calling on all representative citizens of Bingville to put their shoulders to the wheel so to speak and help to celebrate July 4th in Bingville in a fitting and oshpishious manner.

Well, we allus practise what we preach—it ain't our custom as editor and prop. of the Bugle to advise others to do somethink which we won't do ourself. Sinst we called on the patriots of Bingville to raise up and celebrate this Glorious Day of American Independence which has just passed by and is now gone and went forever, we felt it our sacred duty as a citizen to be present right in the front rank of the celebrators.

We WAS in the front rank all right, but as we look back on the turrible experience through which we went we feel it would of been a good eal better if we had of been in the rear rank or had of remained at home and attended strickly to our own business. The facts is these:

On the evg. of the 4th we announced that we would personally and at our own expense put off some skyrockets on the publick square which we had purchased with money earned in the sweat of our brow. It was about 9 o'clock when we proceeded to do so. There was a large crowd present to witness this free-for-all performance of fireworks which we so magnanimously contributed, and we confess it was with considerable pride that we planted the first skyrocket in the ground and got ready to touch the thing off.

Before doing so we made a few patriotic remarks to them as was assembled, about America, the land of the free and the home of the brave, and also touched eloquently on the birthday of American independence.

Then in a dignified manner we scratched a match on the seat of our trousers and applied it to the fuss of the skyrocket.

Our recollection ain't just quite clear on what followed. All that we know it that there was a swish, a roar and a stream of flame came from the lower end of the skyrocket, severely scorching three fingers on the hand we use to write with. This was followed by an awful exploshion and then the skyrocket fell down and begin to shoot round betwixt the legs of the spectators present.

Immediately the crowd which had assembled to see our own personal display of fireworks dispersed to their various homes as fast as they could disperse, hollering "Fire!" as loud as they could holler.

The excitement was intents and consternation rained supreme. After the skyrocket had fooled and fizzled round a while it petered out. Then we struck a match and found our hat, which had been lost during the excitement, clapped it on our head and went home in deep disgust, carrying under our arm the other skyrockets which we had bought to set off, but which we now have put away to be used by posterity on some future 4th of July, being as if anybody in this world ever induces us to set off another skyrocket they will haft to do it over our dead body.

Personally, we are glad the 4th is over and that it won't come round again for a year.

Gorm Has a Bad Cold

Gorm Hankins went out tother day to build a stone fence. It was turrible hot and after Gorm had lugged heavy stones for a hr. or 2 he was dripping wet with perspiration.

Gorm got so swet up he was miserable, so he went home to get cooled off. It was almost as hot in the house as it was outside. So Gorm went down and set in the cellar beside his hard cider barl, from which he refreshed himself from time to time.

By and by he went to sleep and fell offen the box he was settin on to the floor and jest lay there. When he woke up it was past 3 p. m. and Gorm was so cold he shivered. Next morning he woke up with what he says is the turriblest cold he ever had in his life, not only in his head and chest, but throat also. Gorm can't speak above a whisper and it is a effort for him to do that.

Doc Livermore says if Gorm don't come to him he may pass away. Gorm says he wouldn't pass away no quicker if he stayed away from Doc Livermore. He guesses he'll take a chance, being as he would about as lief pass away anyhow as feel so miserable.

Personals & Local Items

Several hen houses have been robbed in Bingville recently. Some folks says its skunks. Seth Dewberry, our lionhearted town constubble, says its two-legged skunks and they'd better be a little more careful unless they want the law to take its course.

Eb Simpson, while painting the front door of his house tother day splashed some paint into his eye and give up the job in disgust, leaving the door only half painted, but Eb says it'll stay half painted for all of him.

We call this pretty hot weather for the 4th of July, but Dad Henderson, our oldest inhabitant, says it's nothing to what the weather was in July, 1820, when the mercury stood 137 in the shade and busted most of the thermometers in Bingville.

Amzi Gookins, who fit and bled in the Civil war and has a wood leg to show for it, sprained his ankle tother day. EXPLANATION—We mean the ankle of his other leg.

Big 4th in Bingville!

Full Acct. of the Day of Freedom's Celebration in Our Midst!—Some Things Didn't Go Off Just as They Was Planned, While Other Things Went Off Sooner!—Nobody Killed, but the Feelings of Some of Our Most Respeckted Citizens Injured Considerable

There was some mishaps and a few accidents but no fatalities in Bingville on the glorious 4th of July, but we persoom sich is to be expected. It is not to be thought of that the patriotic citizens of Bingville who fittingly celebrated this great day mind having a few fingers scorched here and there and getting their whiskers singed.

To begin with, Wes Woodruff, our expert hunter and trapper, and the offishial urshurer in of the 4th of July, announced that he would shoot off a volley from his old musket at daylight on the morning of the 4th on the publick square, which would give notice to the inhabitants of Bingville that the day was offishially opened for celebration.

The musket which Wes was to fire the volley from had been loaded up but not shot off for several years. Jest before daylight Friday morning Wes marched from home to the publick square down the middle of the street in military fashion (but only a few of our early risers saw him). When he had reached the square Wes paused, raising and pointing the muzzle of the musket in the air, and pulled the trigger.

It seems that Wes had forgot and left the ramrod of the musket in the barrel, so when he pulled the trigger the gun bust all to pieces in his hands, and the pieces flew in all directions. Nothing but the stalk of the musket was left in Wes' hands to tell the tail that he had any gun at all. It's a wonder he wasn't killed, but he excaped injury. Wes says if he had knowed the musket was a goin to do that, he wouldn't have shot it off, because he could have sold it for $3 or $4, whereas he is now just that much out.

The 4th of July parade which formed at the Town Hall and started down Main st. at 10 o'clock was a gorgeous affair. It was led by the members of the Bingville Fire Dept., some of who carried water pails (but there wasn't enough water pails in the dept. to go around, so others didn't carry anythink—who appropriates water pails to the Bingville Fire Dept. anyhow?) Also two members of the Fire Dept., consisting of Chief Jason Tucker & Hank Dewberry, carried a ladder. It was a very imposing sight to see these brave firemen, who guard our property while we sleep, as you might say, and who always respond as promptly as they can in case of fire, marching down the Main st. of Bingville with their shoulders throwed back and their chests throwed out. Following the Fire Dept. was about 75 leading citizens of Bingville, hollerin and yelling as loud as they could in celebration of the day. After them come the Bingville Horn Band, the music of which was almost drownded out by the 2d seckshion of the parade. The last seckshion consisted of children and dogs (mostly dogs) which brought up the rear and added to the noise.

At 1 p. m. all of Bingville turned out to the Town Hall to hear the patriotick address of Jed Peters, our intelligent school teacher, who had been working on his speech for the last two weeks. The Town Hall was crowded to suffocashion, as you might say, being as about two-thirds of the audience was obliged to stand. Some went to the Town Hall as early as 10 o'clock and set there from 10 to 1 to be sure of a seat. Jed done fine and everybody was proud of him. He talked for nearly half a hour and only stopped once to take a drink of water, which went down the wrong way, choking him up so that he couldn't say a thing for nearly 5 minutes. Amri Haines, who set on the platform, hit Jed a turrible wallop in the back, which kind of seemed to bring him round, after which he went on with his speech.

After Jed had delivered his orashion, everybuddy adjourned to the lawn under the trees in the rear of the hall, where the Ladies' Aid of the Bingville Church served dinner at 25 cts. per head, the proceeds to be devoted to paying off a porshion of Rev. Moore's, our beloved pastor's, back salary. $14.75 was realized by this, which will be quite a boon to Rev. Moore, being as his finances is very low at the present time.

Several accidents happened during the day and evg., but as we said before, this was to be expected—accidents always goes with the 4th of July.

Following is a list of accidents:

Little Tommy Barker, thumb burned by a firecracker. Cy Hoskins, whiskers singed. Eb Wilson, hat blowed off by a cannon cracker throwed by parties unknowed. Wes Woodruff, escaped injury. (See Eddytoriul.) Hen Weathersby, hit on top of the head by descending skyrocket. Miss Amelia Tucker, our raining society queen, hair caught fire, but Amelia was not injured, being as she quickly snatched off the switch—switch, total loss. We persoom other accidents happened which we will hear of later.

Hank's Highest Ambitions

Hank Dewberry, our respeckted but doless citizen, has been talking a great deal lately about buying a motorcycle. Hank says he thinks the motorcycle is one of the greatest invenshions which has ever been invented for getting a person from one place to another a considerable distance away in the quickest time possibel. Hank says if he can scrape enough ready money together blamed if he won't have one.

Personally, we wouldn't care to own a motorcycle. We have saw 3 or 4 of the blamed things pass through our midst at the rate of about 60 miles a hr. making a noise like the 4th of July, and we wouldn't ride one unless we took our life in our hands.

Hen Weathersby told Hank when Hank told him he was a goin to purchase a motorcycle that he'd just as lief ride a bunch of cannon crackers as one of them things, and we indorse Hen's opinion. Hank says, however, that nobuddy can talk him out of buying a motorcycle. Hank says he can get a second hand one he knows about for $150, and that he has already saved up $1.75 of that amount. At this rate Hank won't have a motorcycle until he's about 90 yrs. old and then he'll be too decripit to ride the pesky thing.

SEALS SHUT OUT ANGELS.

Skeeter Fanning Too Strong for Berry's Men.

Only Run of Game Starts With Jackson's Error.

Rube Ellis Shows Up Star Catch of Season.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Today found the Seals only two games and a small fraction behind Los Angeles for the lead in the pennant race. A shut-out by the tight score of 1 to 0, delivered in person by "Skeeter" Fanning, dragged down the slipping Angels another notch.

It also cinched up the series, five games to the Angels' one, and puts the Seals in a position to almost move into first place in case of a double victory Sunday.

PITCHERS' BATTLE.

The game today was a hum-dinger of a pitchers' battle, and "Moose" Jackson strived with all his might and main to check the slipping flight of the Angels. He held the Seals to five hits, but it was his own error in the third inning that paved the way for the only run of the game. It was the easiest kind of a chance, too. Fanning poking a slow roller which Jackson let go right through his feet, and everyone knows that Jackson has plenty of feet.

Once on the bag, Fanning displayed a line of speed of which he was never suspected. "Skeeter" skipped to second in nothing on Mundorff's sacrifice. The clockers had no chance to time him on the next play, for Charles popped out to Metzger.

FINE, FAST TEAM.

Jimmy Johnston and Fanning as a team, however, broke a couple of records. Jimmy shot a grounder towards first which took a bad hop and went for a single. Moore deflected the ball on a line to Goodwin, but Fanning sprinted and scored all the way from second on an infield hit. Can you believe that of the "Skeeter?" He turned the trick and made a beautiful slide for home.

Johnston, not to be outdone, took second on Goodwin's throw home. Jimmy also stole third in the same inning, but died there as Hogan grounded out on the pitching mound.

"Skeeter" also showed speed and the same sure-shot control that has featured his work all season. Two of the four hits made off his delivery were of the scratchy order.

The fifth inning gave an idea of Fanning's effective pitching. The Angels filled the bases with none out and the "Skeeter" did not allow the ball to go out of the diamond. Maggert, first up, had reached second when Willie Hogan sprung a surprise by dropping a high fly in left. Ellis dumped a "Texas leaguer" just out of reach of Corhan and Hogan. It was such a scratcy affair that Maggert hugged second.

Young Goodwin laid down a bunt. Fanning picked it up and handed it to Cartwright, but the third-sacker had neglected to be on the bag and Maggert was safe and Goodwin got a "Cincinnati hit." It looked bad, in fact, it was rather panicky from a Seals' standpoint. Johnson relieved the tension somewhat by popping out to Corhan. Then when Brooks fanned there was a wild outburst of applause. A genuine ovation was accorded Fanning as Jackson grounded to Charles for the third out.

SOME DANGER.

Danger signals were also flying in the eighth and ninth innings. The Angels worked men to second in both frames with only one down, but in the pinches Fanning was master of the situation.

After getting over the early stages Jackson pitched air-tight ball, although his wildness put Seal runners on the bases and gave them chances to score. In the last four innings, however, Jackson did not allow a hit.

GREAT FIELDING.

Outside of the pitching duel, the fielding on both sides was sensational. Ivan Howard, Charles, Metgzer and Ellis pulled stunts which had the fans standing in their chairs. Ellis especially was there with the circus stuff when he leaped up against the left field bleachers and pulled down Jimmy Johnston's drive with his gloved hand. It was undoubtedly the greatest catch made at Recreation Park this season. Score:

Pullman Driver Denies that He Is Missing—Is Now Merely Resting in Tulare.

George Williams, driver of the Pullman car in the Panama-Pacific race, wires that the reports that he is lost are greatly exaggerated. Williams had a lot of tire trouble with his car and instead of being lost is now resting in Tulare with his car. Several wild reports about his absence were circulated around town yesterday and for this reason Mr. Williams wants it known that he is not lost but merely sidetracked in Tulare.

McGilligan's Roast.

RIVERS DENOUNCED AS "OCHRE-HEARTED YOUTH."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] T. P. McGilligan, a well-known sporting writer of San Francisco, has the following bouquet to hand Joe Rivers:

Two facts were prominently demonstrated in yesterday's contest for the lightweight championship of the world between Willie Ritchie, the title holder, and Joe Rivers, the challenger. One was that Ritchie, the champion, is a Spartan in courage, and the other is that Joe Rivers is a craven and ochre-hearted youth.

Willie Ritchie, the champion, won the bout in the eleventh round with a right-hand punch to Rivers's jaw that did not seem to carry enough force back of it to knock down a sick kitten, but was powerful enough to spraddle Rivers on the floor.

HOW HE TOOK COUNT.

Rivers took the full count of ten from this punch, but had he been a courageous-hearted youth the punch would not have even unbalanced him. The fans of this city have seen many a boxer counted out, but yesterday they experienced the peculiar sensation of watching a challenger counted out while in the full possession of his senses and watching every movement of the timekeeper.

The end of Rivers came in the eleventh round. Up to that time he had a lead and was boxing in good form. After the eleventh round opened the men went into a mixup. Ritchie landed some good right and left-hand punches to the head and body.

Under the punishment Rivers backed away. Ritchie followed him and Willie sent a right hand to Rivers's jaw that sent the challenger to the floor.

From the viewpoint of the spectators the punch did not seem to be a hard one, as Rivers was backing away from Ritchie's attack.

JOE WENT DOWN.

However, Rivers went down with the punch and the crowd was on its feet yelling for Ritchie to go in and finish it. Ritchie needed no such encouragement. As soon as Rivers regained his feet, the champion renewed his attack and put a left hand to Rivers's body and a right to the chin that sent Rivers back to the canvas.

Neither of the punches that Ritchie landed seemed to be hard, as Rivers was going away from them, but, nevertheless, the challenger went to the floor.

When Rivers hit the floor he placed himself in a careful position, so that he could see every movement that Timekeeper Harding made. When the timekeeper called ten, Rivers arose to his feet and ran back to his corner. He was apparently uninjured. Those who saw the contest were dumbfounded. They did not seem to realize that the battle was over.

ATKINS TO SELL WOLVES TEAM TO WOLVERTON.

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Negotiations for the transfer of the controlling interest in the Sacramento ball club from the hands of Jack Atkins to a quartette, which has as members Harry Wolverton, present manager of the club, and Ed Wolters, who, up until last November, was associated with Cal Ewing in the Oakland team, have practically been completed, according to information received this morning, and the final deal will be consummated Monday on the team's return from Portland. The price involved is said to be $36,000.

Ed Wolters is said to be slated for the position of dictator, with the new arrangement, which, with Wolverton, has as associates Lloyd Jacobs and Ray Jones, two local insurance men.

The new stockholders have been seeking the opportunity to break into the baseball world for some little time, it is said. Their chance came when Jack Atkins expressed a willingness to devote his attention to other business. Wolverton will continue as manager.

The Chalmers "Six" — the Selection of the Motor-Wise

In competition with the highest priced cars on the market more than 3000 Chalmers "Sixes" have been sold in the past year.

This is a significant fact for you.

The Chalmers "Six" was the first high-powered luxurious six-cylinder car to sell at a medium price. It instantly attracted the attention of motor-wise buyers who are willing to pay any price to get the best. Its competitors were not the cars which sell for the same price—but the highest priced cars which are built.

We have invited this competition. It has been our constant claim for the Chalmers "Six" that there is no better performing car at any price.

In the face of comparison with $4000 and $5000 cars, the Chalmers "Six" has won its high reputation.

Over 3000 "Sixes" have been sold in the past year.

The motor-wise public has bought more of this one model—the Chalmers "Six"—in one year than ever before were built by a single company in the same time.

Such popularity means that the Chalmers "Six" delivers the goods, that it is all we claim for it.

Isn't this the kind of car you want to own? Isn't it at least the kind of car you ought to see before you make your motor car investment? A real test demonstration at your convenience.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Miss Dollie Mings of Redondo won the women's swimming championship of the Pacific Coast in the 50-yard dash today. Her time was 33 1-5 seconds, the record having stood at 40 seconds. Miss Dorothy Becker of San Francisco was second and Miss Marguerite Brack of San Francisco third.

In the second heat Ernest Smith was the winner in 59 seconds flat. Kahanamoku holds the world's record having done the distance in 55 1-5 seconds.

Row Kaawa of Honolulu won the novice race over 50 yards in 28 1-5 seconds. William Grant of San Francisco was second.

Kahanamoku won the 50-yard back stroke race in 32 4-5 seconds, the Pacific Coast record having stood at 34 seconds flat. Lukela Kaupiko of Honolulu took second place and the points won by the two islanders in this event combined with the score they and their teammates already had made, gave the meet to the Hawaii contenders.

KELLY EASY WINNER IN CHICAGO'S HURDLE RACE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fred Kelly, representing Southern California in the annual A.A.U. championships held at Grant Park today, took the 120-yard high hurdle race in competition with such a sterling athlete as Nicholson of Missouri Athletic Club.

Kelly won his right to contest in the finals by taking the second heat in this event in 17 2-5s. He beat Goeltiz of the Chicago A. A. and A. J. Roberts of Earlham. Nicholson of Missouri had taken the first heat in 16 4-5s. In the final heat Kelly beat out Nicholson, going the distance in 16 2-5s.

The final heat was a pretty race. Nicholson and Kelly came down the stretch neck and neck. A few jumps from the finish, however, Kelly showed his gameness by adding a bit to his speed. He had saved a bit of reserve strength for the final burst and this gave him the victory.

H. P. Drew, the negro athlete from the Springfield (Mass.) High School, won the individual honors with first in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Three senior A.A.U. records were broken.

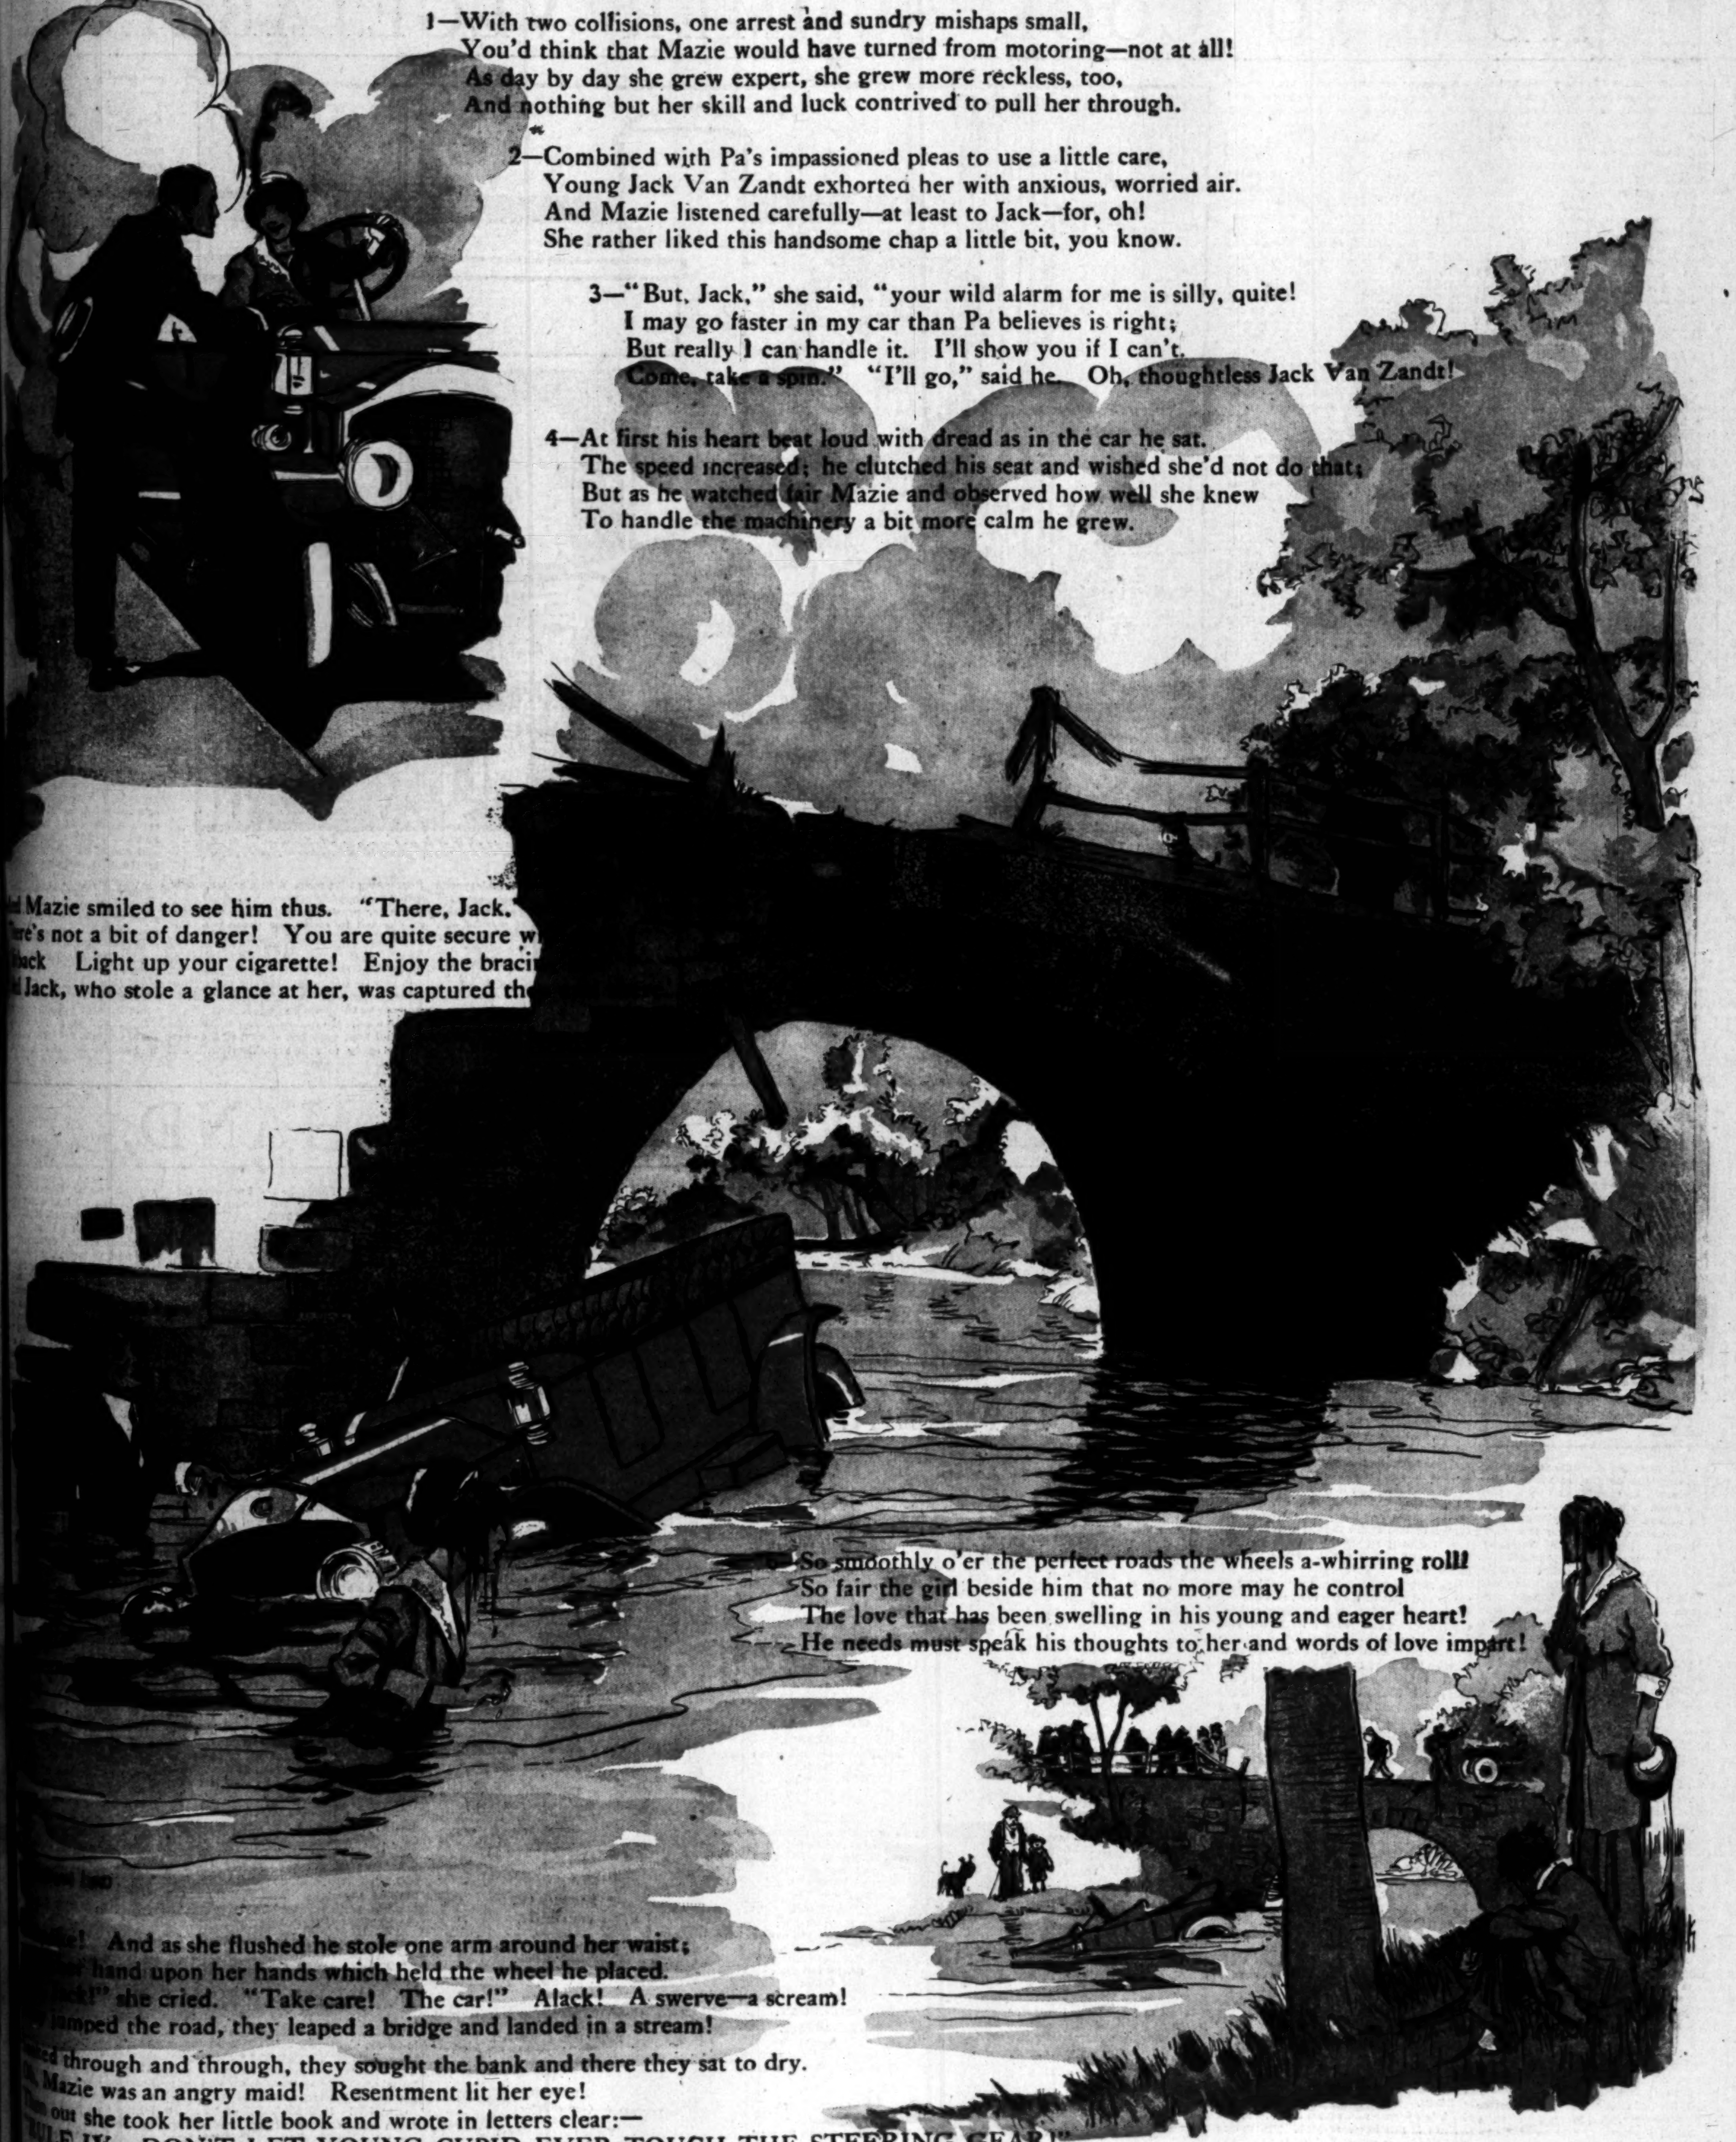
MAZIE THE MOTOR MAID

Verses by Paul West ⊠ Illustrations by J. Norman Lynd



1—With two collisions, one arrest and sundry mishaps small,
You'd think that Mazie would have turned from motoring—not at all!
As day by day she grew expert, she grew more reckless, too,
And nothing but her skill and luck contrived to pull her through.

2—Combined with Pa's impassioned pleas to use a little care,
Young Jack Van Zandt exhorted her with anxious, worried air.
And Mazie listened carefully—at least to Jack—for, oh!
She rather liked this handsome chap a little bit, you know.

3—"But, Jack," she said, "your wild alarm for me is silly, quite!
I may go faster in my car than Pa believes is right;
But really I can handle it. I'll show you if I can't.
Come, take a spin." "I'll go," said he. Oh, thoughtless Jack Van Zandt!

4—At first his heart beat loud with dread as in the car he sat.
The speed increased; he clutched his seat and wished she'd not do that;
But as he watched fair Mazie and observed how well she knew
To handle the machinery a bit more calm he grew.

Mazie smiled to see him thus. "There, Jack.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

HOW TO COOK SUMMER VEGETABLES.

"Everyone thinks she knows how to cook vegetables and as a result they are seldom well done."

IN no other country I have ever visited—and I have been in many of them—is there the wealth and variety of vegetables for table use we have in this land. The more shame to us that we don't always prepare them properly.

Cooking vegetables is like a good many other simple articles of cookery. Every woman thinks she knows how to do them and as a result they are seldom well done. At how many tables do we have to eat half-cooked or overcooked vegetables, ill drained and watery, unseasoned or poorly seasoned, the kindly fruits of the earth ruined in their preparation.

Even the woman who does understand how to cook vegetables is very likely to drift into the habit of monotony. I visit one place in the spring when asparagus is in season where I weary of that delicious vegetable because of the way in which it is served. The reason for it is brief; it is cut in the big garden under the dining room windows and it is always sent to the table on toast with a cream sauce. At first I enjoy it immensely, but by the end of a week or less I wish the cook would do something different with it.

Why doesn't she serve it with butter for a change? Why doesn't she have it as a salad with a sauce vinaigrette? Why don't we have it shirred with eggs for breakfast or in ambush in rolls for luncheon, or as a soup at dinner? Any or all of these changes would make us go back to asparagus and a cream sauce on toast with a renewed zest.

This same fault prevails through all our cookery of vegetables. Green peas cooked in cream are a dish for the gods, but after ten days or a fortnight of this preparation I think Jupiter and Juno would send word to the Olympic kitchens that for once they would have their peas plain with butter and salt or served with carrots cut into dice or in a souffle. Yet I have eaten peas cooked in cream steadily for a month at a time.

To assist in offering our families a variety which will endear to them even more the old time, familiar modes of cooking, I give a few recipes today.

Green Pea Souffle.

Cook a pint of shelled peas until tender or use an equal amount left over from a meal. Mash them with two tablespoons melted butter and add to three eggs beaten light with a pint of milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper and after beating hard bake in a well greased pudding dish, keeping this covered for twenty minutes, then uncovering long enough to brown well. Serve in the dish in which it was cooked as soon as possible after taking it from the oven.

Green Pea Pancakes.

Mash a pint of boiled shelled peas while hot, with salt and pepper to taste, and a tablespoon of melted butter. Beat in a cup of milk, two beaten eggs, and five tablespoons of flour which you have sifted with a teaspoon of baking powder; whip well and bake on a griddle as you would pancakes of any kind. A soap stone griddle is the best always.

Green Pea Croquettes.

Boil the peas tender in enough salted water just to cover them, put through the vegetable press, beat to a paste with a tablespoon butter and two of flour, pepper and salt to taste, set over the fire in a double boiler, and when hot through add a well beaten egg and cook for one minute. Set aside until the mixture is stiff and cold, then make into croquettes. Roll these in beaten egg and fine crumbs and let them stand in a cold place or on the ice for half an hour before frying them to a delicate brown in deep fat. Drain on brown paper in a colander before sending to table.

For any of these dishes, peas which are past their first youth and are turning a little hard may be used. Boil them until tender and then mash them well.

Green Peas with Carrots.

Boil the peas until tender, and while this is going on cook in another vessel enough young carrots from which you have rubbed and scraped the skins to make as much of these cut into dice, as you have peas. Do not dice them until they are boiled tender and when they are cut turn them with the peas, the latter drained of water, into a deep hot vegetable dish. Dress with a tablespoon of butter, sprinkle with pepper and salt, set the dish in the oven for two minutes, and send to table. If you wish you may strew a little chopped parsley over them.

Creamed Carrots.

Boil young carrots until tender in salted water, rub off the skin with a rough cloth, cut into inch lengths, and put them into a white sauce which you have made by cooking together a tablespoonful each of butter and flour until they bubble, pouring a cupful of milk upon them and stirring until smooth and thick. Leave the carrots in this for a few minutes; season to taste and serve.

Carrots with Butter.

Prepare the carrots as directed in the preceding recipe, but instead of serving them in white sauce, dress them with butter, pepper, and salt and a tablespoon of finely minced parsley.

Creamed Young Beets.

Do not cut off the bottom root, and leave on an inch or so of the stem above the beet to prevent bleeding. Cook until tender in boiling salted water. Rub the skins off, remove the tops and tails of the beets, and slice them thin. Have ready in a double boiler a cup of cream or one of milk to which you have added a tablespoon of butter and put the beets in this. Rub together a tablespoon each of flour and butter, stir it into the cream, add pepper, salt, and a teaspoon sugar; simmer until the sauce thickens and serve.

String Beans in Gravy.

Cut the strings from the beans carefully, using a sharp knife and paring off enough to make sure that there are no strings left on, then cut into inch lengths and boil in salted water until tender. Mix a tablespoonful each of butter and browned flour together in a saucepan, cooking until they bubble, turn in a cup of gravy or of well seasoned soup or stock, stir until smooth; season with salt and pepper and a few drops of onion juice; drain the beans and let them lie in the gravy for five minutes before sending to table.

Green Corn Pudding.

Shave the corn from the ears, splitting the row of kernels lengthwise if the corn is old and hard. You should have about two cupfuls of the kernels. Beat into them the whipped yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons melted butter and one tablespoon powdered sugar, salt to taste, and the whites, which should have been whipped to a stiff froth. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake for half an hour, covered; uncover and brown. Send to table at once before the pudding falls.

Green Corn Pancakes.

Beat together a cup of milk, an egg, whipped light before it goes into the milk, a tablespoon of melted butter, salt to taste, flour enough to make a thin batter. Stir into it two cupfuls of corn cut from the cob and after beating hard bake on a griddle as directed in recipe for green pea pancakes.

Green Corn Omelet.

Beat four eggs light, stir into them three tablespoons milk and a teaspoon melted butter and turn into an omelet pan. Have ready a cupful of boiled corn cut from the cob and kept very hot and when the omelet is ready to fold sprinkle it with salt and pepper, add the corn, fold over it and slip the whole on

Green Corn Balls.

Beat a whipped egg melted butter and one of salt to taste into two cups from the cob and put with flour to enable you to handle it into balls. Roll them then in flour and fry in deep fat.

Scalloped Eggplant.

Peel off the skin, cut the dice and parboil for twenty Drain well, put into a buttered with alternate layers of fine ting bits of butter upon each ling with salt and pepper minced green peppers if you The dish is good even without When the dish is full moisten with milk or cream, put a layer butter, pepper and salt on top bake for half an hour, uncovering

Baked Young Onions.

Peel the onions, cook boiling salted water, drain buttered pudding dish per and salt and pour over sauce made as directed creamed carrots. Strew the top and bake covered utes. Uncover and brown dish in which onions were

Custard Onions.

Cook the young onions When tender, lay in a pour over them a white you have added one or two eggs. Season with pepper turning on the onions, and custard sauce is set.

Savory Onions.

After you have boiled until tender, drain them them a cupful of good stock this for ten minutes. with a split spoon and you thicken the gravy of browned flour rubbed same amount of butter and thick, add a teaspoon and one of good catsup, per to taste, and pour over

Scalloped Squash.

Wash and pare two large summer squashes, cut about an inch square, put saucepan of boiling water twenty-five minutes. Drain pressing out all the water from lumps. Whip into beaten eggs, a small cup tablespoon of butter; season pepper and turn into a dish. Strew crumbs, bits and pepper over the top, and "I AM inclosing a recipe for genuine bar-le-duc as I have made it for years. It was given me by a Swiss woman who had studied French cooking. The recipe you gave recently for home-made vinegar is fine. I start it with a little 'mother' from any strong vinegar or a little plain vinegar. It can be started with a piece of brown paper smeared with molasses or with a little yeast—in fact, anything which will start fermentation. If left long enough it will make vinegar without any help, just as cider will. I have had my vinegar analyzed and it was pronounced as good as the best.

"You ask about books for the blind. Such books cannot be read unless the blind person has studied one of the 'point' systems. If in New York City, a letter sent to the library for the blind will bring some one who will teach the 'New York point' or the 'Moon point' or the 'Braille point,' and books are loaned free of charge. This is done in many of our large cities where there is a 'blind department' in the public library. The International Sunshine society will supply all information in regard to it, and indeed to anything pertaining to the blind.

"One more thing—a request. Can you give me a recipe for Dutch or German rye bread? A YANKEE HOUSEWIFE."

Your letter is so full of gifts that I hardly know for which to thank you first. The bar-le-duc recipe will appear elsewhere in our columns; the information relative to the home made vinegar will set at rest the minds of those who are not quite certain of the wholesomeness of the brown paper variety; the facts about the reading for the blind are sure to be of service to some of our Cornerites who are in touch with the blind, and your book on phonography has already rejoiced the heart of the correspondent who asked for it. In view of all this it seems little, indeed, to supply you with the recipe you ask, and I hope the following may met your need:

GERMAN RYE BREAD.—In a quarter cup of lukewarm water, to which you have put a small teaspoon of white sugar, dissolve half a yeast cake. Turn this into a wooden bread bowl, with a pint of lukewarm water, a heaping teaspoon of salt, and one of caraway seed, and two cups of rye flour. Stir well and let it rise in a warm place for two hours. It should be full of bubbles when ready to work. Put with it sufficient rye flour to make a very stiff dough, work it hard for ten minutes, let it rise two hours more, and knead again—this time on a floured board. Put the loaves in pans, and when they have risen so that they begin to crack on the surface dip your hand in cold water, wet the loaves, and put them in the oven. Bake an hour, and do not open the door until the bread has been in ten minutes. The oven should be very hot at first. Cover the bread with paper as soon as it is brown on top.

Things Made of Outing Flannel.

"Here are three useful things to be made out of gray outing flannel: 1. Holders for hot dishes. Make these of gray outing flannel 6x4 inches, padded with layers of cotton or tops of stockings, tacked like a bed comfort, quilted or stitched with any colored thread. Sew one large brass ring at one corner or two small ones at alternate corners for hanging up the holders and you have a neat and useful article for the kitchen.

"2. Mop bags. Make these oblong in shape and open at the top to fit over any old broom with a piece of tape sewed around the top, with two loose ends left to tie. This makes a fine light mop and by having several such covers they can be laundered in turn as they need it.

"3. Blueing bags can be made from the scraps left over from the fashioning of the above articles. By using these bags ball blueing will never streak.

"I have learned to wash curtains without rubbing, and this is they way I did it: My experience was with the sheerest of window curtains. I soaked them over night and the next morning transferred them to the stove and let them come to a boil, and while this point was being reached I shaved a half bar of laundry soap and dissolved this with a piece of paraffin the size of a walnut in hot water. This mixture I poured on the boiling curtains and let boil for ten minutes. After this I rinsed the curtains well in several waters, ran them through a blueing water, stretched them out to dry in shape—and they were as good as new. "HOUSEKEEPER."

These are only a few of the hints sent to us by this friend, which I shall put in our Corner from time to time. They are so good that I like to spread them out a little instead of serving the whole feast at once.

Another Confusion.

"Mrs. K. T. writes asking for bits of trimming. I should like to send her all I accumulate from time to time, as well as remnants and garments to be utilized for children. I shall watch the Corner for K. T.'s address and respond. J. E. S."

Here is another confusion. The names and addresses are not given in print, but are supplied to those who ask for them by letter, inclosing a stamp for reply. If J. E. S.—who lives in Chicago—had given her name and address as well as her initials we might have been able to put her in touch with the person she wishes to help. As it is, we cannot bring them together until we are enlightened as to the address. I am sorry, for this is a generous offer and would be a great help.

Who Will Respond to This?

"I saw in a recent paper that the superintendent of a Sunday school in the pine woods of Florida has been able to get books to form a little library. I would like to make an appeal to the Corner through you for a few books for a little Sunday school called Cedar Grove, in the very heart of the piny woods of Alabama. It would be such a good thing for the children, as they never have any kind of a book, and the parents are too poor to buy them. We have about fifty scholars of all ages, from babies to 70 years of age. I think your Corner is doing a wonderful work, and I pray for its growth and success. MRS. S. E. G."

Who will respond to this appeal? I am sure many of you have books which are not in regular use, which perhaps are hardly opened from one year to the other, that you could give away. Only the other day I gathered up a quantity of volumes to send to a home in which I am interested, and, although the box was of a good size, we have never missed the volumes we took from the shelves. Are there not some of you in the same position? Haven't you books the children have outgrown which would bring delight to the hearts of the little ones—and the big ones, too—down in Alabama? I don't wish to do anything to lessen the response to the first appeal—that made by our Florida correspondent—but I am sure that among us we have books enough for both! I hold the address of both.

A Good Brandy Sauce.

"Can any one give me a good recipe for brandy sauce such as is served with mince pie in good hotels and which will be a fit accompaniment to your 'Old English plum pudding'? I have had fine success with your recipe for the pudding, but prefer the thin, dark colored sauce, which I do not know how to make. MRS. S. P."

I will gladly give you a recipe for brandy sauce, although it may not be what you wish. At the risk of putting myself down as ignorant of the usages of "good hotels" I must own that I have never seen a sauce of any sort served with mince pie. I hope the following may be the kind you like.

BRANDY SAUCE.—Work two tablespoonfuls butter into two cupfuls powdered sugar, moistening with boiling water, beat hard for a few minutes and put the vessel containing it in a saucepan of water which is at a hard boil. Stir until scalding hot, put in a teaspoonful cornstarch moistened with cold water, boil up once, add a glass of good brandy, and remove from the fire. If you wish it still thinner than this use half the cornstarch called for or omit it entirely.

"Is there any kind person who has an invalid's wheel chair that is not needed and will give it to a sick person that has not means and has not been able to walk in ten years? I lost the use of my legs and a right arm and eye through an injury to the spine received in a fall from an engine. I am never able to get out of doors. If anyone wishes references as to my honesty and truthfulness I will be glad to supply them. A. W. L."

Crippled, maimed, half blind, and confined to the house for lack of a wheel chair! Isn't there someone who has a discarded chair to give to this sufferer? His home is in Clinton, Ia., a few hours from Chicago, and I hope most earnestly that I shall soon have an appeal for his address from some one who will not only be able to give the chair but to pay for its transportation.

Orange Marmalade.

"Will you kindly publish a recipe for orange marmalade or conserve and the kind of fruit to use? I should also like an old time lemon pie—one without nut meats. A. D."

Although recipes for orange marmalade have appeared here several times during the last winter, I give the directions again. The best fruit to use is the small sour variety. This has more flavor and character than the large, sweet oranges.

ORANGE MARMALADE.—Slice two dozen sour oranges without peeling, remove the seeds; slice and seed two lemons or one grapefruit. All should be cut very thin. Measure the juice, add to it enough water to make the fluid, turn all into a stone cover and leave all night In the morning bring to a serving kettle, cook very the peel is tender, stir in a to each pint of juice and orange skin is clear. Take and when it is cool put LEMON PIE.—Cream a with a tablespoon butter large tablespoon cornstarch cold water and stir into water. Stir until smooth the sugar and butter and cool. Add to it then the rind of a large lemon, and light. Turn into a pie good pastry and bake. of the beaten whites of two stiff with a tablespoon the pie is done spread the it, brown lightly, and serve.

Triumph in Housekeeping

"There is doubtless much me in the line of house do I am sure you would underwear is prepared after for a bride—the lingerie wash and iron myself clothes are mended from put away in perfect order sorted according to tation. My big reserve thing of every article guest towels—even to a washed guests' brush and eling corner' is ready from the little whisk brushes and soap. Your warmed my heart, for stamped envelopes and pencil and memorandum magazine, if an old one down corner at something

"Of course this lied to cleanliness of stand some of the really the white bathtub after change for afternoon. And with guests. I sit at the the blessed children 'wait.' This is the house.

"Besides all this I so that I may accompany friends when they many less fortunate leisure in writing!

A triumphant display of mentality applied in for a woman and her family only part of the letter I have left unpublished heart and has given gratitude which I I hope that other be stirred to emulate woman whose interests that she says her husband her his "forty wives."

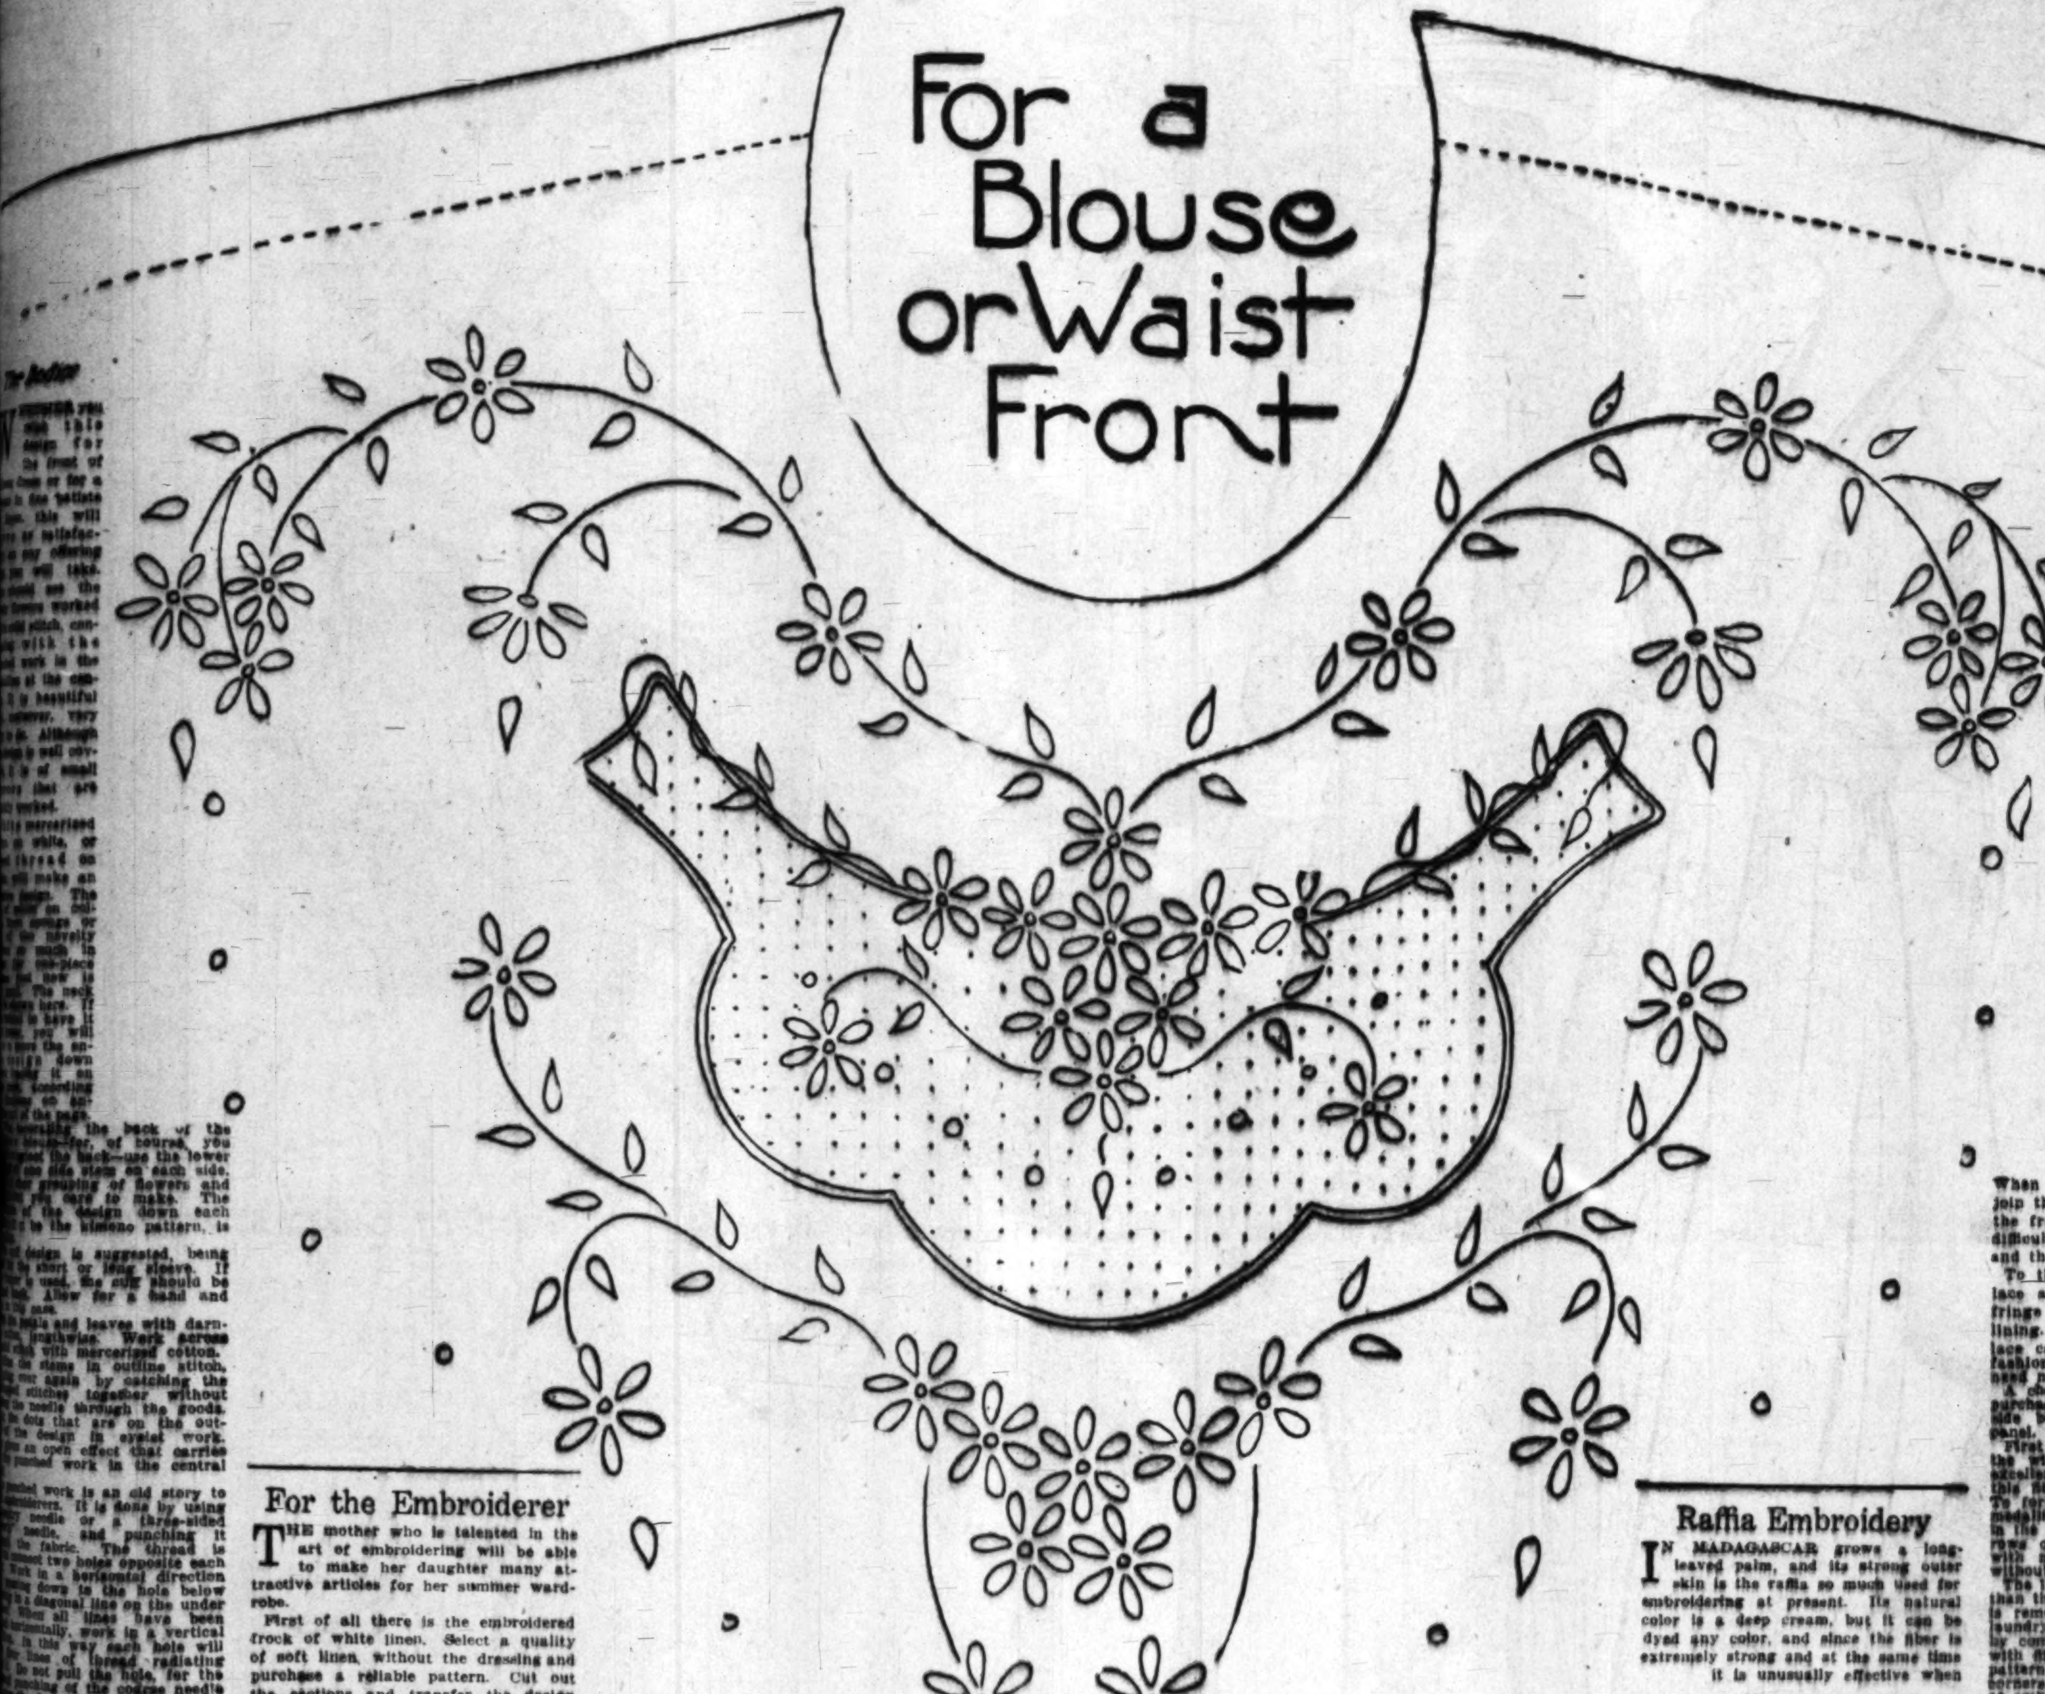
For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD

For a Blouse or Waist Front



For the Embroiderer

THE mother who is talented in the art of embroidering will be able to make her daughter many attractive articles for her summer wardrobe.

First of all there is the embroidered frock of white linen. Select a quality of soft linen, without the dressing and purchase a reliable pattern. Cut out the sections and transfer the design chosen to the blouse front, back and sleeves.

When purchasing the pattern select a jumper bodice and wear a guimpe of lace or net with it. Use solid or eyelet embroidery to decorate the frock and choose a rather large design. For instance, the rose is always effective, and if the petals are worked about the edges with the long-and-short stitch and the center of the rose filled in with French knots it does not require a great deal of time to embroider a flower.

The foliage is done in the same manner. Arrange three large roses and foliage in the form of a triangle, directly in front, one on each shoulder of the blouse and one on either side of the back.

The skirt should be cut with a tunic overskirt, and this is adorned with the same design arranged as a border.

Dainty round and square collars and cuffs to wear with frocks of colored linen are always effective and are not difficult to make.

The shops are selling many simple designs which can be embroidered in a day. One collar shows an arrangement of wild carrots and punched work that is artistic. This design requires no padding, for the wild carrots are filled in with French knots and the foliage with outline and seed stitches. The medallions of punched work are embroidered in the usual manner and bordered with French knots. Time is saved by edging the collar with lace instead of buttonhole-stitching the scallops.

Medallions of cluny, Irish crochet or venetian lace can be purchased from 10 cents a piece upward, and these can be inset in collars of linen with very little trouble. First baste the medallions in the proper position and then buttonhole-stitch the edges to the linen, afterward cutting away the material beneath.

A fascinating jabot to wear with the low collar is made from colored linen cut in three diamond-shaped sections, two of which are very much smaller than the third. Scallop and buttonhole-stitch the edges with white and join the two smaller diamonds to form the bow, and to this attach the larger section. Over the top of the linen foundation place a bow formed of Irish lace insertion, with one long end finished with three small crocheted balls.

This is just a beginning and there are many more attractive articles which can be made by the mother who embroiders for her young daughter.

For Your Little Daughter

THE shops are displaying many dainty hats for the tot of 3, 4 and 5 which are so simple in construction that any mother can duplicate them.

First among these are the fabric hats made over a wire frame. The latter can be purchased in any shape.

Flowered dimity, crepon, chiffon, mousseline de soie, taffeta, shadow lace, point d'esprit and net are the materials most favored to cover the wire frame. The French crepons this season are especially lovely, and being semitransparent they are adapted to the making of a fabric hat.

When preparing the material shirr it at intervals over a cord and draw it to conform with the shape of the hat. About the base of the crown place a garland of small flowers and the hat is complete.

The hats of shirred net must be made over a foundation of silk and the net or point d'esprit must be shirred full with a beading or over a cord. At the edge of the underbrim stitch two or three fine pleatings of valenciennes lace and trim the hat with rosettes of ribbon or flowers.

From a hat of hemp straw with the brim slightly rolled on one side a charming hat is made in this manner:

Take pale blue or pink messaline ribbon an inch and a half in width and shirr it at both sides. Border the underbrim and the top with the shirred puffing and stitch a band at the base of the crown. Wreathe the crown with a garland of roses and forget-me-nots and, if preferred, attach tie strings of ribbon beneath the chin.

The hats of figured chiffon are lovely and are shirred over frames of wire.

Some models are fashioned entirely of narrow pleated frills of lace, net, chiffon or mousseline de soie.

If you examine closely a fabric hat, you will see that it is very easy to duplicate.

Useful Hints

TIME and eyesight can be saved when basting a long seam by threading the needle to the spool without cutting the thread. This is also an economy in the use of thread, for when one long piece can be pulled from the seam, after it is stitched on the machine, it is worth winding on the spool for future use.

For mending a tear in an umbrella, narrow silk ribbon is excellent. Since both the edges are selvages it is an easy matter to stitch it to the umbrella.

On French nightrobes there is a small loop buttonholed, through which the ribbon is drawn and tied. This saves the time of sewing on the made bow.

Silk soutache braid is an excellent substitute for ribbon drawstrings.

If the spool of thread is soaked in water overnight and allowed to dry before using, the seams stitched with it will never pucker.

To insert lace successfully, mark the blouse in any desired pattern, no matter how elaborate, and sew the lace at the very edge with strong thread. When it is in place, reverse the work and, using strong thread, whipstitch the lace to the material and carefully cut away the fabric beneath the insertion, allowing an edge to turn back. Press this firmly in place and, if the material is apt to ravel, overcast the edge.

Work for Needlewomen

JAPANESE and Chinese embroideries have ever been considered artistic, and this season shows a marked preference for the eastern or oriental needlework.

Many of the loveliest blouses are embroidered in the colors one sees in the lovely cloisonne vases.

Select a soft Japanese silk in white or a pale tint and, using a pattern which exactly fits, cut out the blouse. On the front and sleeves stamp a Japanese design of cherry blossoms, chrysanthemums, butterflies or roses and embroider with silk in tones of ivory, pink, pale green, dull green, blue and yellow, using a long-and-short stitch.

If you desire to have your blouse of sheer white linen or batiste, embroider the design in white or celestial blue, using mercerized cotton.

A white voile blouse made with a sailor collar and turned-back cuffs would be effective if embroidered with a Japanese design.

White crepe de chine or soft satin makes a dainty blouse, and you will find it an easy material to embroider.

Many of the Japanese, Egyptian or Bulgarian designs are extremely simple and require little time to complete them. Their brilliant coloring insures their popularity, for this is a season of color, and blouses, frocks, neckwear and millinery are trimmed with the vivid hues of the Tyrian dyes.

Raffia Embroidery

IN MADAGASCAR grows a long-leaved palm, and its strong outer skin is the raffia so much used for embroidering at present. Its natural color is a deep cream, but it can be dyed any color, and since the fiber is extremely strong and at the same time it is unusually effective when used on coarse material for making table runners, cushions, etc., for the veranda or room furnished with craftsman furniture. Experience is not necessary for doing raffia embroidery, for the simple darning stitch is all that is required. Purchase a coarse linen crash, loosely woven, a stencil design, several bundles of raffia and a coarse needle.

Raffia, being coarse and wide, works up quickly, producing a design in bold relief against the background.

When planning for the article you desire to make, take into consideration the color scheme of your veranda or room in which you desire to use it.

Measure your material, allowing for deep hems, and crease in four equal divisions so that the design may be transferred exactly straight. Using thumbtacks, fasten the material smoothly to a board or a tabletop and place your stencil pattern in the correct position. Fasten the stencil securely to the material and, using a soft pencil draw around the sharply defined outlines of the stencil.

When this is complete, move the stencil to the next place, and when the entire design is completed start to darn each motif solidly with the raffia straight across the design, following the thread used to weave the crash. Darn back and forth until the design is filled in with the raffia. When the embroidery is completed press the linen with a warm iron.

Raffia embroidery cannot help but be successful on account of its simplicity, so purchase the materials immediately to make the attractive articles decorated with raffia.

From Scraps of Lace

THE women who frequents the shops knows that at the remnant counters are to be had tiny scraps of lace and odd lengths of finest batiste, net and sheerest linen, which, if utilized properly, will become a treasure worth possessing.

The French handmade lingerie articles are very expensive, but you can easily duplicate them with a comparatively small outlay.

A great variety of lamp and candle shades can be made from medallions of lace, and from strips of insertion and edging dainty bags, sachets and pincushions can be fashioned.

To make a large hexagonal lampshade, first purchase a wire foundation and wrap the wire with strips of silk or lawn. Now cover it smoothly with white, pale blue, pink, yellow or green silk. Using cluny lace medallions and strips of insertion and lace, build the six sides by placing a medallion in the center and joining the lace to this, carefully mitering the corners. When the six sides are completed join them together and fit them over the frame. You will experience less difficulty if a paper pattern is first cut and the lace is stitched to this.

To the bottom edge join a frill of lace and beneath this place a silk fringe to match the color of the silk lining. Cluny, filet and valenciennes lace can be effectively combined to fashion this shade and the medallions need not match.

A charming candleshade is made by purchasing a four-sided frame, each side being in the form of an oval panel.

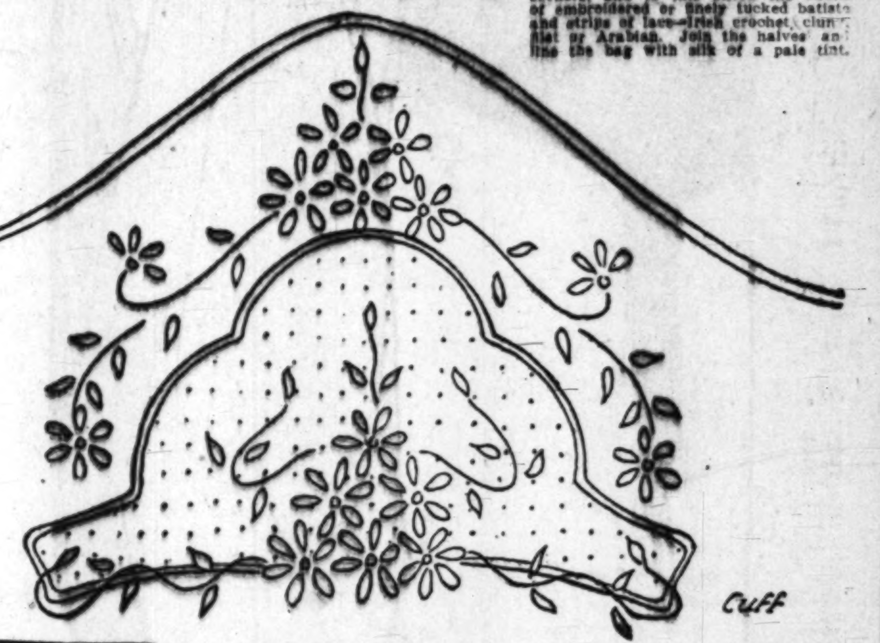
First cover the frame by wrapping the wire (white silk seam-binding is excellent for this purpose), and over this fit the covering of silk or satin. To form an oval panel baste an oval medallion of French eyelet embroidery in the center and to this join alternate rows of cluny lace. Finish the edge with narrow cluny lace whipstitched without fullness.

The lingerie bag is far more practical than the bag of silk, for when the lining is removed the bag is ready for the laundry. A very charming bag is made by combining several varieties of lace with fine French batiste. Cut a paper pattern an oblong shape with rounded corners, and to this stitch the bands of embroidered or finely tucked batiste and strips of lace—Irish crochet, cluny, filet or Arabian. Join the halves and line the bag with silk of a pale tint. About the top and around the edge of the bag stitch a scant frill of Irish lace. Embroider eyelets at the top and through these run the drawstring of inch-wide messaline ribbon. From varicolored bits of silk make tiny French roses and form a wreath or a crescent in the center of the bag. This contributes a novelty touch which makes the bag appear fresh from a shop on the Rue de la Paix.

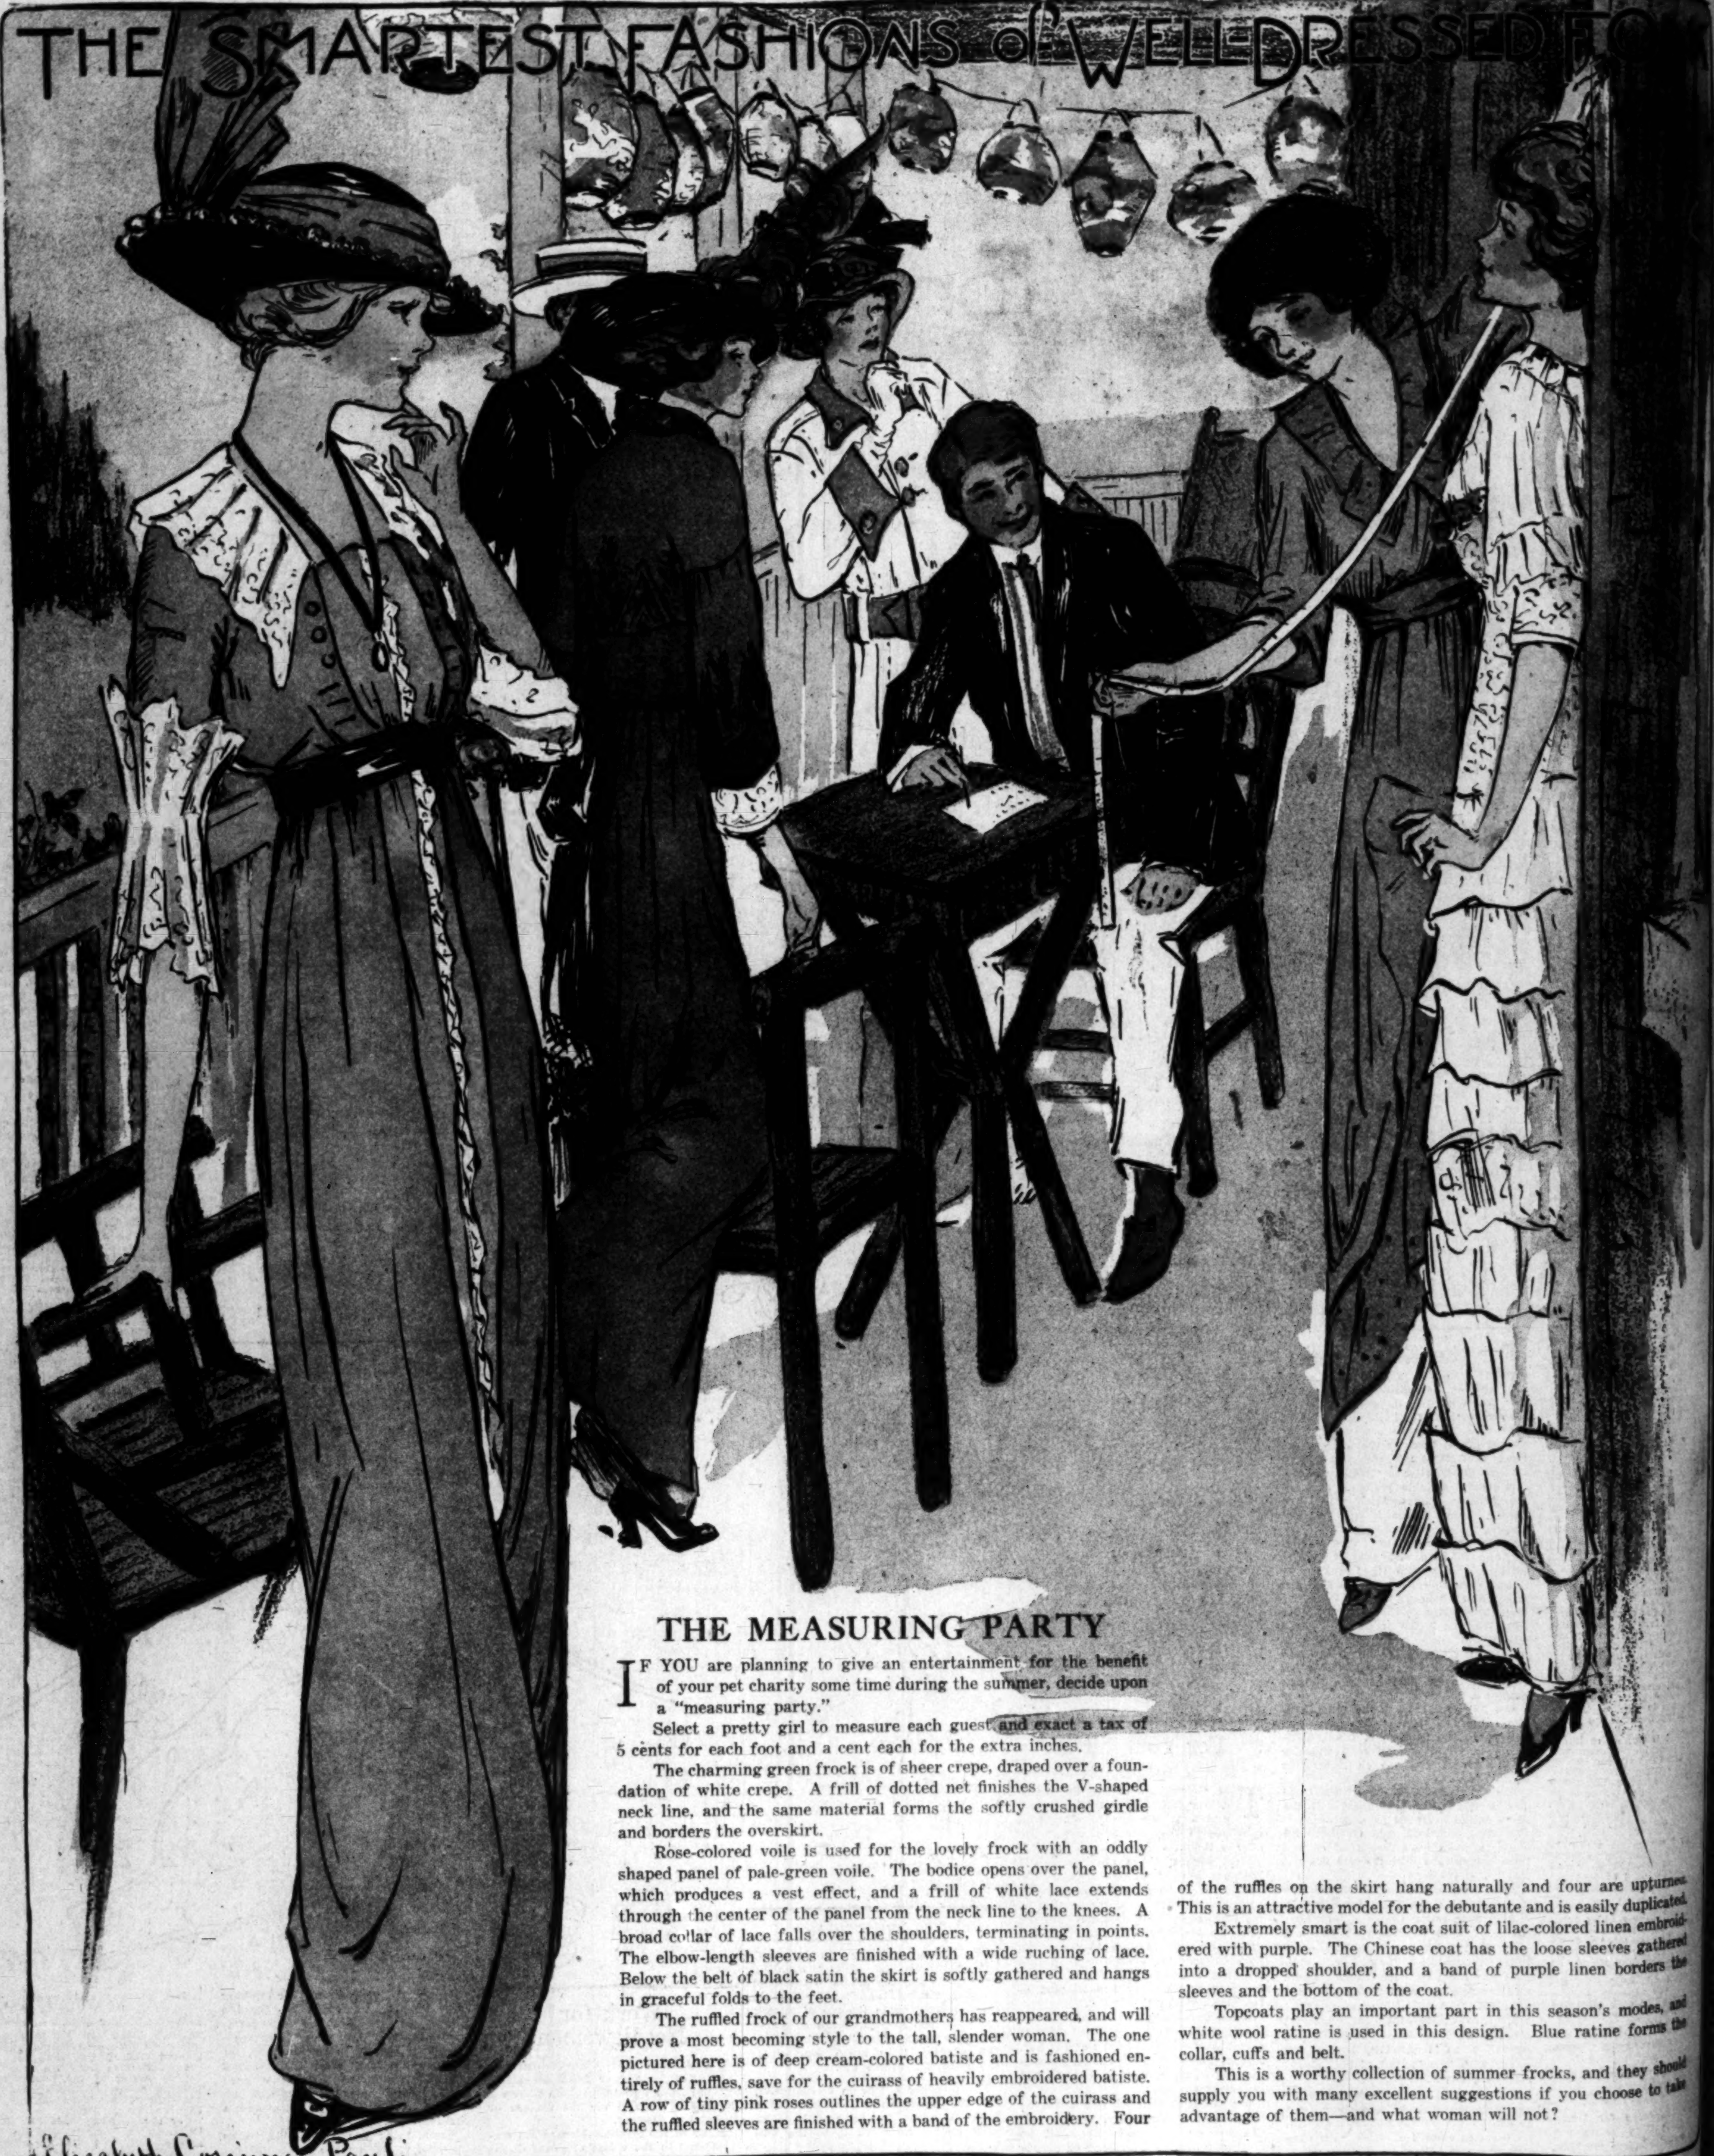
For the dressing table you can make innumerable, dainty articles, and a powder-puff bag is easily and quickly stitched together in this fashion: Cover a circle of cardboard with cotton wadding, then with a pretty brocaded silk of a delicate tint. To this whipstitch alternate rows of Irish crochet, cluny, filet or valenciennes lace and line the bag with finest white batiste or net, finishing the top row of lace with a picot edging of Irish or cluny lace. Run a drawstring through the top and fill the bag with small rolls of surgeon's cotton tied together with white baby ribbon. These are more sanitary than the powder-puff of swansdown or lambswool, and every hostess should provide them for her guests.

To protect the highly polished surface of the dressing-table, purchase small asbestos mats and for these make dainty covers of lace. Place a circular medallion of lace in the center, and about it sew rows of insertion of two varieties of lace. Line the halves with fine linen and join them, leaving a space wide enough to slip the mat through. About the edge sew a narrow edging of lace.

These are just a few articles that can be made, and if you visit the needlework shops you will find inspiration enough to keep you busy all summer.



THE SMARTEST FASHIONS of WELL-DRESSED FO



THE MEASURING PARTY

IF YOU are planning to give an entertainment for the benefit of your pet charity some time during the summer, decide upon a "measuring party."

Select a pretty girl to measure each guest and exact a tax of 5 cents for each foot and a cent each for the extra inches.

The charming green frock is of sheer crepe, draped over a foundation of white crepe. A frill of dotted net finishes the V-shaped neck line, and the same material forms the softly crushed girdle and borders the overskirt.

Rose-colored voile is used for the lovely frock with an oddly shaped panel of pale-green voile. The bodice opens over the panel, which produces a vest effect, and a frill of white lace extends through the center of the panel from the neck line to the knees. A broad collar of lace falls over the shoulders, terminating in points. The elbow-length sleeves are finished with a wide ruching of lace. Below the belt of black satin the skirt is softly gathered and hangs in graceful folds to the feet.

The ruffled frock of our grandmothers has reappeared, and will prove a most becoming style to the tall, slender woman. The one pictured here is of deep cream-colored batiste and is fashioned entirely of ruffles, save for the cuirass of heavily embroidered batiste. A row of tiny pink roses outlines the upper edge of the cuirass and the ruffled sleeves are finished with a band of the embroidery. Four of the ruffles on the skirt hang naturally and four are upturned. This is an attractive model for the debutante and is easily duplicated.

Extremely smart is the coat suit of lilac-colored linen embroidered with purple. The Chinese coat has the loose sleeves gathered into a dropped shoulder, and a band of purple linen borders the sleeves and the bottom of the coat.

Topcoats play an important part in this season's modes, and white wool ratine is used in this design. Blue ratine forms the collar, cuffs and belt.

This is a worthy collection of summer frocks, and they should supply you with many excellent suggestions if you choose to take advantage of them—and what woman will not?
